

XEROX

Xerox University Microfilms

Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106

WESTERN AMERICANA

THREE YEARS
AMONG THE INDIAN

IN DAKOTA.

—BY—

J. H. Brips, Sergeant in Company L, Sixth Iowa Cavalry.

1884.

BRULE INDEX, KIMBALL.
SOUTH DAKOTA.

1863.

1893.

LIEUT. A. R. FULLER.

1864.

1894.

J. H. DRIPS.

The Dakota Campaign.

FOR the past thirty-five years it has been a custom with me to keep a journal or diary, noting the most striking events of each day as they occurred. This custom was faithfully adhered to during my term of service in the United States Army—from October 9, 1862, to October 17, 1865. During the winter of 1863-4, while in winter quarters at Fort Randall, D. T., I copied these notes and made other record of facts as this diary record warranted. I did the same in the winter of 1864-5. This was done at the time without any idea of ever publishing it, but I thought it might at some time be interesting for members of my family to read how I had been employed during those three eventful years. At one time in the early 70's the mice took a liking to my manuscript and I supposed they had completely destroyed it; but on taking exception one evening to something some one had said concerning our campaigns, my wife said to me, "Why do not consult your own records?" "Why," said I, "that is destroyed long ago." She said she thought she could produce them, and did so, nearly intact; and as I had my diary for 1865, a relative proposed that I should try and write that summer's campaign, as it might at some time be published and give to the world a condensed account of how the Sixth Iowa Volunteers chased the Indians, (in the language of Col. S. M. Pollock,) with ox-teams on the treeless plains of Dakota. In this connection I would say that I was with my Company all the time, never in the hospital as a patient, nor detailed to soft places, therefore I feel well qualified to make my statements.

REMARKS ON ORGANIZATION

Our Regiment was recruited in the fall of 1862, of October. My own enlistment was dated the 9th and very few went back of the 1st of the month. The recruited under false pretences, as it was held out as to volunteer that a general order had been issued from department to recruit a regiment at once to be sent to the rate this argument was presented to me and comrades by the recruiting officer, Sergeant Parke, of the First who became our First Lieutenant, and as good and brave a jolly good fellow as ever donned the blue. Perhaps case, as nothing else was thought of by the Regiment the received opinion that Col. Wilson had been selected tion on the specific understanding that our destiny was plains instead of joining our friends in the South, as a vjority of the men wanted to do. But as we were Unitediers our first duty was to obey orders, no matter how orders were. And in the end, as far as personal sacrifice, we had a large advantage, and although there been, and no doubt were, a good many who were we the situation, the very large majority were of that class anxious to go the front, and would have added their the well-earned fame of Iowa volunteers on the Southern

A fact might as well be noted here, as later on. romantic idea existing among a large number of the great majority of the Indians were the real nobility of that the few who had been committing the diabolical outrages at Ulm, Spirit Lake, and other places, were the off-spring of a noble race. But the first sight of a camp of friendly Indians at Yankton Agency, on the Missouri river—dispelled the prejudice and every subsequent acquaintance with "the noble savage" emphasize the idea that "the good Indian was the dead Indian." The Regiment was recruited mostly from the northern part of the State; and a very few below the central part, viz:

Scott and Clinton counties; Companies B and M Dubuque county; Company C, Fayette county; Company D, Winnesheik county; Company E, Pottawattamie county; Companies F, I and K, Johnson and contiguous counties; Company, Delaware county; Company H, Linn county, and Company L, Clayton county. The Regiment went into camp at Camp Hendershott, Harrison Street, Davenport about the last days of November, 1862, and was mustered into United States service January 31, and February 3, 1863. Its officers were.

Colonel—David S. Wilson, Dubuque.
 Lieutenant Colonel—Samuel M. Pollock, Dubuque.
 Majors—Thos. H. Shepherd, Iowa City,
 Ed. P. TenBroeck, Clinton,
 Albert E. House, Delhi.
 Surgeon—George W. Trumbull, Cascade.
 Jacob H. Camburn, Cedar Rapids.
 Assistant Surgeons—Thomas S. Bardwell, Marion.
 Samuel C. Hayes, Bradford.
 N. B. Elliot, West Union.
 Adjutant—Rufus L. Miller, Keokuk.
 Benjamin E. Agard, Clermont.
 Quartermaster—Abram Williams, Dubuque.
 Commissary—Morgan Reno, Iowa City.
 Chaplain—David N. Mitchell, Cedar Rapids.

In June, 1864, Col. Wilson resigned, and Lieut.-Col. Pollock was promoted to Colonel. Maj. TenBroeck to Lieutenant Colonel. Maj. Shepherd resigned in October, 1864, and Capts. John Gallagher of Company A, and D. C. Cram, of Company B, were promoted to the Majorship. Surgeon Trumbull resigned February 10, 1863, and Assistant Surgeon Camburn was promoted to his position. Assistant Surgeon Elliot resigned February 27, 1863. Adjutant Mitchell resigned in June, 1864, and Benjamin E. Agard, a private from Company C, was promoted to his position, but for some reason he never assumed the duties, Lieut. Wesley A. Heath, of Company G, acting as Adjutant.

The First Battalion, consisting of Companies A, D, G and H, was under command of Maj. Thos. H. Shepherd, and after his resignation, of Maj. House. The Second Battalion, Companies B, E, F, I, J, K, L, was under Majs. TenBroeck and Gallagher. The Third Battalion ion, Companies C, F, I and M, was under Maj's.

The companies were officered as follows, from out noting promotions, which at this time is mon

Company A—Capts. John Gallagher and John John M. Gates, Hugh A. Macalister, Simon J. To

Company B—Capts. DeWitt C. Cram and I Lieuts. Dexter P. Bronson, Tyler P. Rood, Frank as J. Leavitt, Byron M. Richmond and Horatio G.

Company C—Capt. Lucian L. Ainsworth,
Dayton, Freeman K. Fisk, Henry Rickel and W.

Company D—Capt. Theodore W. Burdick
Page, Timothy Firm and William Fannon.

Company E—Capt. Daniel F. Eicher, Lieu Haven, David Ellison and Sanford M. Smith.

Company F—Capt. Scott Shattuck, Lieuts. J.
N. Beeman and Archibald H. McKallon. This crvited in Alamakee county, and not in Johnson fore stated.

Company G—Captain Abraham B. Moorlan
A. Heath, Edward H. Gaylord and Charles F. Ho

Company H—Capts. Canfield J. Marsh and Jeph
Lieuts. G. H. Hesselberger, John A. Patterson, C
Charles A. Keardon.

Company I—Capts. Lewis R. Wolfe and Benj
Benjamin King, George W. McCall, Valconlon J. V
ry C. Nicholls.

Company K—Capt. John Logan, Lieuts. G
Samuel M. Parker and Hiram F. Berst.

Company L—Capt. Aaron S. Ames, Lieuts.
Samuel B. Coyle, Alexander R. Fuller, Alpheus
W. Hunt.

Company M—Capt. Valconlon J. Willam, Lie
Richard Berry and Royal F. Williams.

As before stated, we assembled at Davenport frist and took possession of Camp Hendershott, w be on Harrison street at the top of the hill. There sets of barracks on the west side of the street, the through building them and the stables. The qu enough to accommodate one hundred men each, an

House and Cram.
from first to last, without any serious dangerous.

M. Gates; Lieuts.
Poll and Jacob Saedt.
Dexter E. Bronson,
W. O. Udell, Thomas Foster.

Lieut. George E.
Warren D. Stafford.
Lieuts. Sherman

Lieuts. Joseph C. De

James Ruth, Lucius
company was recounted, as hereto-

and, Lieuts. Wesley Robbs.

Phyllis M. Van Meter, Quarter Berkley and

Samuel King, Lieuts.
Williams and Hen-

George E. Dayton,

Hiram A. Park,
Scott and Alonzo

Lieuts. James Brown,

about December
which we found to be we found twelve carpenters hardly quarters were large
and the stables were in the rear, or west of the quarters, each calculated to accommodate one hundred horses, and were quite comfortable. The kitchen each company was between the quarters and the stables, an alley enough for a wagon between each set of quarters. The officers' quarters were on the east side of the street, opposite the mens'; guard house was on the west side of the street at the south terminus of the camp; the hospital west of the guard house. We had a circle guard all around the camp, and to show how formidable that was an incident will suffice. One evening after the countersign had been given out a soldier marched up to a sentinel and was promptly arrested by the guard who demanded the countersign.

Soldier—Ain't got it.

Guard—Can't pass then.

Soldier, creeping a little nearer—Come, Hank, let a fellow pass through.

Guard—Hold on there, or I'll shoot; that's orders. (Gun no lock on, barrel crooked.)

Soldier—Come, Hank, my horse got loose and broke over line and I must get him before he gets out of sight.

Guard, getting desperate—Say, Dick, if you don't stop and Pea Ridge I'll blow your brains out.

Soldier—Oh, yes, (whispering "Pea Ridge") I had eaten him forgotten.

And he passed out, did not catch his horse as that animal was in the stable, but he and a good many other soldiers came into camp that night by whispering "Pea Ridge." Six months from that time it would have been a different reception one would have received that young guard; and up to the time of muster-out Henry Br.
was scarcely known outside of his company, but let any one inquire for "Pea Ridge" and almost any man in the regiment could point him out.

This brings to mind another instance showing how a nickname given to a soldier stuck close to him all through the service; and on great many times the circumstances were not of the most pleasant kind. In 1864, about the 29th or 30th of July, the expedition on its return from the fight at Tah-ka-o-cuty. Being in Indian country and liable to be attacked at any time, Gen. Sully issued an order after we went into camp that no fires should be built to cook meat. Now this was striking right where the soldier felt it the worst what was a soldier worth if he did have n strong? A corporal was detailed from t camp and see that the order was obeyed.

that country at that time was to dig a hole wide enough to hold two camp kettles, a fire was started with pieces of cracker boxe were piled on, which made a very hot fire this occasion some of the men, determined the pit, made a fire, and then had it surround holding up blankets to hide what little light on fire till the coffee was about ready, w
——. "What does this mean; did you n General about the fire?" demanded the c one of the men, "but after this long march fee, and the Indians haven't seen us, either.
"To h—I wid your hot coffee; it's cold coff one master kick with a No. 10 army boot, kettle, contents and all, on to the smoulder very short time every enlisted man in ca and "cold coffee" was the word. Wherev would hear "There goes 'Cold Coffee'." forming line for march, some one started round of the line, and became so loud and ing general had to issue an order to have lenced on pain of arrest and punishment.
the time, but alas for the corporal. He v stuck long and fast. Wherever he was met Coffee;" and by no other name during the s enlisted men but "Cold Coffee." But this i

From the first of December, 1862, to th we put in the time at Camp Henderson. I averaged from three to ten inches deep; a that winter was quite mild, the river at D winter, and the ferry boat making her Whenever the weather permitted we were c received our horses our drilling was on 'ho talion and regimental; and also the manual o ber, so that by the time we were ready to le proficient in the tactics. The sutler did qui is coffee, and that hot and Company M to patrol the The mode of cooking in e in the ground long and nd about a foot deep. A es and then buffalo "chips" and not much blaze. On to have their coffee, dug nded by six or eight men there was. Things went, hen along came Corporal ot hear the orders of the rporal. "Yes," replied we wanted some hot cof-, so what harm is done?" fee you'll drink," and with away went the coffee- ing buffalo chips. In a mp knew of the incident, er the corporal went you " Next morning, while the cry, and it went the d long that the command- the obnoxious epithet si- This quieted it down at was named and the name. t he was greeted as "Cold ervice" was he known by s a digression.

the middle of March, 1863, Most of the time the mud, s it will be remembered Davenport being open all regular trips every day. drilled afoot, and after we orseback—company, bat- of arms including the sa- ave we had become quite te a flourishing business, as the boys were not so well posted in such matters as th later on. The nick-nacks kept by that worthy general drawing effect on the boys, and more so because there wa money in the hands of the men and they got no pay from t ment until they were mustered into the service. The h kept quite well filled up. The weather being damp, bad lung troubles prevailed to quite an extent, and all who had ously had the measles came down with them. And then ness followed in the wake, and quite a number succumbed

7

I will here digress enough to mention the case of boy about 18 years of age. He came from Vermont county to visit relatives, and while engaged in this pleas his cousin, Henry Clark, enlisted in Company L; and the of our young friend, Clinton Clark, warmed up to such a he too cast his lot in with us. He was a fine specimen American patriot—gentle as a woman, brave as a veter true and brave a heart as ever beat in a man's bosom. thousands and tens and hundreds of thousands of such filled of the great Union Army! Well, young Clark was take worse seemingly than many others, but the longing for t hills of old Vermont seized him, and although every effort him up and bring him out was made by his comrades wh him, it was of no avail. The home longing was too mu and his death being the first one in the company it caused sadness throughout the camp. Mr. Clark's parents had fied as soon as his sickness became at all serious, bnt they rive until after his death.

Quite a number of our men died here, and this, with ot among which might be mentioned the sour bread furn Davenport baker, the exceedingly tough beef, called b "breaking team," not getting mustered in, etc., caused a and at one time came near causing a riot or mutiny; things mellowed down. We were mustered, got our clo our arms, were assigned our horses, got our supply of g "brass," a ten-days' furlough to bid the folks good bye, well in hopes of soon being ordered to the front. But it blanket when the news came that the plains of Dakota were final destination. Adjutant General Baker's headquarte Davenport, and when he began to find that the boys were restless he made every effort in his that might arise. One day he and C camp and the General made us a nea men to be patient, attend to business selves clear of whisky, bad women a that soon we would be placed where v ernment, etc., etc., and introduced th good counsel and told us that the g predicament that a married lady who husband an heir, was in. She had phrenalia ready, but when the auspicious feelings, when instead of one little preparations only for one! So the tions for a big army, but it was so m that it took time to get ready for the a good effect in quieting down the im

But as an end comes to all things doubts. All that wanted to get furlough very few came back in good time. seasons of mirth and sadness; surmises and praising the officers; feeling that pany, the best quarters, the best of vice versa; until March 16, when we ings on each horse to load down two ple, Timothy Sullivan of L Company eyes a wonder to behold; and after through the streets of Davenport, to the great state of Iowa.

power to quell any uneasiness Governor Kirkwood came up to at little speech, appealing to the s, drill, etc., and to keep them- and other pernicious ways, and we could be of use to the gov- ne Governor who gave us some overment just now was in the was expecting to present to her d all the tiny clothing and para- cious day came, what were her stranger there were two, and government had made prepara- uch greater than they expected unexpected. The speeches had npatient feeling that was arising. gs, so it came to our surmising oughs, went home, and all but a So time passed, with alternate ngs as to our destiny; criticising at each man had the best com- fficers, the best horses, etc., or e packed enough of our belong- or three pack mules; for exam- y, whose outfit was to human r marching two or three times ook up our line of march across

ON THE MARCH.

March 16, 1863, was a fine day for the season of the men composing the Sixth Iowa Volunteer Cavalry that be around were around in good season. Some had to b on account of sickness, or disability but afterward caught Regiment was mounted, dressed in all the yellow of cavalry. The big men in front marched through the principal streets enport till about 11 a. m., we started westward, our destination Fort Randall, D. T., where we were to join the command Sully, to make an expedition against the hostile Indians against them. The troops under Sully were to make a junction with a command from Minnesota under Gen. Sibley, near Long D T. We had quite a long train of wagons—each company a wagon, headquarters three or four, besides a number of wagons loaded with supplies; each wagon drawn by six mules. The roads were dry and dusty and everything denoted a hard trip across Iowa. we made a march of twelve miles, crossing the river, stopping often to wait for the wagons, water got to camp at 4 p. m. We had a fine camp and enjoyed it. One of men deserted at this camp and stayed deserted. Lieutenants came into camp full of—well, whisky.

Tuesday, March 17 —At 9 a. m. we started down the river for three miles and struck west. It rained on us quite hard for three hours, but we went on, being protected by our blankets. The roads soon became so muddy that the mules, not being able to work, could hardly get the wagons through; but after a while, by hauling and getting up the bluff, we reached the farm of Mr. Chamberlain, where we encamped for the night. We had a fine camp, but owing to the state of the roads our teams did not get to camp till 11 p. m., and we fasted till that time—bad hash for men. We managed to make out a square meal of soft bread and butter. Roasted over the coals, the best way beef was cooked. Being damp, we did not feel very comfortable at night, but

ing new we did not experience as much inconvenience as might have been expected, and certainly not as bad as some nights we have passed in since.

Wednesday, March 18—This morning we did not get started till 11 a. m., and on account of heavy roads our teams made slow time, and of course that kept the command behind, but we finally succeeded in reaching camp at Summit, a station on the Muscatine railway, about seven miles from that city. When we reached camp the rain was drizzling just enough to keep everything uncomfortable. We got our tents fixed up, some supper and our horses corralled and we turned in for the night and managed to get considerable sleep in spite of the rain.

Thursday, March 19—This morning was awakened by the rain falling on our tents. We received orders to lay over today, and as well we did, as it rained all day and got quite cold at that, and there was no protection but our dog tents, and very little wood to make fire to dry us out. As many as could took shelter in the station house, but it was small and on account of the scarcity of wood we could not cook much, so, taking all things together it was not very encouraging.

Friday, March 20—The past night has been a stunner, and the worst or most disagreeable on our march across the state. Col. D. S. Wilson issued an order this morning that all soldiers whom the surgeons deemed unable to endure the march should go to Iowa City by rail. This measure was very acceptable to me, as I had just got up Sunday from a hard attack of lung fever and had it not been for the kind attention of my comrades I never would have pulled through. Among the many, D. Flinn, P. McNamarra, Theo. Sherman, and others were conspicuous. There were sixty of us sent by train. We arrived at the City at 2 p. m. and were quartered at the American and the Summit hotels, the latter being the hospital. The regiment got started at 11 a. m. and made one of the most disagreeable marches of that season. It rained, snowed, blowed and made mud all day. The horses' manes and tails were completely whitewashed with snow and frozen stiff, so they were as boards. But we got off and then came the tug of war. The mud was deep and stiff, the mules were green and unused to work, wore out, absolutely refused to submit to the gentle, persuasive expostulations of the mule-whackers, the pesky creatures not seeming to realize that it was a military necessity that they should get there. But we managed the matter by hitching the picket rope to the wagon tongue and the men riding up alongside and taking hold of the rope with one hand and guiding their horses with the other, they succeeded in getting them through where the representatives of the Southern Confederacy (the mules) had failed. But all things combined did not hinder us making a march of five miles and camped with the feeling that soldiering in Iowa was a soft thing, especially the muddy part of it.

Saturday, March 21—This morning we got off in good season. The weather had become a good deal settled, freezing hard and snowing some; the roads were solid, the air was cold, but more agreeable and more comfortable getting along. We made two miles and came to Cedar river; two companies got across and camped, the rest staying on the east side. The river was very high and only one ferry boat and a small one at that.

Sunday, March 22—As soon this morning as we could get into shape the crossing commenced and kept it up until they all got over, and made a march of four miles, camping in a hazel-brush thicket on the railroad.

Monday, March 23—The weather still continues favorable, the roads drying up so there is no difficulty in making a march of six miles. Everything looks cheerful. The men are in good spirits and even the animals seem to feel the inspiration—that not far ahead there is a place where a short resting place is waiting for them. Everything being in readiness, we got started and following a ridge road we made a march of thirteen miles, arriving at Iowa City (or a little below on the river) about 12 m., without encountering any serious obstruction; everyone in the command feeling as though they were repaid in a measure for the hardships they had come through. And really the hand of our Father was over us in an especial manner. During our journey His mercy attended us all the way, for we did not lose a man, had but very little sickness and lost but few horses and mules, while the same amount of exposure under other circumstances would have left many of our brave boys on the ground, or sown the seeds of disease that would have followed them through life. In fact it will not be a matter of surprise to me if in the future it will be learned that the disease which will make a man an invalid for life can be easily traced back to the march from Davenport to Iowa City in March, 1863.

Tuesday, March 24—Here we have a fine camp on the high and dry, and are assured by the Colonel that we will not be moved until our men and animals are well recruited. Men came to the regiment or the city every day by train till the number of convalescents was about one hundred, but they all kept improving in health, and the sick list was small considering all circumstances. I would say here that the citizens of Iowa City outdone themselves in caring and ministering to the sick soldiers, which demonstrated the fact that the spirit of patriotism in Iowa City was well exemplified, and highly appreciated by the sick soldiers in that city. We will just say that the near future Iowa City may be dearer to Company L than the present.

Wednesday, March 25—It took us nearly all day to get up so as to be any ways comfortable. Our camp was on the bank of the Iowa river in a strip of timber, which gave us wood and shelter; the ground dry and sandy, the weather fine. All the time we were in that camp were not molested by rain of any moment; and some. A few incidents only interesting to myself occurred.

Friday, March 27—Since last date we have done nothing but routine duty. Today we were ordered to prepare for inspection, which came off at 1 p. m. Arms and accoutrements were inspected by the Colonel and staff, at the close of which Col. Wilson commended us on our appearance and soldierly conduct.

Saturday, March 28—A camp day with an hour's drill and regular camp routine duty.

Sunday, March 29—This being Sunday, we figured on a rest, but were disappointed. The Chaplain gave us a discourse at 10 a. m. at 4 p. m. we saddled up and marched up to the city and then through the principal streets and back to camp at dark all tired out.

Monday, March 30—Today we drilled company drill in the forenoon. We went about two miles from camp, and drilled two hours, and in the afternoon went to the same place and drilled battalion drill two hours, had dress parade and went into camp.

Tuesday, March 31—Had rifle drill by Corporal Thomas. Afternoon we drilled battalion drill and had dress parade as usual. We were calculating that we would get a good chance to rest under the orders from headquarters disappointed us, as they gave us orders drill every day and soldiers do not feel that there is much rest in drilling; but I guess it was a good deal better than laying in camp all the time.

April 1—Went out this morning for company drill and in the afternoon for battalion drill. We got orders to march. There was quite a change made in our company officers. Lieut. Parke resigned on account of sore eyes and First Sergeant Coyl was appointed in his place. The Captain then made the following appointments for company officers: Sergeant Woodward was made First Sergeant, Sergeant Walling Second, Sergeant Perrin Third, Sergeant Wolstencroft Fourth, Corporal Drips Fifth, and Corporal Burhans Sixth. Corporals: Corporal Murphy First, Corporal Sawyer Second, Corporal Morse Third, Corporal Robinson Fourth, Corporal Hall Fifth, Private Duling Sixth, Private Thompson Seventh, and Corporal Watkins Eighth. This made our company roster full. We got all ready to start as well as possible on such short notice. Some of the men drew clothing and all got fixed as well as they could.

April 2—This morning we got off in pretty good season. It was a raw, cold morning inasmuch as overcoats were in good demand. We came up to the bridge opposite Iowa City and then started up the hill where we found an extensive ridge and I can tell you that the wind howled over it in a rather uncomfortable manner. We left James Havens and Lafayette Phillips in Iowa City sick. The former deserted afterward, taking with him considerable of Uncle Sam's property, among the rest one of his revolvers. The latter, after roaming around through the state came up with us at Sioux City. We passed Governor Kirkwood's residence which is no great beauty of a place, lying on the Iowa river. After we left his place we came on to another ridge which was as inhospitable as the one in the forenoon, but after traveling some sixteen miles and till 4 o'clock, we finally encamped on the same ridge where we were short of both wood and water. Here we had a very good night's rest.

April 3—Got up this morning and started at 7 o'clock. We marched seventeen miles, Company L being on guard, until about 1 o'clock, having come through a kind of rough country and encamped some two miles from Marengo, a town on the M. & M. R. railroad. It is a fine town. We did not make much ado in passing through the town; had a good camp, plenty of wood, water. We spent a very comfortable night.

April 4—This morning we started at 7 and made some twenty-two miles, arriving within a mile and a half at 4 in the afternoon. This is the terminus of the railroad not go on to the town. I suppose that they were afraid to go in on their "nerve" if they brought them too near. This is considerable of a town, being, as I said before, the terminus of the railroad. The depot is situated half a mile and I suppose that ere long it will be the best part of the town is the only thing to make the town.

April 5—Today we got orders to lay over in order also to enjoy the religious exercises, those who felt like it. The object was to load up our stores that had been shipped to Davenport by railroad. The Chaplain preached at 3 and had prayer meeting at 7 in the evening. There was detachment of six men and a corporal to report down at the depot to load up the wagons. They went down at 11 and worked till midnight. We had a fine warm day.

April 6—Started this morning at 7 and made a march of some miles, arriving in camp some four miles west of Grinnell at 4 in the afternoon. We passed through a fine country and a village called Jasper. Company C was on guard. We were welcomed with loud applause by the citizens of both towns who came through, especially the ladies.

April 7—Started this morning at 7, made a march of some miles, arriving in camp some two miles west of Newton, the seat of Jasper county, one of the good counties of Iowa, at 3 in the afternoon. We had a beautiful day for marching, came through splendid country. The town was quite lively and greeted us with lively cheering. In the evening our camp was visited by some of the ladies of Newton who gave us some splendid singing. We retired to their homes and we to our "shirt tail" tents.

April 8—Started this morning at 7 and made a march of some fifteen miles, arriving in camp at 3. We marched over a beautiful prairie today, but the timber was scarce. We camped in an old Secesh's hog pasture, but we made a pretty good fire, as he had considerable mowed oats that made a good fire and good feed for our horses the next morning. There and forage.

a march of
of Brooklyn
d. We did
id the boys
ar to town.
the present
e from town
town, as it

to rest and Another
rough from o'clock and iled a squad
o help load
about 10 at

h of twenty
4. It was and a little ere greeted ile passing

of eighteen
the county
at 3 in the through a ed us with about 150
g and then

h of seven-autiful rolled tonight
od thing of
ed at night
was plenty of seasoned wood which was not all there when we left in the morning. His poultry was also in good order for eating. Taking all things into consideration, I rather think he repented the next morning that he had been so mulish the night before, as he had offered Col. Wilson $50 rather than let him camp on his ground. He'll do.

April 9—This morning we started about 7 and came on through to Des Moines the capital of the state, a distance of thirteen miles. We passed through the city about 12 o'clock and went on five miles below. We had another fine day, the country a little more broken than what we passed over the day before. We had a very nice camp, it being in a body of pretty heavy timber and the water lying right across the road from the right of our lines.

April 10—Col. Wilson having received orders to muster his men on this day, we were ordered to lay over, which we did, and were mustered at 2 o'clock, for the purpose, I believe, of ascertaining the strength of the army. As I understand it this was the order all over the country wherever any of the army was stationed. Here two of our company who had gone home from Davenport reported back to the company—Corporal M. D. Watkins and Private Ira G. Preston. Here also two of Company deserted—Corporal Hall and Private W. Kirk—and have not as we believe ever been heard from. This was a very warm day.

April 11—Started this morning at 7 and made a march of twenty miles, arriving in camp on the east side of the river from Adell, the county seat of Dallas county, about 3 in the afternoon. We had a good camp, being right on the banks of the Coon river, and plenty of timber. We had a very rough day for marching, it blowing, raining and snowing all day. We marched over a good country, being high prairie, good water and wood.

April 12—Today according to orders from Col. Wilson we laid over and had religious services as follows: Preaching at 3 in the afternoon and prayer meeting at 7 in the evening. Organized a regimental association. The day passed off very pleasantly.

April 13—Got off this morning at 7:30 and marched some twenty-one miles and encamped on a small stream. Had a good camping place. Passed through several small villages. Fine country to travel over. Had a pleasant day.

April 14—Started at the usual time this morning and made a march of seventeen miles, arriving in camp at 1 o'clock. We camped on the prairie a mile west of a village called Lewis. Traveled over high rolling prairie all day with but little water in sight; not much water.

April 15—Started between 7 and 8 this morning on a march of eighteen miles and got into camp on Turkey creek. Company L on guard. We had a good camp. We traveled over a wide rolling prairie. This prairie is some forty miles long. We only passed two houses during the day. Sergeant Walling and I ate Leighty got passes to go and see some of their friends.

April 16—Started at an early hour this morning on a march of twenty-four miles over a prairie country, arriving at some three miles west of Lewis, the county seat of Cass County, Mo. 4 in the afternoon. We passed through a village called Lewis. Some five miles before we got into camp one of our men, a horse, began to sink in the mud. The horse began to sink off or partly so, and came near drowning. But as soon as he got to him, he made such a ludicrous appearance that the men began to help laughing at him; and it has furnished the foundation for many jokes at his expense ever since. Here we were met by some of the ladies of the city who treated us to some refreshment. I must confess that it was not the kind to please a soldier, but tidy.

April 17—Started this morning at the usual time on a march of twenty-two miles and encamped on the banks of the river. Travelled over a fine country and arrived in camp at 4 o'clock. It was a warm, windy day. Sergeant Walling reported that a company tonight and was put under arrest for being drunk.

April 18—Started early this morning and marched about 15 miles all day. It was a cold, windy day. Made a march of 15 miles, arrived at Council Bluffs and then went about 5 miles up the river from the city and encamped on the banks of the river. Our arrival in the city was welcomed by firing of cannon and demonstrations of joy which kind of revived us up after a long march of the day. We did not get down to camp till about 10 o'clock. We got into a pretty good place for a camp, being right on the banks of the river, willows and cottonwoods; plenty of wood and water.

April 19—This day, in accordance with orders we clock. We enalled Dalmenta.

t little timber in g, made a march

ek at 3 o'clock.
travelled over a miles wide. We talling and Priviends.

ing and made a rriving in camp
ss county, about
lled Grove City.
men went into a
and the man fell erious as it was e rest could not ation for a good re also visited me singing, but e the most fas-

me and made a
e Nishebotany.
at 2 o'clock. It
ed back to the absent without

ned over prairie
h of twenty-six ive miles up the Missouri river.
annon and other
ter the tiresome
ll dark, but we nt in a grove of ve laid over and had religious ceremonies as usual only the Chaplain got a minister from the city to come up and preach for him. His name was Clark. I believe he was a Methodist. It was a cold windy day, snowing some, but we had plenty of wood.

April 20—Laid over today. I don't know what the object was, but I guess to wait for our trains to come up, as the teams we got at Brooklyn had fallen behind some. We went and marched all through the town today and then back to camp. Had a very good view of the city. It is an active place, being the point for furnishing out trains to cross the plains to Pike's Peak and California. It was one of the liveliest places I have ever seen in Iowa—except McGregor. Nearly opposite our camp is Omaha city, the capital city of Nebraska. On a high bluff in plain sight is the capitol building—a splendid-looking building for a frontier.

April 21—Started this morning at 8 and marched up through the city again where we were saluted while passing through with one shot from the artillery for every company, which, with the rest they had excited our horses enough to make them feel like pulling on the bits pretty hard. Our course today most all the time was right along the Missouri river bottom, perfectly level; heavy timber close to the river and back fine land for cultivation. It was a fine day, cool but pleasant. Passed through one or two villages, one called Crescent City. We made a march of twenty miles and finally brought up on a stream called Boyer river. Here we had a splendid camp, right among large cottonwood and elm timber and little or no underbrush. In the evening after roll call we were startled by the cry of "Fire!" There was a squad detailed from every company to ascertain where it was. We found it on the bluff back of camp and coming down pretty fast. We made a charge on the enemy and completely routed him, horses, foot and dragoons. This being the first fight the Sixth has had, I think they did a pretty good thing of it. Some of our horses got into the river here and were drowned before they could be extricated.

April 22—Started this morning at the usual time. Passed through a town called Calhoun, watered and rested and then came on to the Little Sioux river where we stopped for the night, having made a march of twenty-eight miles, and over a beautiful country, being a splendid bottom and plenty of cottonwood timber. Had plenty of wood. There was a small village close called Little Sioux.

April 23—This morning we got off early and some twenty-eight miles and camped on the bottom water any ways near. Had a fine day for march try to march through. Passed through a town county seat of Monona county—a rather dry town.

April 24—Today we made about twenty miles a frog pond. There was a town close to camp noted for a female seminary. It is also called Se count of being the burying-place of Sergeants w many years ago. The spot of his grave is on points and is plainly seen from the town.

April 25—This morning we made our calculation destination tonight, so we got off at 6 o'clock and climbing the bluff and got up on to a dry, high road followed about nine miles and then came down on Sioux City, a distance of fifteen miles from our marched through the town and then went down river.

to our encampment

made a march of
without wood or hiding and fine coun-called Onawa, the

and camped on called Woodbury,
geants Bluff, on ac-
died here a great
one of the highest

ations to reach our
d soon commenced
dge, which we fol-
to the bottom at encampment. We n to the Big Sioux

IN DAKOTA.

Here we got ferried across and for the first time found ourselves outside of the United States and in Dakota Territory. Our camp situated on the point between the Missouri and Sioux rivers. It is a fine bottom skirted on each side with timber composed of cottonwood, although there is some soft maple and elm. Our camp was named in honor of our commanding General—Cook. It is about ten miles northwest of Sioux City, the county seat of Woodbury county and the headquarters of the Military District of Dakota. It is too early in calculation to lay over here for some time to recruit and fit up for an active campaign, as we can't go up much further till navigation on the Missouri is resumed.

Just a word here on the subject of the country through which we have passed. From Davenport to Brooklyn is a rough, broken country; from Brooklyn to Council Bluffs it is open prairie, very little timber, and the prairie broken, water plenty and good; from Council Bluffs to Sioux City is, in my opinion, the flower of Western Iowa—level prairie, plenty of timber and water; the Missouri bottom at some points is as much as ten miles wide. All the the drawback to it would be that of inundation.

April 26—Wet day in camp and a very dull one at that. It was so wet that we did not have the usual religious exercises.

April 27—Another dull camp day. The boys found an old Indian buried on a tree.

April 28—Another damp kind of a day but cleared off fine about noon, when we were all drawn up in line to have orders read to us by the Adjutant about drill, passes, etc. We were ordered to drill at 9:30 company drill; at 2 in the afternoon regimental drill, and drill parade at 4 in the evening. In regard to passes, no soldier was allowed to go across the Sioux river without a pass, and passes were to be given only when on government business. Commissioned officers had to have passes from their superiors before they could pass. What a small piece of petty tyranny. The Colonel made a shspeech for us in which he assured us that we paid between the 30th of April and the 10th April 29—Another splendid morning. and had dress parade.

April 30—This is the day set apart by ation and prayer. We had preaching at 3 pay at 10 o'clock.

May 1—Drilled in the forenoon. It co noon so we did not drill in the afternoon. o'clock as usual.

May 2—Had battalion drill in the forenoon 6:30; then watered horses.

May 3—Had our regular Sunday morning at 10 and prayer meeting at 7 in the Major's

May 4—Had saber drill at 9 o'clock was raining so we did not get out on battalion an hour and then had dress parade.

May 5—Had the regular drill today. V bake our own bread. We signed the pay coming soon. The Second Nebraska Cavalr Their tents are north of ours. They are to campaign.

May 6—Drill and dress parade as usual

May 7—The usual exercises today; another

May 8—Today the paymaster having co much to our gratification, never having been government from the time we were mustered

May 9—Had company drill in the forenoon instead of drilling we all went to the Sioux which was beneficial in the extreme. Two Renalds Craig and Tom Nicholson, desert horses and saddles, which they took up the r them turned the horses loose and threw the were also some two or three deserters from C Perrin, Corporal Murphy and Privates Light in pursuit.

May 10—Had the regular Sunday morning preaching by the Chaplain at 10 o'clock.

e would be mustered and h of May.

We drilled twice today

the President for humilio'clock. Mustered for ommenced raining about Had dress parade at 4

noon and dress parade at

ing inspection, preaching
s tent.

on horseback. At 2 it on drill, but later drilled

We are getting ready to rolls today, greenbacks ry arrived in camp today.
go along with us on our

l; fine day.

ther beautiful day.

ome we were all paid off, en paid anything by the ed.

oon and in the afternoon
x river and took a wash men from Company L, rted, taking with them
river some distance and saddles away. There Company M. Sergeant
nty and Hunt were sent morning inspection and Capt. Ames, Sergeant

—21—

Woodward and Sergeant Fuller started on a trip after des

May 11—Had the regular drill and dress parade. Se Drips was detailed with a squad of four men, Corporal Robins Privates Flinn, Caldwell and McNamarra, to hunt deserters had rations for two days and were ordered to take a southe direction. We started first to Sioux City and then from the went to Smithland, a small town on the Little Sioux river. It poor excuse for a town. We only found two houses on the and but one of them inhabited. That is a stage station, and t tance is forty-five miles. Not having seen anything of the ob our search we put up for the night at the only tavern in the plac

May 12—Started back this morning. My horse gave o had to pay the stage fare of one of the men back to Siou where we arrived at 5 in the evening. Here we learned the had caught the deserters over in Nebraska and had one of t jail at Sioux City. We went on down to camp and found squads back from our company none of them having hear thing from the deserters. The regiment had their drills an parade as usual.

May 13—Instead of drilling this morning we went o grazed our horses; then had company drill at 2 in the afterno dress parade at 4:20. The squad of men sent out by Com for hunting up deserters succeeded in bringing all in from the pany and from ours too.

May 14—Grazed horses and had regimental drill at 2
Nothing else occurred to mar the monotony of camp life.

May 15—Grazed horses. An order came for Capt. Am geant Woodward and Sergeant Drips to report at Sioux witnesses on a court martial. Went up, but was not called went to the Hagy house and put up.

May 16—The regiment had the regular exercises. Th martial was organized with Col. Pollock as umpire and Maj as judge advocate. Lieut. Scott had his trial today for drunk
We were ordered back to camp with orders to report bac Monday at 11 o'clock.

May 17—Had inspection this morning at 9:30 and prea 10:30. News came down from Fort Pierre that the hostile were making themselves obnoxious at that point, not having of Uncle Sam properly before their eyes. Maj. Ten Bro ordered to have his battalion ready to order was obeyed with a will, as the men camp so long at a time.

May 18—Packed up this morning 9 o'clock, and started up the river. No Arrived at Vermillion in good season, eight miles. Capt. Ames, Woodward City where we loafed around all day, had his trial.

May 19—The battalion started the river and came on to the Jim river. Continuing a march of thirty miles. Passed Land good, plenty of timber, and grass called up for trial, we were examined, laying in a few things for the journey. Cook, where we arrived at 9 o'clock, in the open air, our tents having all gone.

May 20—The battalion started the made a march of twenty-five miles, Homme, passing through Yankton, after taking breakfast with Mrs. Haley. Vermillion where we put up for the night in our squad. It was awful windy.

May 21—The battalion, after passing on a sand bank, got off in good season miles and arrived at Tackets, a trading Our party started pretty early and went where we put up for the night. We had

May 22—The battalion started in across a dry barren ridge, arriving at Fort Randall about 4 o'clock, and went where they encamped. Our party had our way through to Tackets Station, and we put up for the night. It rained on the First Battalion left Camp Cook today, but will not attempt to write much about the get up with us and we all act in concert.

May 23—Today the battalion was in the river, but the boat being small t march immediately, which or-had got rather tired lying in and got ready to march by 8 thing of importance occurred. having marched about twenty-d and myself went to Sioux neither one of our men having

s morning, crossed Vermilion crossed that and camped makthrough a settlement today. ood water. Our men being got our discharge, and after y we started back to Camp and made our bunk right out e with the battalion.

is morning pretty early and which brought them to Bon he capital of Dakota. We, started and went through to
ht. There were about thirty ng a very disagreeable night and made a march of twenty g post on Choteau Creek.

t on through to Yankton,
d an awful heavy rain.

good season and went right
the Missouri river opposite up the river some two miles ing had an early start made distance of forty miles, where s some during the day. The ut as I was not with them I m until such time as they all ordered to commence crossney made rather slow progress. One man from Company H was shoved off the

to the bottom. Having all his arms on he could not ex-s.vim, so he was drown'd. His name was Frazer, and Guttenberg, Clayton county. Company H did not Our party left Tackets early and came on to the Yanwhere we arrived about 11 o'clock, and then came on u-riving about 4 o'clock. Was a very warm day. The Y-cy is on the Missouri river about fifteen miles below dall.

May 24—Company L on guard today. After pu-round the boat to prevent further accidents, Compaacross and succeeded in all getting across and went into
of the Fort.

May 25—Company L crossed today. After we company was all over we found Corporal Caldwell, Clark and Pettit among the missing, and after comparfound they had skedaddled. Sergeant Drips, Corporal Privates Hunt, Scott, Lamphier and Prescho were started.
We got across the river and got three Indians to go with
We rode till 12 o'clock at night and then lay down and slept.

May 26—We were off at daybreak and rode over till 9 o'clock when Corporal Watkins, taking two men the direct road to Tackets, and I and the other two men dians took the direction of the Agency. Once here we ner and then started for Tackets, arriving there at 6 found the First Battalion here and Clark held a pris-the other party having found him trying to work his camp. They got their dinner and started on toward We got our supper and put up for the night. The In-the Agency.

May 27—We waited till 9 o'clock for our party started back. Came on to Choteau creek, grazed noon and they not coming up, we went on to the fort about dark. Here we found the First Battalion had turned Clark over to the Captain. The other boys got o'clock, not having found either of the others.

May 28—This morning we got off at 8 o'clock for Company E having crossed the river on Tuesday. W-

rugged bluffs of the Missouri and spread out before us was an extensive plain, rather barren looking. On that we made a march of twenty-five miles and encamped on Willow Creek, where we had good grass, poor water and not very plenty of wood. Saw no game of any kind. Company L was on guard. I with a squad of six men was on the advance. We had picket guards out at night.

May 29—Started pretty early this morning. Travelled over the same kind of high, dry and barren country we came over yesterday. Made a march of twenty-five miles and arrived in camp at 3 o'clock. We made our camp on Ponca creek, and had pretty good water, plenty of wood, but no grass. Here we had an alarm. Some one seeing Indians, or signs thereof, we were ordered to load our guns and if anything turned up to come out in front of our tents and "right dress." We saw some antelope today for the first time on our march.

May 30—Started this morning at 7 and travelled over the same kind of a country as before. We made a march of twenty-five miles and encamped on what is called Big Hole, or Devil's Hole. He we thought it was going to rain, but it ended in a big blow. We had plenty of water and wood, but no grass. Last night we slept first rate, not being disturbed by the Indians. Hope it will be so tonight.

Had a good night's rest, not being disturbed by any of the hostile bands of Indians. We started pretty early and made a march of fifteen miles. It was cool and windy today. The same dry, barren country as heretofore. Saw plenty of antelope; also some blossoms of the prickly pear. They were fine flowers. The appearance of the country indicated iron and stone coal. Our camp was made on White Earth river, a splendid running stream of water. We got in about 3 o'clock. Had a good camp.

June 1—Did not get started early this morning on account of it taking some time to cross the river, but we finally got started and travelled over high, dry, barren country as before. We made a march of fifteen miles and encamped on Medicine creek. Had good wood, bad water and grass. Company L on guard today. Corporal Murphy arrested for shooting a little antelope. We got into camp about 1 o'clock.

June 2—Got started this morning at the usual time, made a march of twenty-five miles and encamped on Cedar creek, where there was no water fit to use, it all being impregnated with alkali. No grass, plenty of wood. Got into camp pretty early. Some of the men brought in an antelope. Commissary Sergeant A. W. Hunt got quite badly hurt. While coming into camp at a pretty fast gait his horse stumbled or slipped into a wolf hole and threw him over his head. He fell with the butt of his revolver or the hilt of his saber under him. Hunt was pretty good weight and when he came down it meant something had dropped. As it was he was badly crippled for several days, riding in the wagon part of the time. Hope it will not permanently injure him, as Hunt is one of our best men.

June 3—Made a march of sixteen miles and stopped on the Little Missouri to wait for the wagons, and they not coming up soon we camped there. We crossed Antelope creek, a dry stream. The rest of the road was on a high, dry ridge. We had a good camp. Good water and wood, but no grass.

June 4—Started this morning and came seven miles, which brought us to Fort Pierre, arriving at 8 in the morning. Made our camp right below the fort. The fort is built on the bank of the river where there is neither wood or grass. It is built of cottonwood pickets sunk into the ground some three feet and stand some twelve feet above the ground, the buildings all being inside of the pickets. The buildings are the store, the storekeeper's house, barracks for a company of infantry, officers' quarters, and a bastion on two corners. We found here one company of the Forty-first Infantry, or rather the Seventh Cavalry. This is more of a trading port than a fort.

June 5—Started this morning and went down the river some three miles near where old Fort Pierre was in order to get grass and wood, but found that it was about as scarce as it was above. Company L on guard. There was a detail made from Company H to go down with the mail as an escort. Our days are pretty warm and nights cool.

June 6—This was a very windy day, the sand blowing in perfect clouds all around so you could hardly see. The mail started today, with its escort of ten men and a corporal and sergeant. Nothing of importance transpired in camp during the day.

June 7—Another dull day in camp, nothing going on to mar the usual routine of camp life.

June 8—Company L on guard. Sergeant Drips was sent in charge of a squad of men to prevent men from the steamboat liquor to the Indians. They did not attempt to do this and the was dismissed.

June 9—Was started on another expedition today of the character as the one yesterday, but the boat did not stop at the fort at all. It went right on to the other one, La Fromboy, which is some three miles above Pierre, and is of the same size and built in the same style. There was some of the Seventh Cavalry stationed here to guard the post. Here the boat landed and discharged a large amount of freight and was going to start out, but the lines were in the possession of about 400 or 500 Indian warriors. The Indians refused to let the boat go until the captain gave them a present, as he claimed that Gen. Harney had told them that every boat that came up the river would give them something. This the captain refused to do. The Indians then sent their squaws off to their tepees and showed every sign of armed resistance. Here Col. Pattee refused to sell the captain, instead of turning the military force upon them, he acceded to their demands, and as the captain had no force, he was compelled to do so, and came down by giving them some cracker and tobacco. Here was lost one of the finest chances for an Indian fight we had on the whole expedition through the cowardice, or lack of energy, or something else, of Col. Pattee, as all the other officers among whom none was more prominent than Maj. TenBroeck, were in for pitching in and clearing them out. And in the opinion of the writer of this, if we had had a fight with them there and made a good knock under, as we had such a splendid opportunity of doing, we would have had a good many less to have encountered at Vermilion Stone Hill, as a good many of the men that were in this scrape were recognized in the conflict up above. It would be superfluous to say that the boys of the Second Battalion, as well as the boys in the other regiments, begged for the opportunity of turning the "bull dogs" on them—very anxious for the fray.

June 10—Another dull camp day, nothing going to mar the monotony of the scene except the talk occasioned by the affray of yesterday and moving our tents a little.

June 11—Started this morning on a battalion graze, but did not find much grass. I guess the officers who found it out the day before had green spectacles on. We returned and had dress parade.

June 12—This was a very warm day and we were ordered pack up for another march. Went down the river some two miles and found good grass and a pleasant place for camping although some ways for wood.

[A scouting party left Fort Randall on the 12th, an account of which will be given here.]

TO THE DIRT LODGES.

HEADQUARTERS FORCES IN FIELD, DEPT. N. W., NEAR FORT RANDALL, D. T., JUNE 11,

CAPTAIN:

Sir:—You will detail from your company, D, Sixth Iowa Volunteer Cavalry forty (40) to be commanded by yourself, to be by twenty (20) men commanded by Lieut. E. H. Gaylord, of company G, Sixth Iowa Volunteer Cavalry, at 7 a. m., June 12, to be ready to cross the Missouri on the ferry boat at Fort Randall, D. T. The men will be armed complete. They will be furnished 12 rounds of ammunition for their revolvers and with 20 rounds for their rifles. The men will be furnished with 12 days' ration, of which they will carry in their haversacks and the remainder of the transportation will be supplied for. To be ready to move to the north side of the Missouri river against the Indians at Dirt Lodges on James river, at 1 p. m. of June 12, 1863, without tents and necessary luggage. This expedition to be under command of Capt. T. W. Burdick, Sixth Iowa Cavalry. You will take 3 pack saddles with pack saddles and other paraphrenalia. When you return to the Dirt Lodges you will cross the Firesteel ten miles from its mouth where you will be met by a detachment proceeding from these headquarters with provisions for your command. You will return to these headquarters as soon as the proper care of the horse and stock in your command will permit.

By order of

S. M. POLLOCK,

Lieutenant-Colonel Commanding

W. A. HEATH, Acting Adjutant.

To Capt. T. W. Burdick, Company D, Sixth Iowa Cavalry.

In obedience to the foregoing order a command of 60 men well mounted and fully armed left the north bank of the Missouri river opposite Fort Randall under command of Capt. T. W. Burdick at 1 p. m. June 12, 1863, for the Dirt Lodges on James er, about 200 miles Fort Randall, where the Sioux Indians were reported to be in rendezvous. Capt. Burdick secured a Yankton Indian known as "Left Hand," or "Red Grass," as guide. Rapid march was made and the day before Dirt Lodge was reached a small band of roving Indians was discovered. There were but seven in the party. Capt. Burdick ordered a squad under command of Quartermaster Sergeant Miller to advance upon them. This was done on the gallop and as the Indians were approached they opened fire and attempted to escape. Sergeant Miller opened fire on them and they immediately surrendered. They were taken prisoners and taken with the command to the Dirt Lodges. They expected there would there be found a large force of hostile Sioux Indians.

On arriving at the Lodges it was discovered that the Sioux had arrived there, had planted their corn and had left for the Missouri river or country west. The prisoners were then interrogated and compelled at the risk of their lives to disclose what they knew or believed as the movements of the Sioux. They discovered and revealed the trail from the Dirt Lodges westward, and it was taken by Capt. Burdick and his command to Medicine Lake, about fifty miles, in the hope of coming up on them. No discovery of the Indians was made and the rations on hand would not permit their longer pursuit. Capt. Burdick broke camp at Medicine Lake and struck for the crossing on the Firesteel where supplies were to be sent. This point was reached and a detachment from Fort Randall found there with supplies.

This scout was made into the Indian country and was considered extremely hazardous for so small a command. Capt. Burdick was much disappointed in not finding the Indians at the Dirt Lodges. Every man in his command was eager for a brush with the Indians and considered themselves good for at least 300 warriors.

On return to headquarters near Fort Randall Capt. Burdick turned over the prisoners. They were examined and gave such an account of themselves that they were released by Col. Pollock. The command marched over 400 miles on this scout.

This account was given me by the Captain. The scout was considered by all a risky piece of business, but Capt. Burdick, although not one of the b'ustery kind, would have shown the hostiles some things the had not reckoned on had he met them at the Dirt Lodges.

CAMP }
t, 1863. }

va Volun-
be joined
of Com-
, 1863, to andall, D.
shed with ounds for ions, four remaining move from rt Lodges
nd all un-
of Capt.
ck horses
urn from its mouth
ese headreport at orses and ck,

g in Field.

So picked
the Mis-
pt. T. W.
ames riv-

NEAR FORT PIERRE.

June 13—Had an awful windy day, but warm was on guard. Nothing of importance occurred.

June 14—Had a very warm day, nearly suffocating. Turned out our horses early in the morning and let them have a chance of going to water at will.

June 15—We made another move of camps, miles above Fort La Fromboy, and camped on a ridge on the Big Muddy, the wind blowing the sand every where.

June 16—Another windy day. Had to have a turn out today, as we turn our horses out. It is three months since we were at Davenport.

June 17—Another warm day. Nothing of importance occurred more than usual.

June 18—Maj. TenBroeck went out today to hunt and accidentally shot himself in the arm. Got him back to camp. It is one month since we left Camp Cook, Pierre.

June 19—Went out this morning and grazed our horses five miles from camp. We got our mail in and had a turn out which was welcomed by all.

June 20—Another warm day and a lonely day with our horses out grazing some five miles from camp.

June 21—Company L on guard today. Capt. A. to furnish an escort for the mail to start tomorrow.

June 22—This morning was ordered to turn out a party of ten men—Houlard, Depue, Hunt, Lamphere, Nelson, man, Wheeler, Weedo, Presho and Scott—as a mail escort. Started, got the mail at Pierre about 10 o'clock and went to Little Missouri where we grazed and then went on to camp and cooked supper. Then we went on some eight miles and laid up for the night right out on the prairie.

June 23—Started early and came on to Medicine Lake for breakfast. Laid there till 2 and then we came on to and took supper; then came on to White Earth river and camped in the safest place we could find.

June 24—Started this morning after breakfast and came on to Big Hole creek. My horse gave out here. We laid till 3 and then went on up the creek some nine or ten miles and camped. Some of our horses stampeded and James Hunt saw an Indian.

June 25—Started this morning at a pretty early hour and made a pretty long march, coming through to a creek some seven miles north of Willow creek. We arrived at 9 o'clock at night. Scott's horse gave out and the rest were tired.

June 26—Started early and came on to Willow creek, and watered; then came on to Sulphur Springs and fed, and then came down to Fort Randall, arriving at 6 o'clock. Here we got into Col. Pollock's tent, drew our rations, made some other preparations, and then retired and enjoyed a good night's sleep.

June 27—This morning went round and looked after things a little. Got some corn for our horses. We found here the First Battalion of the Sixth, Company A and Company K on this side of the river and Company D and Company G on the other side. We had our horses out grazing.

June 28—This is a beautiful morning. We had some of our horses out grazing and the others were getting shod.

June 29—Drew rations today to do us on our march up and corn for our horses and about 11 o'clock we got started and went as far as Sulphur Springs and stopped awhile; then went on about half a mile and camped for the night. A number of the boys were sick.

June 30—Started at 6 and made a march of twenty-five miles and encamped on a stream called Spring creek. We got in about 11 o'clock and laid up for the night. Here we had a heavy dew, something new in this part of the world.

July 1—Started this morning at sunrise and came to Eight Elms, and took breakfast; then came on to Ponca creek, took dinner, and then came on to the first crossing on Big Hole creek and camped. The night was cool.

July 2—Started this morning pretty early and made a march of fifteen miles. Took dinner and then came on to White river and camped for the night.

July 3—Started this morning at 6 and came on to Medicine creek, took dinner and then came on to Cedar creek, arriving at 9

Company L

ing. Here we run till night, as going some two ular sand bank

hape.

horse guard out
s since we left

rtance occurred

ant pasture and as far as Fort
or Sioux City.
ur horses some good large one,

n camp. Was

mes got orders

nd take charge
amarra, Sher-il escort. We ame on to the o Cedar creek
nine miles and

creek and took
some ten miles

o'clock. Here a rather amusing incident of something to laugh at a good while after. Just away to the northwest a large fire which was driver to be a signal fire of the Indians. On turn it was to go on guard that night was taken and was not fit to take his post. He may have been were just uncharitable enough not to believe him but we stumbled on to some good grass but quite a shower on us, but we were not much vexed had been very dry. We got no supper that night.

July 4—This morning we were astir pretty one of the horses had got loose and stumbled on was pretty strong with alkali, but being boiled full of coffee which all enjoyed first rate after breakfast. Then we got off and had one of the hardest marches a dry, barren ridge, and very hot and not a drop of water to quench our burning thirst. But we reached the Little Missouri at 2 o'clock, tired, thirsty and coming along where the Indians had been the tracks of their ponies, as it had rained during gulch that runs down to the Little Missouri tremendous rain, and masses of earth that would were torn out. After resting and bathing awhile we per and started for Fort Pierre where we arrived at night. On our arrival we found that the boys had camped some time. Here we followed the river down to the river again, and found the boys as comfortable as soldiers well could be, considering the places under which they were placed. They had

July 5—This morning we started the mail sutler's wagon. Went on to the upper fort, got started, after leaving Privates Scott, Wheeler and to take care of the three horses that had given out struck right up the bluff and then across an escarpment for about fifteen miles, then back to the river where the boys had camped some time. Here we followed then climbed the bluffs, followed the ridges and down to the river again, and found the boys as comfortable as soldiers well could be, considering the places under which they were placed. They had occurred that gave us

t before dark we saw declared by the stage
one of our men whose taken suddenly very ill been sick, but some
m. It was very dark no water. It rained
exed about that, as it ght.

ty early and to our joy on to some water. It down we got a kettle
asting the night before.
arches of the trip, over p of water in our can-severed, and reached nd hungry. We saw night before by the g the night. On the
there had been a tre-
weigh a ton or more ile here we took sup-rrived at a little after attalion had left their aking our horses about boys camped for the

ail up to camp in the got our breakfast and
and Lamphere behind out on the route. We extensive barren plain where we found the
wed the river awhile, awhile and then came tled among the trees
dering the circumstan-
a beautiful camp, being right on the Missouri river, bottom grass about six or ei ches hi h, scattering trees of cottonwood made a fine shade water close and easy of access. It was very hot. We got in a 2 o'clock and were heartily welcomed back.

Here I will relate a circumstance that happened just before went down to Randall. The particulars are about like this: A geant from the First Battalion went out after horses and run a an Indian who he said drew a bow on him. He came back to and reported to Col. Pol'ock, who immediately started Comp G and K to look them up and bring in an account of them. C Moreland with Company G went out to Ponca creek and found seven or eight Indians. He took them prisoners, put a guard them and went on with the rest of the company to hunt up s more. While they were gone, the soldiers said the prisoner tempted to escape and the soldiers fired on them, killing all but
and he was so badly wounded that he died shortly afterwards.
Indians after they found they were betrayed fought like tigers, superior numbers soon trod them down.

During the absence of the squad detailed to guard the mail tween Old Fort Pierre and Randall the battalion moved up the fifteen or eighteen miles and camped in a timber nook. They h good camp, with wood, water and grass, and enjoyed themse hugely. Far enough away from the forts to hear no hostile In reports and as no mail came there was no news in camp except v sprung up in some one's imagination and told to see what effe would have. And it is strange that some of these improbable y were fully believed, the listener not taking time to reflect that narrator had no opportunity of hearing such news. Of course t was a sufficient guard out, but aside from this, and dress par military discipline, poker, and euchre were indulged in as past And thus the days passed in the timber camp until the mail c back laden with messages from the absent ones back in Iowa.

July 6—Was spent soldiering in camp, nothing being d Lamphere and Scott got back to camp.

July 7—Another dull camp d: y soldiering.

July 8—This was a very hot day. One of the men ref to go on guard and we tied him up to a tree. He succeede coming to a sense of his duty. We got orders to move tomorr

- July 9—Go: up at 3 and fixed up ready to march by 5.

started down stream, went some ten miles evening. Then we went on down the river and got lost several times, but finally brought us to Fort Pierre. We turned our horses out and we could.

July 10—Everyone being pretty tired, all day. Was quite cool.

July 11—Another dull day in camp; no hot. Got orders to move up to upper camp.

July 12—Packed up and started up to Peoria old camp. Company B crossed the river.

July 13—Got up early this morning crossed the river. Made a short march and about dark. We had to move on account of rain or so and camped for the night.

July 14—Started this morning and went some miles and camped again.

July 15—Another fine day. Our camp on the river. We have our tents all fixed up and are very comfortable, except the weather. In the evening of the 13th we thought the whole of it and hence the necessity of moving our camp. No grass here.

July 16—Another fine day, very warm. Many of our men sick with "Dakota quickstep."

July 17—Another very warm day. Notice the monotony of the regular routine of camp life.

July 18—Today we were ordered out to Peoria for the benefit of our health, in order to give us exercise. It was a hot day. Had a shower in the night.

July 19—Laid in camp all day, it being hot. We have picket and camp guards both here and there.

July 20—Got orders to move today. Started at 1:30, got down to old camp Peoria and all pitched by sundown. More of the men were sick. The day was warm and fine.

July 21—Another fine day for soldier drill in the morning.

July 22—Another warm day. Three and laid over till 5 in the

and travelled till 1 o'clock.
p at the old camp below
bunked down as well as a good many slept nearly thing to do. Was pretty erre and then up to our

and got on the boat and camped at Camp Peoria fire and went up a mile

up the river some three is some eighty rods from with willows so that they is very warm. On the

the bottom was on fire,
We have plenty of good

Some three or four of

nothing transpired to mar life.

drill on foot for the ben-
e. This has been a very ng Sunday. Very hot.

Got all packed up and
at 3 and had our tents down with diarrhoea. It

ng. Had a short saber

steamboats came down

today. One of them had a fight with the Indians and lost four Some of them was for going right past, but they fired one or two across ahead of them and made them lie to. The infantry that across the river at Pierre and La Fromboy are brought ov guard the stores left here by the boats that come up.

July 23—Another dull camp day. Our company, L, wa guard.

July 24—Still the same dull routine. No word from brigade.

July 25—We had the scene varied some today the arrival o Third Battalion of our regiment along with the General and his and Company I of the Seventh Cavalry, who compose his guard. We are now looking for an onward move as soon as p ble. They brought in a large mail for us stationed here.

July 26 Had our regular religious services today. It is first time we have had our Chaplain with us since we left S City.

July 27 There was a fire broke out north of the camp to
It took some pretty sharp work to get it extinguished. It b over quite a lot of our pasture ground.

July 28—The First Battalion came up today and made camp right north of ours. The Second Nebraska Cavalry cam within twelve miles of our camp and camped. The Belle P went down today and took our mail. The two boats brought visions for 2,500 men thirty days.

July 29—Another dull camp day. Nothing transpired to the regular routine of the day. It was very warm.

July 30—Had a fine day, rather too warm, but not quite as as it has been. Spent most of the time as usual speculating a our future movements.

July 31—Drilled this morning from 8 till 9:30, which gave good degree of exercise.

August 1—We had a drill today in the forenoon, about hour and a half. Had quite a fire in Company B's quarters.
burnt revolvers, etc., amounting to considerable.

August 2 Had inspection at 9 o'clock; at 10 preaching;
Bible class; at dark, prayer meeting. So passed the day.

August 3 Got orders to move this morning. Part of horses were out and after hunting them up we got started about

Came up the river some eight or nine piece above Harney's old camp. It was quite a distance from the water. Harney and Watkins returned with Ira Preston, Peoria. He found him about half way to Creek.

August 4—This was a very hot day. We were up with brush so as not to feel the effects of the sun. Would have been better if we would have done. Was roused up last night and had to get up and send out a detachment which made it bad for our horses, but it was so it did not matter much to any but the horses.

August 5—Another very hot day. The monotony of camp life.

August 6—Still another hot day. Moved our camp still farther from the river from the south today.

August 7—Another warm day and quite a hurricane.

August 8—Got round this morning. Put our horses in pasture down to Harney's old camp. The Indians are in force 100 miles above us.

August 9—Had inspection at 9 o'clock. Preaching at 7 by the chaplain, which was very pleasantly.

August 10—As usual another day.

August 11—Sergeant Woodward was summoned as witnesses on a regimental court martial and others for desertion, but on account of being sick the court martial was adjourned and returned.

August 12—Got orders today to move. Frequently the whole camp was in an uncomfortable position so as to take only such things as were necessary. Gen. Sully had promised to show us some of the country but we got back and we did not want to have any more branches.

e miles and encamped a little ad a good camp, only it was ad plenty of wood. Corporal who had deserted at Camp ay between Peoria and Crow

ay, but we had our tents fixed ects as much as we otherwise t night by an alarm of fire and
l. It was burning the grass,
t did not come near our tents,
those who had to put it out.
r. Nothing happened to mar

. Branded our horses and ood and water. Got a mail nd in the evening it blew up ng in good health. Had our d camp. The report is that e.

o'clock, Bible class at 2 and made the day pass off very

y spent in masterly inactivity.
and Corporal Watkins were l court martial to try Ira Pres-count of the Judge Advocate urned till after the expedition

march on tomorrow, conse-
usual stir in packing up their long as it was necessary, for me Indians to fight before we ave any unnecessary incum-

THE EXPEDITION.

August 13—This morning, being fixed for start early and by 7 were ready to march. It was a fine prospect of continuing so. Only our regiment st camp, the others being below with the General. V Duling and Privates Hazlett and Walker at the h Peoria. We marched over a dry, barren ridge with ance of water till about 12 o'clock when we came on t having marched some eighteen miles. Here we fo of the brigade. Thus ended our first day's march o pedition.

August 14—Did not get started this morning til of the brigade not getting together, but finally we go following order:

The advance guard, which was one of the com
the Sixth Iowa or the Second Nebraska.

The General and his staff, and his body guard,
the Seventh Iowa Cavalry.

The battery, of five mountain howitzers.

The train in two files. On the left flank was braska and on the right flank was the Sixth Iowa.

In the rear of the wagons came the ambulances all was one company detailed as rear guard.

The advance and rear guards were generally regiments. The advance guard was the picket guard the rear guard was the train guard. Besides this guard, which was made by each regiment for itself.

the camp at night and rode in the rear of the regiment in daylight and guarded prisoners. This was generally composed of one line officer of the day, one officer of the guard, two sergeants, three corporals and twelve privates. The whole brigade was under the charge of a field officer of the day. The picket guard was stationed three men on a post, one corporal in charge of two posts and one sergeant of four posts. We generally camped just in the same position we marched. This much description will suffice for the whole march as it was about the same all the way through.

We got out of the ravine and marched some eight miles and stopped to graze on a high, dry ridge. The order was to rest every two hours. We started again, made about eight miles further and encamped on the bluffs of the Missouri where we found no wood, no grass, and very poor water. We cooked with buffalo chips. It was very cold during the day, but at night there came up a wind from the north that nearly suffocated us with the heat. It was just as though it blew off a heated oven. We had a good night's rest.

August 15—Got started this morning at 8:30 and came on to a creek where we found good grass and water, and we rested quite awhile. Then we started on and made a march altogether of about fourteen miles and came down on to the Missouri river at the mouth of the Little Cheyenne river. It was very warm. We got into camp about 2 o'clock. A boat came up from Peoria with stores. This is a beautiful place, a fine bottom. The Cheyenne is about dry, but on digging down we found splendid water. We moved down on to the bottom with our kitchen machines and had a fine place to cook and eat, and plenty of good wood.

August 16—Laid over all day. It was very warm and windy. Had the same hot wind that visited us the Friday night before. We got a mail on the boat that come up and we made up quite a return mail as it was the last chance we had of sending back.

August 17—Another very warm day with the wind blowing as hard and as hot as ever. We got orders today to pack up everything we could spare, so as to make the load as light as possible for our horses. Most of our Battalion packed up their tents, overcoats and all extra luggage that we could spare and sent them back on the boat. The rest of the brigade retained their tents and overcoats, which proved to be wisdom in the end.

August 18—Another awful hot day. It rained some during the night, but not enough to amount to anything.

August 19—We had an awful storm of thunder, lightning and rain. Went up to see the great stone. It is a large flat stone with some tracks on it, three foot tracks and one hand track. They are sunk the whole depth of the foot in solid rock. It is supposed that it is an altar of Indian worship. The boys found a great many Indian trinkets, beads, etc. The Belle Peoria came up today with other stores, which looks as if we were going to start soon.

August 20—Got orders to start today, so we got all packed up with four days' rations of corn in sacks to carry on our horses. We got all saddled up and ready to start except the General, his staff and the battery, which was not fixed up as yet, when the sky darkened up and looked very portentous, indeed. It still came blacker and blacker, and louder and louder roared the thunder. But we were not kept long in suspense. The rain soon began to come, and come it did with a vengeance; and it not only rained, but it poured. Some of the men for protection fled to the shelter of the trees and the banks of the Cheyenne, but this soon proved an abortive measure, as the sequel will show. After raining about an hour it commenced to hail and oh, such hail! This continued for about an hour, the stones flying as thick as hail generally falls and the size of the stones was about, on an average, the size of a pigeon's egg; some of them a good deal larger, even to the size of a hen's egg. I tell you, when they came down on a poor soldier's pate it was unpleasant in the extreme. It made the horses come to Limerick, as a good many of them became unmanageable, and broke loose from their masters to seek refuge from the wild fury of the elements. To say that the regiment was thrown into confusion would poorly describe the state of affairs. The Nebraska regiment was on higher ground and their tents were not struck, so they were not in such a bad plight as we were. An hour after the storm commenced our camp ground was from six inches to three feet under water. The men and horses scattered in every direction wherever any protection from the storm could be secured. The teams too were all in readiness for departure when the storm came up. Some of them got across the Cheyenne before the rain came, but others that attempted the same thing afterward were tipped over and the contents of the wagons out in the middle of the stream. The Cheyenne, from a dry stream rose in one hour to the depth of twelve feet, rushing and sweeping everything before it, and the temporary bridge erected the day before to cross the brigade on was swept away. So suddenly did the flood come up that some of the men who had taken refuge under its lowly banks had scarcely time to get out before it overtook them; some of them did not even have time to secure their luggage, and was all swept away in the flood. Matters standing thus, it being impossible for us to move any further that night, so we got our arms and stuff gathered up and stuck ourselves wherever we could find a place that was not deluged, dried our blankets and clothing as best we could and lay down and slept as well as we had done any time on the march. Thus ended one of the most terrific storms ever witnessed by any one in the command.

August 21—Got up this morning and the first order was to send a tail of a fatigue squad to build a bridge and as soon as it was accomplished we moved. This was about 12 m. our regiment only started at this time. We marched around about fifteen miles and brought up again on the Little Cheyenne about six miles from where we started. We found a splendid place for a camp, plenty of wood, water, grass, and grass, too, that the horses liked, as it was the good buffalo grass. The hail storm had cooled down the air so that it made it fine for traveling, but rather cool for sleeping. The rest of the brigade came in some time in the night.

August 22—Did not get started very early on account of getting kind of out of shape some by the storm, but we finally got away by 11 a. m., Company K was advance and Company L rear guard. We found the rain and hail of the previous day had made an obstruction in the road, none of the best, either, as we had to help the horses out of the mud several times during the day. Good grass and water on the road. We only made a march of nine miles and camped about 5. Camped on a small lake or pond. Good water and good grass. No wood, but we had obviated that by bringing with us from the other camp.

August 23—A pretty cool morning to start on, but we got away about 6:30, made a march of twelve miles and camped on a place called Bull Run. It was very cold and disagreeable all day. We got down on the creek bottom out of the wind to cook. Saw of wild hops, morning glories, burvines, etc. The Nebraska boys run down and killed a buffalo bull, hence the name.

August 24—Got off this morning at 5:30, made a march of twenty miles and camped on Sandy creek. Had a pretty cold day, but not as much so as yesterday. Company E killed a buffalo today. Depue brought in an antelope. Our route lay over a dry, rolling prairie, goodgrass. Had good water and wood, but no grass. Had a good camp.

August 25—Started this morning pretty early, made a march of twenty miles and camped on a kind of a lake and had wood, water and grass. The most of the country over which we passed resembled lake country, but all dried up. The report is that we will have to come down to three-fourths rations. Today was the first buffalo of any amount that we have seen. The boys got leave from the General and pitched into them pretty steep, bringing in about twenty-five. As soon as one was killed a team was sent out after it, so that by the time we got into camp our buffaloes were there too, and they were issued out to us instead of the regular "sow-belly" and beef. We had a pretty good feast. The meat is good. The hump, I believe, is called the best part of it. It is rather coarse, but better than any beef Uncle Sam furnished, and very healthy, too, as one of our men could amply testify if questioned.

August 26—Left this morning in good season. The buffaloes were very plenty and the boys had some seven or eight killed before 8 o'clock. The prairie appeared to be covered with them. The men broke out in every direction and gave them chase and the excitement became intense. Four or five of them run right into the front of our column, which was a signal for a general rush. The firing became general and indiscriminate. One Lieutenant got so excited that he shot his own horse through the neck and several other horses were shot, and at least one was left on the ground dead. One yearling calf got so bewildered as to run right into one of the wagon wheels, and a captain killed it with his saber. The slaughter became so reckless that the General gave an order stopping the killing, as the animals were just shot and left lying on the prairie. Lieut. Coyle was reprimanded for shooting after the order was issued, but it was hard to resist the temptation. The General sent out some scouts today who brought in an Indian squaw. She informed them that Gen. Sibley had been up there and had had several fights with the Indians and had defeated them, and scattered them in all directions and that there were 500 or 600 lodges of Indians encamped along the river putting up meat for winter use. We traveled over a nice country with good grass. We made a march of 10 miles. Had water on the road. Did not get into camp till night. When we came down we thought we were close to Missouri, but it proved to be Beaver creek where we can make a good camp, good water, wood and grass.

August 27—The bugle sounded at 4 and we got up our horses out and left them till 12 when we started once more on a march of ten miles over a rough, broken country and ended at the same stream. Had good grass and water, but not much wood. It was very cold.

August 28—Started this morning and made a march of 10 miles over a high barren country. Crossed one large river running towards the Jim river. Sent out some scouts to look after them. We sent out some Wednesday with only one scout. They have not returned as yet. The scouts returned in the evening and brought in an old blind, crippled Indian, who was left by his comrades to die on the prairie. He had been killed in Sibley's fight. He corroborated the story that the squaws told in the other day, told. The General has determined to go on and see if there is any truth in the stories. We got in camp at 6 o'clock. Encamped on the outlet of Long lake. Good water and grass.

August 29—Got orders to graze horses till further orders. Sent out Companies B and F of the Sixth to scout. They crossed the Apple river, some thirty miles from where we were camped. One of them crossed the river and found where Gen. Sibley had been. They found some guard details as late as the 27th of August. The name of the camp was Slaughter. They had thrown away their arms and it really looked as if they were impressed with the idea that the Indians were trying to do something. The boys were out in the night and reported what they had found. The scouts were out on Wednesday returned and reported that they had seen no late signs of Indians. They had subsisted on buffalo meat and a few other things during their absence. Our scouts having returned we got our orders to be ready to move the next day.

August 30—We had orders to get wood as probable

l directions,
ped on Jim ver a pretty
f thirty-five mp till after ming to the
ped. Had

and put our re and made ncamped on uch wood.

ch of twenty Indian trail
oday to look
e day's pro-
etained this no had been wounded in aw, brought o over there
mp about 4
wood, water

orders. We ney went to
ped. Some
d encamped.
July. The
up enbank-
with the idea
ys got back scouts sent
d found no
at as a gen-
all got in we

ly we would not let any for some time. We got it fixed up and started on an eastward course about 8 o'clock. We made a march of twenty miles and got on to the shores of a beautiful lake about 5 o'clock. The water was not good, being strongly impregnated with alkali. Had good grass, but no wood and we found buffalo chips to cook with. Some of the men found two dead Indians, supposed to have been wounded by Sibley's men and got out that far and died. It was very warm.

August 31—Had some considerable trouble in getting started, but finally got off on a southeasterly course. The road was a very rough one. We made a march of fifteen miles and encamped on a splendid bottom where we found plenty of good grass and two or three springs of water which was the first we had found in Dakota. No wood. This being the last day of August we were mustered for pay. Company L formed the picket guard that night.

September 1—There were fifteen or sixteen buffaloes run right through our camp this morning. We got off at 7, travelled a southeasterly course over a splendid bottom all day and camped on Long lake. Alkali water, good grass, no wood. Made a march of twenty miles. It was quite cool all day.

September 2—Got started at 6:30 and made a march of twenty miles over a rough country. It was quite cool. Got into camp about 2 o'clock. Good grass and no wood. Very cold at night.

WHITE STONE HILL.

September 3--Got off this morning at 7. I sent out the Third Battalion with the exception of Company H of the Second went out on a scout. They struck out east of the route we travelled about twenty miles over a rough country about 2. Our camp was on Long lake. Had good but no wood. About 5, just after we had got supper a messenger came in from the scouts informing the General on to an encampment of Indians, they supposed a

The Major went up to the lodges and told the Indians and invited them to make some kind of an agreement camp with him. At first they concluded to send a detachment of warriors over to the camp, but he saw the squaws for a march and concluded that they only wanted to be dispatched a messenger to Gen. Sully. The buck said they could easily clean out his troops, but he kept him so that he could move in any direction he saw fit.

As I said before the messenger came in about 5 "saddles" was immediately sounded and in less than an hour we were at the Indian camp. We found that they had skinned the horses very far off. The Third Battalion was sent out in a line to treat the foe and the First Battalion and the Nebraska men in pursuit. They caught the Indians in a ravine, the Third on one side and the Nebraska men on the other. The First Battalion was left as a reserve. We had hardly got on the hill there was a lot of the Indians corralled as prisoners. The Third put around them and the battery was planted right at the foot to cover the prisoners and also to come down on the men if they attempt to make their escape in this way.

We had barely got in position when the ball was fired by the Nebraska boys which was followed by the Indians of

Some of the Sixth went into the ground with their arms unloaded, whose fault it was remains to be seen yet, as I do not lay blame to any one. The firing continued pretty brisk for some half hour or so, but before this it had got so dark that it was hard to distinguish between friend and foe, but at length the firing ceased and the Indians managed to make their escape by some means. We were ordered to lay on our arms, which we did until morning, but such an awful noise as was kept up during the night, the dogs howling, and the squaws squalling, there was not much chance to sleep. We put out a heavy picket guard and the different companies gathered up their dead and wounded as well as they could.

September 4—The morning opened up beautiful. Company L was sent out to hunt up mules, horses and ponies. We searched all round and found some ponies and some horses and drove them in. Capt. Ames, Sergeant Woodward and Corporal Morse got separated from the company and saw at a distance a party of what they supposed to be about fifty Indians. The Captain started to get the company, but we, under command of Lieut. Coyl, were returning to camp, as a messenger came from camp and informed us that the companies guarding the train had been attacked by some Indians and we were coming in on a pretty good jog, I can assure you. The wagons had been left in charge of Companies B and A. When the Captain found we had come to camp he came in too, and reported to Gen. Sully what he had seen.

Companies L and M of the Sixth and two companies of the Nebraska troops were sent out under the charge of Maj. Taft. We went in an easterly direction nearly twenty miles, but saw no Indians. We thought at one time we had run across some teepees, but they proved to be buffaloes and there must have been an awful quantity of them as the whole face of the country appeared to be covered with them. We got back about sundown.

Today we found the result of the battle had been quite disastrous to the Indians, as well as to us. The Indian loss was estimated at 300 killed and wounded, 150 prisoners, besides the loss of their lodges, dogs, ponies, and meat. The defeat of the Indians was the worse from the fact that they had made this camp on purpose to put up their winter's meat and the season being pretty well over they had a very large quantity on hand, all of which was destroyed. To show the extent of their loss in a measure I will just say that it took

It was quite cool. on or Company M, under Maj. House were taking. We and got into camp and water and grass, and eaten. a messenger that they run about 100 lodges. the warriors his arrangement to go the delegation of their were packing up to gain time and he told the Major his forces in shape at 5. "Boots and an hour we were edaddled, but not advance of the reska regiment sent the First Battalion The Second Batour position when rs. A guard was above them so as main body, should

was opened by the opening their fire.

a party of 100 men two days to gather up. It was our policy to destroy everything that we gathered up some twelve wagon loads of blankets and prisoners on. This was considered the best cause it took away all their winter supplies, including anything that we could get hold of.

Our own loss was considerable to the regiment. We had some thirteen killed outright, besides wounded. Among the latter was Lieut. Leavitt of Company C, a brave and noble soldier. He was a noble soldier and sold his life pretty dearly, as did many others. Among the killed was Elder Clark of Company D, a brave man in the regiment. He was shot through the head and been killed instantly. The boys gathered up many buffalo skins, teepee covers, and plates, cups, and other things. Teepee poles made good wood and it was a good thing there was no wood growing there. Our camp was in a good place, close to a lake of good water and plenty of game.

After dark we got our supper and rest and had a good night's rest so much needed by us all. We were disappointed, for about 12 o'clock the enemy came to camp that our pickets had been driven in and were right upon us. We got on our arms and prepared to fight. Every four horses and the rest of us lay on our arms before we ascertained that it was a false report. We got to our tents and slept well till morning. In the morning the wagons got in about 10 o'clock. Nothing was done. A sergeant in Company A got so badly frightened that he needed washing the next day. Thus ended the battle of White Stone Hill.

September 5—This morning our horses were made to graze at an early hour, and a good many of them were left of absence in order to view the battle. The enemy's survey was destined to be of no use. Company E of the Sixth and some of the Nebraska Scouts and ran across as they averred some of the enemy made them skedaddle, killing a sergeant in Company C. The Nebraska's got off without any loss. The enemy and reported and the bugle sounded, "man stuff and burn it. It could. Besides this we had buffalo meat to feed the part of the victory bedding teepes and every-number of men engaged. Some mortally wounded. Company B, acting adjutant, a good and brave man, his own story testified. Company C, one of the best of the head and must have a great amount of stuff such as blankets and saucers, etc. Their duty was to find out the thing for us as there was a fight on the old Indian ground of Indian lice.

After thinking to get the thing in this we were despatched the alarm was given in that the Indians were about to attack one man to attend to the arms some two hours later, then we went back. I should have stated that nothing else happened, only a rumor that his drawers were on the second day of the

we were ordered out to the boys took a general view of the ground and surroundings of short duration. Part of theaska boys went out on a party of 100 or 500 Indians who were with Company E and a private. They returned to camp with a horse," and then the scene of the 3d was re-enacted. In a short time every man in camp had his horse saddled and his arms on and in line. We stood in the position till about 5 o'clock in the evening when the scouts that were sent out returned and reported that they could find no Indians.

We were then dismissed and a detail of fifteen men and a non-commissioned officer from Company L, the same number from Company E, with an ambulance was sent out under charge of Lieut. D. Haven to bring in the bodies of those who were killed by the Indians. They succeeded in finding the body of Quartermaster Sergeant Rogers, but could not find that of Private Kelsey. They returned about 8. The fatigue squad was busy all day in burying the dead and burning up the Indian stuff, part of which was piled on the graves of our lost comrades and burnt in order to keep the vandals from despoiling the last resting place of the departed. Since then we have understood that they found out the graves, dug up and horribly mutilated the remains, but this lacks confirmation.

Everything being as it were settled we all retired to our tents with a strong desire, if possible, to recline in the arms of Morpheus. In the course of three days you may rest assured the boys were pretty well engaged in shooting dogs, getting their packs, hunting up robes and jerked buffalo meat and Indian curiosities, etc., but a good many of them had to be left to burn up as the horses were too much reduced to carry more than could be helped and we were clear out of grain.

BACK TO CAMP PE

September 6—We were awakened this morning by the sounding "reveille" after the first night's sleep. We got up at three and everything prepared for a march. We got ready to go at a pretty early hour and started on a southerly course, taking everything we could find. We even to an enormous quantity of Indian liquor. We marched pretty much on the same form as in the march inception of the prisoners, who were marched in the following manner: Eight men and a soldier rode abreast in front, the same behind and the same keeping chiefs, bucks, squaws, papposes, ponies, etc. in with men, horses, rifles, revolvers and sawed-off shotguns. The remains of Lieut. Leavitt and Sergeant R. were carried cool and windy. We marched over a rough, hilly country for miles and encamped on an alkali lake. Plenty of brush and timber. In the evening we deposited the remains of the soldiers and another soldier from Company G. One man right under the horse line to fool the Indians. One man from Company G died on the march today. Up to this date seventeen killed.

September 7—We were up and off this morning at an early hour and made a march of thirty miles. We had Company L on prisoner guard. The day was very hot. We encamped on a beautiful lake. Had plenty of grass, but no wood and had to use buffalo chips for fuel.

September 8—Got off this morning at an early hour and made a march of twenty-five miles over a prairie. We camped at a kind of a sink where the water was very shallow. No grass to amount to a hill of beans and no

by some to be the headwaters of the Cheyenne, but' whether the case or not I can't say.

September 9—Got up this morning at 3 and put our horses to nibble dried up buffalo grass. Got started at about 4 on a march of twenty-five miles. It was unvaried from yesterday except that it was more barren than before. We camped on the headquarters of some stream and had good water but still no timber.

September 10—This is the anniversary of the fight on Little Bighorn. Started at an early hour this morning and marched till about 4 making a march of forty miles, stopping about 4 to wait for the river. Finally came on to the Cheyenne creek some eight or nine miles from the mouth. Men and horses were pretty well fagged out. Did not get any supper till very late and only got three crackers to eat. The day was cool but rather pleasant. The country over which we passed was low and had a damp appearance. I rather suppose that in wet season it would be very wet. We had good water, good grass and some wood.

September 11—Debated considerable this morning and finally got off about 9:30. Came about twelve miles which brought us to the old hail stone camp about 2 o'clock. I tell you the fact that the soldiers brightened up when the familiar scenery of the old camp once more loomed up in view and we saw one of our steamships lying at the bank with supplies. Nearly all the boys were consumers and the perfume of the weed was a most welcome change to us as most of us had been out for some time. We got fixed up and Sergeant Perrin started in pursuit of some of the obnoxious varmints while he was after that Lieut. Coyle succeeded in hunting down the mail, which was speedily gobbled up by the soldiers. After such a long absence it was a very welcome appendage to the United States army. After we had got the mail well digested, Coyle came back with the tobacco. He only had to pay 50 cents for a plug 2½ inches long by 1½ inches wide and ¼ of an inch thick. That as well as the mail was gobbled up in a hurry. We digested our days' rations, looked around them and then retired to our tents, satisfied with our camp for the present.

September 12—Got off this morning at 9, Company L in the lead guard and the advance. The morning was foggy and cold. We made a march of ten miles and encamped on a small stream

PEORIA.

this mornin' by the bule good sleep for the last two resumption of the march.
ar and got started off on a
could carry along with us, ice. We found our line of in comin' up with the ex-hed behind the battery and The guard company rode a non-commissioned officer the rest on either side, thus ponies and dogs, all hemmed sabres. We had along the Rodgers. The day was ugh country some eighteen Plenty of good grass but no remains of Sergeant Rod-G in their last restin' place, ns. This man from Como this time our total loss is this morning at a pretty les over a broken country.

was cold and disagreeable.
d splendid water and good chips for fuel.

at a pretty early hour and pretty rough country. Ene was very scarce and poor, no wood at all. It was said found good wood and water, but not companies on picket tonight, Companies very fine day.

September 13—Got off in pretty day was very warm indeed. We miles and encamped on our old camp

September 14—We all got started can assure you. We marched on til joys, on looking down the bluffs the beauties before us. We used to think summer when the boys were run to death, step," but now it looked delightful to afford us a place to rest, for a short time the old ground, but what a change in the summer when the grass was in an absence of a month and found all grass completely annihilated the grass and still the spirit of the boys was good, no so glad were they to get back where once more. We put our horses out first thing was to enquire about mail, the left as we went up. This being over mail and that being distributed and the things we sent back from Cheyenne proceeded to clean our persons and clothes month's march. This done we got tobacco and went to bed. This ended on the march.

September 15—There did not appear the bugle this morning, so we all took a detail to go up and get the boat off fast. Drew rations for five days and grass was very poor indeed.

September 16—Company I. on picket sounded at 4. We got orders to be starting at 12 and coming twelve miles very cold, stormy day. Got into camp to camp.

September 17—Spent the day much grass. We had two companies E and L. It turned out to be a good season this morning. The made a march of twenty-two ground that we made going up. ed this morning in high hopes, I all about 11 o'clock when, joy of ere lay Camp Peoria in all its ank it a pretty dull place in the eath nearly with "Dakota quick to us as it was at least going to time any way. We came on to the prospects. We left it right a its prime and came back after gone. The frost and horses had everythin' looked forlorn. But ot seeming to notice the change, re they could see familiar faces and then looked around. The he next to find the comrades we er the Captain brought up the read the next thing was to find nne. We found them and proing from the gathering filth of a in our horses, hunted up some d one of the busiest days we had appear to be much hurry in blow-took a pretty good nap. Started f a sandbar where she had stuck d attended to our horses. The prisoner guard today. Reveille ready to move and complied by les down the river. We had a ap about 6 o'clock. A fine place in getting fixed up. Got our cooking place down in the timber. They are making tions here to build a fort. Two companies are on Part of the Nebraska cavalry was sent down to be n their time was about out.

September 18—This is a rather cold day and camp life has resumed its old dullness.

September 19—Companies L and E on fatigued timber for the new fort. We went on to the island some very fine logs averaging about a foot through long and very straight. We got another mail today.

September 20—This was a fine warm day. The regular religious services today. He preached a funeral on Elder Clark's death. He had a large and attentive

September 21—Another fine day and a day of business, nothing of importance going on to mar the moon

September 22—Still another fine day and as usual day. They are rushing the new fort through. All hauling timber for it.

September 23—Company L on picket guard today our camp some three miles down the river. It is clear Our picket lines are about four miles long. This has day. The grass here is not very good.

September 24—Another day of inactivity around the squaws died from the effects of a wound received Hill.

September 25—This was rather an uncomfortable blowing a hurricane all day. Ira Preston, Company erty, Company A, and T. Higgins, Company I, are here today. The first for desertion and theft. He pleaded charge and was sentenced to one year's hard labor prison; the second for sleeping on post. The charge and his sentence was the same as Preston's. The third desertion, the charge was sustained and the sentence to others. In addition to their imprisonment they have pay coming to them during the time. We got a mail

September 26—Another fine warm day and a masterly inactivity. We are getting our horses shod

September 27—This is Sunday and a beautiful day preaching, Bible class and prayer meeting. Had ord horses up for inspection. Got them up, but it was too late to have them inspected. Drew some clothing.

September 28—Company L on prisoner guard today. Got our horses and the Second Battalion had theirs inspected. Orders to draw quarter rations of corn for our horses, that is for Battalion. That looks some like moving. A couple of details from Company L working on the fort today.

September 29—This was a singular kind of a day for Dakota. It was raining when we got up and rained nearly all day. We gave orders (the Second Battalion) to get ready to move tomorrow on the downward way. This is cheering news to us. Company E was on picket guard today.

September 30—Got up early this morning but did not get started till about 9. The weather was quite cool and the roads rather muddy. Our road lay over a high ridge. Made some eighteen miles and encamped on Medicine creek. Had good wood, water and grass. Company B on guard tonight. Got in in good season. The boys seem to feel good that they are "homeward bound."

October 1—Got started this morning at 7 and came over a rolling prairie to the La Chappelle at 11 where we camped. It was a good camp, having good water, wood and grass. It was cool and cloudy, looking some like rain. Company H was on guard tonight.

October 2—Started at 7 this morning and had a disagreeable day to travel, it being cold and windy all day and about 11 it commenced raining and rained for about an hour. We marched till sundown making a march of twenty-five miles. Company L was on guard tonight. As one of the companies was ordered to relieve the company at Crow creek, the officers drew lots for the chance. Company L was the unlucky company.

MORE ABOUT THE WHITE STONE BATTLE.

The following account of finding the Reds at White Stone Hill was kindly furnished me by Comrade E. A. Richards of Company F, who was an eye witness of the finding of the savages:

Discovery of a camp of Sioux Indians under the command of Little Crow and Big Head, September 3, 1863, by the Third Battalion, Sixth Iowa Cavalry—We were aroused this morning by an order that we were in close proximity of the Indians who had so savagely massacred the citizens, men, women and children at New Ulm, Mankato and other places in Minnesota. The Third Battalion consisted of Companies C, F, I, and M, and under command of Maj. A. E. House, (who died recently at West Union, Iowa,) with E. A. Richards, Company F, orderly; La Fromboy, half breed, and another half breed as scouts or guides, we left the command and deployed to the left, aiming to keep within five miles of the command, as we had only about 300 men. La Fromboy kept about five miles ahead of us and his assistant half way between us and La Fromboy. The country was very hilly and we could only see him when he gained an elevated point. Buffalo had been killed by the Indians and we knew they must be near.

About noon we lay on the grass grazing our horses at the end of the lariat ropes while we ate our raw pork and hard tack. In the distance we saw the dust flying from the guide's horse as he came toward us, (his horse was a goer) and his long black hair streaming. He came nearer and nearer till finally he reached our resting place and said he had discovered twenty lodges of Indians five miles off. Maj. House instructed the orderly, Dick Richards, or as the Indians called him "Pa-ha-sha-sha" or "Red Head," to inform the captains to prepare for a forced march of five miles. The men were ordered to load their revolvers, which was done in a very nervous manner, as we knew that we were not in Dixie where the enemy took prisoners; but death was the sure fate of all taken by them.

We started on the trot and then gallop, but was cautioned by our guide to keep in the valleys so as not to be seen by the enemy. Blankets got loose from the saddles and lariat ropes got loose and lay strung along on the ground, much to our annoyance. We were ordered to cut them loose and go as freely as possible, as we did not know where Gen. Sully and his command were and we were compelled to fight a fearful battle alone with our small army of 300 men. We kept nearing the savages without their noticing us. They were camped on a little lake surrounded by hills which were covered with white stones, hence the name of "White Stone Lake." It was given to the battle coming up. Suddenly over a small rise immediately in our front at a short distance was the hundreds of the Indians.

With a wild yell that still lingers in my ears, the young warriors rushed to the little lake and taking up some of the blue cloth, dashed it over their bodies, marking themselves hideously, so that they did not have time to get the regular war paint. By this time our little band had dismounted and examined our guns. Can you imagine our feelings, many miles from civilization with a little band of 300 men and pitted against us 5,000 savages on their own ground even though the place of which was familiar to each one; whose belts were adorned with the scalps of their enemies, men women and children, they had been taken sacred in Minnesota and elsewhere; with their war clubs, bows, tomahawks and other Indian war weapons, and outnumbered us so fearfully? We couldn't retreat if we would, nor would we have been able to.

As soon as they were discovered the guide started to notify Gen. Sully who was camped with his command about twelve miles away. I can see him yet as he dashed away to the rear so as not to give the Indians any clue to his mission. We were in a rather trying position, as we did not know how soon reinforcements could be sent but he was gone and now we will watch the enemy. The men were in front of their horses, guns in hand ready for use but with instructions not to fire under any circumstances. The idea was to wait for them in check till the rest of the command arrived.

My education in the Sioux language stood me in hand in shape, at this time. Many of our men did not know what they were saying. The young warriors came up with a determination to exterminate the soldiers at once. They said, "Kill them, kill them! money plenty." The old bucks said "No, no, these are all the soldiers there are. We will kill them at sundown." This is their favorite time to fight. But the young men kept on imploring the old men to let them fight.

We kept our place, our men showing no disposition to give an inch and giving the red gents notice that we were there to stay. We changed our position occasionally to attract their attention and kill time. The sun was sinking low in the west. The hours as they passed away are in my memory yet. As I looked around me to see our brave little squad, officers and men felt that sundown would bring the crisis, and with 5,000 savage murderers to contend with, the outlook was not encouraging. In all probability some of us would be made to bite the dust. The hideous howl of the wolf-dog would deafen our ears and the savage faces of the reds was enough to make the strongest heart nearly fail, but our eyes and hopes were to the setting sun in the west from whence we expected help from our friends of the other part of the command.

The sun is sinking and the war song is being sung by our would-be executioners. Home friends hundreds of miles away are remembered—a father, mother, sister, brother, wife and children, all came to the front in those hours of suspense. With our knowledge of Indian cruelty we knew our dead bodies would have no resting place. But the sun is nearly set, a large ball of fire seemingly, but it appears to be obscured by some object. The men discover it and whisper, "It is Gen. Sully and his command. The artillery is on the fly, the soldiers plying their spurs; the cavalry is with them, the horses at top speed."

They are within a mile of us when the Indians discover them and cry out, "the soldiers are coming out of the ground." Then the squaws and old men began taking down the teepees and loading the ponies with tent poles on either side with a strap over the back and the poles twelve to fifteen feet in length dragging on the ground. The squaws attended to this part. The papposes were put in baskets and strapped on the poles which run from the ponies back to the ground. The wolf dogs were fixed up the same as the ponies were, only the packs were smaller. The young warriors were now fully aware of their danger and undertook to retreat to the east a few miles. Our Battalion kept to the east of them till the command came up. We drove them into a place where there were thousands of men, women, children, dogs, and they were a hard looking lot of humanity, I can after they were surrounded.

Then came the same old war song. At the head of I said to Maj. House, "They will fire on us now." When ceased the chief raised his gun and fired the first shot. One of our best young men, Casper Wagner, of Company was 22 years old and a fine specimen of young manhood. When he fell he raised up and with his saber struck a brave a dead he fell dead at his side. Again Wagner arose and thrust through another brave who fell. Then Wagner, from blood and exertion soon gave way to a gallant soldier's death to his memory! May it ever be green. He died with his enemies at his side slain by his hand after he had received a wound. With a rush the Indians left the ravine, crying "get away," and threw their robes over their heads, rushing stampeding our horses.

As before stated the above was written by an eye witness. I was not, as we were with the other part of the regiment up as reinforcements and were in at the finish. One hour Fromboy gave Gen. Sully the message we were in the fight.

Some times a small accident or occurrence changes circumstances so as to bestow glory and renown where it does not belong. Some times withholds true merit where it ought to be bestowed. An illustration of the former at the White Stone Hill fight, some writes that Col. Wilson lead the charge in person until his horse was shot from under him when he mounted another horse and led the charge till the Indians were totally routed and driven from the field. The fact was that as the Colonel was getting away from the fight a soldier dismounting touched the trigger of his gun with his heel. The gun was discharged, the bullet going through the hind leg of Col. Wilson's horse and as a matter of course the horse was killed. The Indians were not driven from the field but were cornered in the ravine and during the night a number of the bucks made

James river,
em and held
deep ravine ponies and assure you,

f the ravine
en the song
hich struck
ny F. He After he ch blow and st his saber
the loss of
ath. Peace
is two dead
ed his death
G:t away,
ed upon us,

tness which t and came ar after La-
ht.

umstances
and some-
ed. As an e historian
horse was
d continued
n from the y from the
in with his
h the stifle
was ruined.
ralled in a
e their escape, leaving the old men, squaws, papposes and dogs prisoners, all of which were taken by the command to Fort Sully. All of Company L and others of the regiment who stood guard that night can ratify this statement.

AT CROW CREEK.

October 3—Now for the present I will only be-doings of Company L as they are now left as the Second Battalion. This morning we started at 8 am down the agency where we relieved Company L of braska Cavalry who went down to Randall along companies of the Battalion. We all got fixed up Had a big tent which some sixteen of us piled into.
his tents fixed up and the boys who did not get into the little ones up so that we are quite comfortable.
awful distance to be from home and a prospect of winter.

I will here give a description of the place as well out in a square some 300 feet each way. Around was dug a ditch some three feet deep and the same are set cedar pickets fifteen feet long which leave above ground. On the west side are two stores and just coming out flush with the pickets. On the north Winnebago school house, the interpreter's quarters, quarters, and the doctor's quarters. On the corner for soldiers. On the east side are the boarding house wagonmakers and carpenter shops. On the south side buildings, one doctor's quarters, two agents' quarters, preters' quarters and four school houses, and on the
for soldiers. On the northwest and southwest corners outside of the pickets. The pickets are sawed on the outsides being left rough. Holes for guns were made feet from the ground and about twelve feet apart and south sides are each a gate made of the same kind the pickets. The saw mill is on the west side of the fifteen rods from it in the edge of the timber. Still timber are the Indians wigwams. The river is about the fort and pretty heavy timber. It is situated on a beautiful plain and in a fine place for defense. Such is Crow creek as I saw it.

October 4--Got up early this morning and put our horses out to graze on a bottom or plain some seventy-five feet higher than the fort is on. The pasture is good, being buffalo gras, some dried up of course. The weather still continues cold.

October 5--The weather was warmer today. Got our mail.

October 6--Another fine day. The monotony of the day was somewhat broken in by the arrival of Gen. Sully and staff and body guard and one company of the Sixth, Company G. Lieut. Coyl came down also as he had been left behind on court martial business. The Winnebagoes made an effort to go off, so we had to keep a picket guard out all night to watch them.

October 7--There was a train came in from Randall today. We got 2,000 rations. Our mail came in also. Lieut. Coyl was made quartermaster of the post. Fixed up the place preparatory to bringing our horses inside the pickets.

October 8--Gen. Sully and his escort started for Randall. The train also left for Fort Sully in charge of an infantry escort. The day was spent by us generally in a pretty idle manner, nothing transpiring to make an interesting item of news, so I will drop the subject.

October 9--This morning was cold and disagreeable and continued so during the day. There was a corporal and three men went up as an escort with the mail. The commissioner went up to take the vote of the soldiers of the brigade.

October 10--Another cool kind of a day. There was a detail of men made to guard the haymakers under charge of Sergeant Perrin.

October 11--This has been a fine day. Rained some in the morning. Sergeant Perrin started with his squad out to Crow creek and Corporal Murphy went along with him. There was a train came up from Fort Randall today bound for Sully.

October 12--Corporal Murphy came back from the hay detail. He says they came through a dog town and saw the awfulest lot of rattlesnakes that ever was seen before. They killed fifty-six and had to retire in disgust. It was a fine day.

October 13--This is election day. Sergeants Drips, Hunt and Fuller were made judges and Sergeant Woodward and T. Nickleson clerks. Company L, Sixth Iowa Cavalry, and the Seventh voted at this point. The Republicans had a 30 majority, while the Clayton county ticket had 40, for which Hammer had 4 majority. It did not get through till about 12 o'clock at night. Got off very quietly, nothing happening to mark the present.

October 14—The mail came in today from Sully. We had to furnish an escort to go with it up to Fort Randall and two men were detailed to go with it. Ordered to furnish an escort of thirty men for a night from Fort Randall and bound for Sully.

October 15—Got off this morning at 9:30 a.m. on some sixteen miles and encamped on a creek. The water and grass, but no timber. Got in about 10 o'clock. A fine day. About six miles from the Agency we camped. His staff, also Companies I and G, on their route. Sergeant Burhans got off with his detail. The detail gave out. We had thirty-five men along.

October 16—Started this morning in p.m. and came on to La Chapelle about 3 o'clock. A shower about 5 o'clock. It was quite cool, and mittens were very acceptable.

October 17—This morning at 1 o'clock a storm came and blowing the most terrific I ever saw in my life. The snow blown down and no one could face the storm. The men hustled around, crawled into the wagons. The wagons would afford the least shelter. Some of the men started a fire and something cooked up to eat, and lay down into the wagons. Still the snow came. The horses and mules fell down with the severity of the storm. About 4 o'clock it kind of slacked up and cleared the horses into shape, gave them all the corn they needed and fixed up for staying all night. We had twenty-five horses and mules, most of them packed off and we could not find them. Some of them were missing, but we all got off.

October 18—Did not get off this morning. The count of having to refix our teams. We had one company of the state ticket had some was a tie, all but senators a fine day. We did The election passed the good feelings of all in Fort Randall. We Sully. Sergeant Bur- Capt. Ames was or- rain that came in last with the train. Came where we had good at 2 o'clock. It was a met Col. Wilson and down to Sioux City. Several of our mules pretty good season and gained a pretty good as much as overcoats commenced snowing my life. Tents were for an instant. The and every place that succeeded in getting and others kept crawling wind kept coming. of the storm. Along red off. We got our wanted, got our sup- lost altogether some fishing, but a few run men came near freez- till about 12, on ac- to leave some five or six of our wagons behind. We had also to send back some men on account of being stunned with the cold. Corporal M went on to see if he could get to the train ahead. Finally we got and made a march of twelve miles and encamped on Medicine creek about 4. Here we found some five or six mules, the result of storm on the train ahead. Here we had a good camp and slept comfortable.

October 19—We did not get along very fast on account of having trouble in getting up the hill, after that we went on. The roads were bad. When we got in about seven miles of the fort we the wagons scattered along every half mile or so. After we got the wagons well up the hill the escort came on to the fort, the teams coming as they could. Some of them got in at night while others did not get in at all that day. We got in and fixed up. It was very windy and cold. We found that the storm had made great destruction among the stock up here also. Here we found Col. Pollock with the rest of the Sixth ready to start down.

October 20—This morning we started back again by the lower road. Some of us went out to the wagon and got guns, sabers, etc. that had been left in it. We came on to La Chapelle, where we found some fifteen horses that had strayed from the fort. Col. Pollock and his men started and came as far as Medicine creek.

October 21—Got started this morning in pretty good season and made a march of thirty-five miles over a rough country, finding snow banks in some places ten or fifteen feet high. Finally arrived in Medicine creek about dark, being all pretty well tired out. Col. Pollock and command came on to La Chapelle.

October 22—We found on our arrival that they had suffered a good deal with the storm here also, the hay guard being left out in the snow. Company L of the Nebraska's left today. Col. Pollock and command arrived tonight, some of them not getting in till 2 in the morning.

October 23—There is considerable feeling among the troops as Col. Pollock has orders to relieve Company L with another company of his Battalion and none of them want to stay. Lieut. Coyle is relieved on his duties as quartermaster of the post. It was very cold all day. The mail came in, but brought no orders to Col. Pollock. Company L got orders to get ready to move.

October 24—Did not get started till 1 o'clock. Made a march of twelve miles and encamped on Crow Creek agency. Capt. Galligan with a detail of from each company was sent on ahead to p us. Lieut. Coyl was made adjutant of the October 25—Got off this morning at teen miles and encamped on American good camp. It was rather cool. This ca stopped during the big storm. The water

October 26—Started this morning at twenty miles and encamped on a creek wh and grass.

October 27—Started at 8 and came landing fifteen miles, where we arrived at and a splendid camp, good wood, water mules got off last night and were found do taken back to the other camp.

October 28—Started this morning pre pretty good jog, coming eighteen miles l Pease's on the Missouri. Had to help the was pretty cool all day. We got a mail Had a good camp.

October 29—Started pretty early this Fort Randall, or on the opposite side of th we camped in among the willows. The re orders to go up to Crow Creek again to r had a mail today. It was a fine day.

ek twelve miles from the one sergeant and four men ek out camping places for Battalion.

10, made a march of six-week about 1:30. Had a mp is where Col. Wilson is considerable alkali.

8:30. Made a march of re we found wood, water through to Hamilton's o'clock. Had a fine day and grass. Some of the en here. They had to be ty early and came on a y 2 o'clock, arriving at wagons up the hills. It after we came to camp.

morning and came on to river from there where port is now that we have lieve Company K. We

IN WINTER QUARTERS.

October 30—Laid in camp today. It was quite cool.
Col. Pollock said he would do all in his power towards order to go back to Crow Creek rescinded.

October 31—Another cold day in camp, nothing doing.
were mustered for pay today and have six months' pay.
We let our horses run out.

November 1—Another dull day in camp. Nothing doing.
do but loaf around camp. It was quite cool all day.

November 2—Still another fine day, but rather cool if The paymaster arrived from below today. A squad of the cavalry went to guard a train up to Crow Creek today.

November 3—Another fine day, but windy withall. No importance transpired to mar the usual monotony of camp life.

November 4—The paymaster made his appearance again today and created quite a good feeling by shelling out the grub.
We are still uncertain about our destination, but we are looking orders and hope they will be for us to go as far south City.

November 5—We dispatched Privates Moore, Haly Tomkins with thirty-two horses to Sioux City to be taken through the winter. Companies C, B, H, E and M started day. We have orders to cross the river tomorrow.

November 6—Crossed over today and took up our quarters
Fort Randall where we have good quarters.

And now, reader, I have conducted you through a of six months' soldiering in which, if nothing else, we did the amount of marching of any regiment in the United States since the time. Our campaign, although void of the interest of campaign in the south, yet there is connected with this some and incidents that have embalmed them connected which will last as long as re

In conclusion I will just add a w
Fort Sully and the winter quarters of o

Sully is situated on a plain or botto east side about eighty rods from the below Farm island. It is built on t barracks; on the north and south with cottonwood logs unbewn and are ab covered over with logs and brush and The pickets are the same material s feet, standing out some twelve feet ab feet square, and there are bastions on corners in which are placed the cann
This is pretty well fixed for defense an by the Indians, and is a good place f that we helped build last summer, tal labor and which was by some set dow it may it will be a memorial of the la under Gen. Sully.

And now for a few words in reg troops under Gen Sully. The Second nine months' men, were nearly all at t came back from the expedition, ther be spared they were sent home to be States service. Some of them went a others waited till fall. Two companie sent up to Fort Sully to guard that Thirtieth Wisconsin Infantry. The re was sent down on the boats. Compan alry, the General's body guard, was tak
K of the Sixth Iowa Cavalry was left A, D, G and L were stationed at Fort million, Companies C, B, E and H a Spirit Lake, Company F at Tackets
One company of the Dakota Cavalry ( on the opposite side of the river from company of Dakota Cavalry was stati and staff went to Sioux City and stay oneselves in the memory of those ason holds her sway.

ord of description in regard to ur regiment and close.
om of the Missouri river on the river. It is opposite or a little two sides, east and west, with pickets. The buildings are of out seven or eight feet high, then earth thrown over them.
t into the ground about three ove ground. The fort is 270 the southeast and northwest on for the defense of the fort.
d cannot be taken very easily or defense. Such is the fort king a great deal of time and n as sheer folly. But be that bors of the Indian expedition

ard to the disposition of the Nebraska Cavalry, being only the end of their time when we efore as soon as they could e mustered out of the United s soon as we came down and s of the Seventh Cavalry were point along with some of the st of the Wisconsin Thirtieth y I of the Seventh Iowa Cav-ken to Sioux City. Company at Crow Creek. Companies Randall, Company M at Vert Sioux City, Company I at
and other points on the road.
Capt. Miner's) was stationed Fort Randall. Capt. Tripp's oned at Yankton. Gen. Sully ved there till the district was changed when he moved his headquarters to Davenp son of the Sixth was placed in command at Sioux Cit Col. Pollock at Fort Randall.

At the time of the battle at White Stone Hill w sounded "To horse" there were some of the men tha sick they had to ride in the ambulance for two or thre noticed two in Company L, Privates McNamarra and were amon: the first to get their horses and ride over, a part in the fight if there was to be one.

But this has exceeded by nearly one-half the space I it when I commenced writing. Some of the journal wi uninteresting to a great many, but I would just say her tion that sometimes a very trifling incident would occur t very important in determining other matters, so I conce of putting in each day's happenings so as not to lose the ceedings. There were a great many incidents occur march and in the camp that would no doubt prove agre teresting were they collected and recorded, but I will l those who write for publication, as mine is only for those I am sure will have the charity to overlook all blunders and put the meaning on that is intended to be conveyed.
while I will bid you all adieu.

The Campaign of 1864.

I left off writing a little over a year ago, leaving the Sixth Iowa Cavalry scattered around as follows: Company K at Fort Sully and Crow Creek; Companies A, D, G and L at Fort Randall; Companies F at Yankton; Company M at Vermillion; Companies B, C, E and I at Sioux City, Iowa, and Company I at Spirit Lake, Iowa. Thus situated they all lay on their oars till some time in June.

During the winter the very few inhabitants in Dakota and those living on the frontiers of Iowa and Minnesota became clamorous for active operations against the Indians. On account of those solicitations, and for other reasons, the government determined to send another expedition up the Missouri river and also to explore a route through to the Yellowstone river, as the excitement of the Idaho gold mines was then at a high pitch.

Gen. Alf. Sully was ordered to take charge of the expedition and to establish a post on the Missouri river. He went about this soon as it was determined what was to be done. He organized a force of cavalry numbering some 4,000 strong, made up as follows: Eleven companies of the Sixth Iowa Cavalry under command of Lieut.-Col. Pollock (one company, K, having been reported as sick and not able to take the field, was ordered to Fort Randall along with the invalids taken out of the other regiments and detached to garrison that post, all being under command of Maj. Shepherd. This force was called the "quinine squad"); three companies of the Seventh Iowa Cavalry under command of Lieut.-Col. Pattee; four companies of Minnesota Cavalry in command of Maj. Brackett and a battery of four howitzers under command of Capt. N. Pope.

All these forces except those already above started up a river and reached Fort Randall about the 14th of June. Here Col. Wilson the Sixth resigned and Lieut. Williams, regimental quartermaster, also offered his resignation. On the 14th day of June the troops that were at Randall started crossing the river and by the evening of the 15th they were all across by the aid of the steamer "War Eagle." On the 17th day of June about 1 o'clock we started, the other troops having gone on ahead as fast as they came up, only stopping long enough to get supplies.

The first day we made some twelve miles, stopping on Pease creek, where we had good grass and wood, but no water that was fit to use. It was a very warm day. We were all pretty tired, it being the first time we had been on horseback for a long time. We got into camp about 5 o'clock.

June 18—Reveille sounded at 2 o'clock. Got up and started at 4. Made a march of eighteen miles, camping on Platte creek, about 1 o'clock. It was very warm. We had good water, wood and grass. Not so tired as yesterday.

June 19—Reveille this morning at 2 o'clock. Got off at 4 and made a march of twenty-three miles, camping on Red lake, where we had good water and grass. Wood scarce. It was very warm and we all suffered for the want of water, but we got a good rest. It had some appearance of a storm, but finally stopped without.

June 20—This morning we had reveille at 12 o'clock and got started at 2. Made a march of twenty miles, arriving at Crow creek at 12 o'clock. It was very warm. We had splendid water, wood and grass. We had some spring water.

June 21—Reveille this morning at 2. Got off at 4 and came some five miles above the agency where we arrived at 11 o'clock. It was very warm. Had some trouble getting a place to get down to the river for water. Had good grass. Made a march of fifteen miles. Noticed a great deal of difference in the appearance of the place from what it was when I left last fall, the timber being nearly all cut down.

June 22—Started this morning at 4 and made a march of fifteen miles, arriving at the Big Hole at 2 o'clock. A rather amusing incident occurred today. One of the boys got some powder and matches mixed together in his saddle-bags and the powder exploded and scared him most to death. He was burnt some on the side, but his piteous shrieks aroused the risibilities of the boys to such a degree that nothing but a good hearty laugh, such as only soldiers would quiet them down.

June 23—Started at 4 and came to Medicine creek, w arrived at 2, making a march of twenty-two miles. We had wood, water and grass. We found plenty of spring water ravine about twenty rods above the camp.

June 24—Got off this morning at an early hour and march of twenty-two miles, arriving in camp some five or above Fort Sully about 10 o'clock. Here we found all th that had preceded us waiting our arrival. We were glad t of some of the dust that had been collecting on us for the l days, as we had an opportunity of washing in the sandy M Company L was on guard. We have adopted the plan of f guard by companies, the same as last year. It was very war

June 25—Today we laid over as preparations were not qu plete for starting. Here we left a lot of our sick and those the concluded could not stand the hardships incident to a hard mar guard was detailed to stay with the boats and our Chaplain v back, as Gen. Sully concluded he could get along better with We got a chance to remember absent friends by writing th various other matters of business and other things were atten This was a very warm day.

UP TO FORT RICE.

June 26—This morning reveille sounded at 4, but we did not get started till 6 on account of the command not all being together. But finally we got off in the following order: Gen. Sully and staff in front. In his rear the battery. Next a company of Indian scouts and Company M of the Sixth, being detailed as provost guard. On the right flank a train of supply wagons and still further on the right flank the Sixth Iowa Cavalry. On the left flank was a train of wagons and still on the left the Seventh Cavalry, Maj. Brackett's Battalion and two companies of Dakota Cavalry. Thus we travelled till 2 o'clock when we arrived at the Oze Bayou, making a march of twenty miles. The day was very warm and we were very glad to get into camp. We had a good camp, having plenty of wood, water and grass.

June 27—Started at 6 and came on to a stream called Big Hole, making a march of twenty-four miles. Here we found water and grass, but no wood. Had a very pleasant camp. It was pretty warm but towards night there came up considerable of a wind storm.

June 28—Reveille at 3 this morning and got off at 5. It was a very warm day. We made a march of twenty miles, reaching the Cheyenne at 2 o'clock. Here the first melancholy event of the expedition happened. Capt. Feelinger of the regular army, who was appointed topographical engineer of the expedition, was in front of the advance guard hunting specimens. He was fired on by three Indians who immediately fled. Capt. Miner's company of Dakota Cavalry, which was on the advance, saw the Indians and started in pursuit. The scouts also, under Frank La Fromboy, were after them but I guess would have let them escape had it not been for Capt. Miner's men, who are Indian hunters, and Indian haters, too. They followed them up and succeeded in killing all three of the Indians without losing a man. They came in and reported to Gen. Sully about Capt. Feulner died. The General started a party out to bring in the Indians' heads. This was done and then they stuck upon poles to warn other Indians. We had a here, havin_g plenty of wood, water and grass.

June 29—Started this morning at 5 and made a march of sixteen miles, arriving at Hid Wood, or Blue Blanket creek (to find out certain which was the right name) at 12. We went along at a very fast rate on account of the roughness of the trail through which we passed. We noticed where there had been a heavy hail storm the night before by the print of the hail on the ground. It threatened very hard where we were, but we did not witness any of the storm. On this creek we found good wood, water and grass. We sent up several runners to the Minnesota troops, who were expected to be in the neighborhood, know our locality. It was not as warm as yesterday.

June 30—Stayed in camp all day. Are inspected and having made out muster rolls at Sully. After muster rolls were ordered to change the location of their tents to the new squadrons. We went to work making out pay rolls, expecting pay at Long Lake. Minnesota troops came a short distance on same creek above us.

July 1—Another day in camp. Had the official news of the arrival of the Minnesota troops and a train of emigrant wagons for Idaho. The troops consisted of nine companies of mounted, six companies of the second Minnesota Cavalry, two pieces of artillery, two howitzers and two 12-pounders. They were nearly out of rations. A train of their wagons and a train of boats was sent down to the boat to get supplies of rations and food. The boats were some seven miles from our camp. It was raining today and we had a heavy storm of rain and wind in the evening.

July 2—Another day in camp. The trains got back to the boat with a load of forage and supplies. Gen. Sully went to the boat. Two men from Company L went on to the boat to get Lighty and Duwe. The former shot himself through the head at Sully. Col. Pollock was ordered to take command of the troops and Col. Thomas of the Second Brigade, which is the Minnesota troops.

July 3—Everything being in readiness, we took our

at the time
with orders
he ordered
good camp

ch of eighk (I did not did not get the country
had been a il stones in but we did
d plenty of ckets to let
e neighbor-
y.

d mustered,
the officers
e left of the
as we were
and camped

s of the ar-
gons bound
of infantry
y and four
They were
ain of ours
and forage.
quite warm
ening.

k from the nt onto the
at, Privates
he hand at First Brig-
e Minneso-

our departure this morning at 4, that is the First Brigade, and made a march of twenty miles, camping on Burnt Blanket. We arrived at 2 o'clock. It was cool and a fine day for marching. Had a good camp, having plenty of wood, water and grass.

July 4—Started this morning at 5 and came to Swan lake, a distance of twenty miles. Got into camp at 1 o'clock. Had a good camp, good wood, water and grass. Had a little storm of wind and rain. Col. Pollock gave us a short oration or address, assuring us that if we had a fight it would be within thirty days, we gave him three rousing cheers and adjourned, enjoying the Fourth of July under difficulties.

July 5—Started at 6 and came to Beaver creek, a distance of thirty-three miles, arriving at 5. It was a warm day and after coming so far we were all pretty well fatigued. We had a splendid camp, plenty of good wood, water and grass. We stopped at a lake and watered about noon. The Colonel sent some men ahead to ascertain whether there was water to be had nearer than Beaver creek. Just after we left this lake they came and reported no water. Some of the men who saw them come in and supposed they had met with some Indians and had been repulsed began to make preparations for a fight, such as loading their rifles, etc., but it soon cooled down when they learned the state of affairs.

July 6—Started at 7 and made a march of eleven miles, arriving at Little Beaver at 12 o'clock. Here we had a fine camp, having good wood, water and grass, but we had considerable of a rough day's march to get to it. It took us two hours to cross one stream.

July 7—Today we laid over as Gen. Sully had sent orders up to await at this camp until further orders. The Second Brigade and the Idaho train came up. It was a fine day. We found plenty of June or service berries which were excellent. The bands from the Second Brigade discoursed fine music to us on every occasion.

July 8—Having received orders late last night this morning we were up and started at 4:30. It was a fine day. Nothing of any importance occurred till we got to Long Lake creek. Here we had to build a bridge in order to get across. It detained us nearly an hour and a half. We finally got over and continued on till at last we came in sight of the ever-welcome (to the soldiers) Missouri again. There were some six or eight boats lying at this point loaded with supplies for us and material for building a fort. We arrived at the banks of the river at 1 o'clock, having made a march of 10 miles. The Second Brigade arrived shortly after our train. It was a fine day. We had quite a shower of rain and it blew hard.

July 9.—This morning we were ordered to cross the river and got ready and started. There were two boats to take us and we were detained making landings, etc., so that our march was over and it was pretty well in the night before the Second Brigade crossed the river. It was warm all day.

July 10—This day was spent by us in camp, the Second Brigade crossing the river. It was warm all day.

July 11—Fine day in camp. The Second Brigade crossed the river today.

July 12—Laid in camp all day. The Idaho troops arrived getting in. The paymaster was the attraction today for us with greenbacks. We also received a mail today. We left Randall. Taking it all together we had quite a good time. Whisky was on the throne.

July 13—Another idle day in camp. Had orders to send baggage at the fort, nothing but tent flies for the men allowed unless they furnished their own transportation. The figuring was done as to what was to be left behind.

July 14—Another warm and idle day. Had orders to send some men for boat guard. Was ordered to leave camp. Were not able to stand hard marching, and all disabled.

July 15—Another hot, idle day. Put our baggage in the house.

July 16—Another fine warm day. Still in camp. Had orders today to come out on review tomorrow.

July 17—Was out on review today. It was a fine day. Made a good appearance on review, all the troops were out.

July 18—Another day in camp. Got orders to move. Everything being in readiness. Our horses were shod in order and the men after the rest felt in good heart. The last day of being here it will be as well to give a short march to the post. It is built on a beautiful table land some 1000 feet level of the river—a splendid site. It is a beautiful place. The cottonwood logs sawed 6 by 8 and one story high. There are barracks or room for eight companies of soldiers, 1 ch of eighteen

also the Idaho
in in the even-

he river. We e us over, but the Sixth got
all got across.
est of the brig-

de crossed the

in commenced
s he furnished
the first since a time. King

to leave extra icers being al-Considerable

ders to detail
behind all that horses.
e in the ware-

ap. Received

ry warm day.
he post being

move today,
l and in good
As this is the description of eet above the place, built of ere are eight sides officers'

quarters, hospital buildings, etc. The bastions are on the south west and northeast corners. They are of the same kind of timber as the barracks. The quartermaster's and commissary buildings are in the rear of the quarters and are constructed of round logs, but put up in a good style. There are two saw mills at the post, one being a stationary mill run by a steam engine and the other is a portable mill run by horse power. Both have done excellent business in getting out the material for the post. There is a sulter's shop and other fixtures that are usually found around a military post. There is an abundance of splendid cottonwood timber close to the fort above and below the post, and also some hard wood, burr oak, etc. The fort is situated above the mouth of the Cannon Ball river about ten miles and on the same side of the Missouri, and also about two miles above the mouth of Long Lake creek, which empties into the Missouri, on the opposite side from the fort. The post is well situated for defense and it is the opinion of the writer that 100 men well provisioned could hold it against all the Indians in Dakota Territory. Gen. Sully gave it the name of Fort Rice. It was built and garrisoned by six companies of the Thirtieth Wisconsin Infantry. This is as good and accurate a description as I can give it.

THE FIGHT ON KNIFE R

July 19—This morning we were up and anxious to get our summer's work done and go again as soon as possible. After a good deal started at 5 a. m., the Second Brigade in advance lay through a high prairie country, high buttes regular coming to a peak like a sugar loaf. Along appearance of coal and iron, both coming to the surface. The iron ore was as fair specimens as I ever saw. The march of twenty miles, camping on the Cannon Ball river, a good camp, fine stream of running water and good grass.

July 20—Started at 5 and made a march of twenty miles, arriving in camp at 2 o'clock. Had a fine day, not so rough as the day before. We did not have a very good grass, but neither good water or wood.

July 21—Got off at 5 and made a march of twenty miles, arriving again on the Cannon Ball river. We got in good wood, water and grass. The country was not as rough as the first day out.

July 22—Started pretty early this morning, making a march of sixteen miles, getting into camp on the Cannon Ball river. Had a good camp, wood, water and grass. Clear weather.

July 23—Made a pretty early start this morning, making a march of sixteen miles, arriving at the Cannon Ball and came some seven miles further, where we had good wood, water and grass. The march of sixteen miles. The country as very rough.

some three hours to cross the Cannon Ball river. We passed is called the Dog's Teeth Buttes. Got into camp quite late.

July 24--Started this mornin: at 5 and made a march of 12 miles and made Heart river at 2. It was very warm and we suffered some for want of water. It was a kind of a tedious day's march we got to our journey's end finally and had a fine camp, there plenty of wood, water and grass.

July 25--We laid over today making preparations for a march we had got information that there was a large body of Indians to fight us on Knife river, some sixty or seventy miles north. We got some mules and tried the experiment of packing them but that to be no go, as Mr. Mule concluded that he did not enlist for that purpose. So the General concluded that he would try wagon transportation. Officers and men were ordered to dispense with the extra luggage and to take today's cooked rations in their knapsacks. This begins to savor of Indians. The day was spent in preparations. The Idaho teams were all corralled, as was our own except what light wagons were in the outfit and our hospital ambulance train. Night set in leaving us not ready to start. He has well to state here that this is a beautiful stream of clear water running over a bed of sand with any amount of coal stone in the stream and in the bluffs on the stream, veins of that material found from four to seven feet thick. Here we found some of the best specimens that I have seen. They consisted of thin soft soapstone with all manner of figures on them. Some had the whole figure of a fish, others a bunch of grapes, plums and leaves of every sort of description. Our gold seekers tried their luck here but did not with any great degree of success, but I believe that, in the language of the miners, they did "Raise the color."

July 26--This morning opened up on us bright and clear. We got ready and all started out round in the vicinity and grazed horses while the train managers were getting our transportation moving order. While this was being done some of the boys indulged pretty freely in "Capt. King Sulter Rye." The consequence of this result was a free fight in which there was more noise than blood. It passed the time till 2 o'clock when the bugle sounded "To horse and off we went, the First Brigade in advance. We marched two miles when we were ordered to halt till everything came up. There was plenty of good water and grass so we filled our canteens.

ER.

crossed early, being back to civilization of fussin: we got. Our roads today ng nearly perpendic- the route was every surface of the ground. saw. We made a Ball at 3 p. m. Had plenty of good wood h of twenty miles. The country not as y good camp. Had hiteen miles, camp- at 12 o'clock. Had pretty rolling, but nd made a march of on Ball river at 12. ntry similar to yes-enin: Crossed the er. Camped on a and grass. Made a rough. It took us watered our horses and let them eat. Captain Cavalry was left in command of the corral with a company of guards to keep off all intruders.

But we had not more than fairly got out before the bugle sounded "To horse" and we were off again. The cause of our hurry was the news that the scouts had made a raise of the Indians fighting them. This was told us by Col. Peck along the lines saying, "Men, they are fighting, get excited, but remember that firing cannot hurt his blanket at you, ain't going to hurt any of you running, as there is no place to run to." This news entered the boys' heads, for instead of looking on the treat you could see impatience in every eye to get on of action.

Well, on we went, and found out after a while we met a hunting party of fifty or sixty Indians and the Indians showed fight and about two-thirds of the party fled. The Captain, ignominiously fled, leaving the rest of themselves. This they did by standing their ground, the whole party of redskins to flight, killing one, and then marched on till after dark when we bivouacked for water and were not allowed to build a fire because it was that there was some 700 or 800 Indians.

A laughable affair occurred here which was of great interest and no little fun among the boys. One of the boys got to dreaming. We were sleeping right close together. He fancied the Indians were after him and he began to yell and feet, boo-hoo-ing and crying. It scared the whole company, one surge which aroused the whole company, and he was on his horse's bits, for we had them all saddled and ready for trouble. By this time the boys on the left of him were up and then we found out what was up, and he was up and then lay down and all slept soundly, notwithstanding the "scare."

July 27—Started at 4 and made a march over a pretty rough rolling country, stopping for a while for a fee, and got into camp at 5 o'clock on Knife

t. Tripp of the Dakota with a sufficient number

r horses turned out be-mounted and got off
ws brought in by our some Indians and were llock, who came riding on the advance. Don't s, or an Indian shaking you; and don't think of This was the last thing
oking for a place of reget ahead to the scene

while that the scouts had d fired into them. The f the scouts, along with r comrades to shift for ground and putting the
as they reported. We ed without any wood or ith chips, as the report in the neighborhood.

raised quite an excite-of the boys in L Com-
ht in front of our horses.
e, and got on his hands
he horses and they gave and each man rabbed
and bridled ready for
he line began to laugh,
d a good hearty laugh,
withstanding the Indian

of twenty-seven miles
ing only to cook cof-river. Here we had a splendid camp, having plenty of wood, and grass and running

We got to bed pretty early.

July 28—Was awakened up at 12 o'clock by reveille. V up and saddled our horses and got them all ready for moving then went to bed again and slept till 3, when we got off again First Brigade in advance. We came eight miles and cooked breakfast on a branch of Knife river. Rested about an hour then started on again and marched till 12, when one of the came in and rode up the General's ambulance. The "halt" sounded and Col. Pollock rode over. After stopping a short he came back and spoke to the Captain: "Well, Captain, we found the s— of b— at last!" And such a yell as went up have no idea of.

While this was going on, Gen. Sully had his orderlies ou-rying dispatches and getting his lines formed and making other arations to fight. He seemed to make his calculations according circumstances. The General thought from the appearance thin: s that the Indians were about four or five miles off. The and Third Battalions of the Sixth were ordered to fight on foot.
Seventh, the Ei hth Minnesota Infantry, and Bracket's Bat-were held as a reserve to charge; so the Second Battalion of Sixth and part of the Second Minnesota Cavalry, and the rest of were to support the Minnesota Battery and guard our little train Indian scouts, Dakota Cavalry and Company M of the Sixth w support the Prairie Battery, Capt. Pope's.

After these arrangements were all completed, the order given to move forward. This we did for a mile or two and the we were ordered to prepare to fight on foot. This was done counting off in fours and No. 4 was left mounted to attend to lead the horses of the other three; then we formed in one line Company G went forward as skirmishers. Company A was on extreme right. On the left of the Sixth was the Seventh, and on extreme left the Minnesota Eighth Infantry. The led horses brought up in the rear of the companies to which they respect-belonged.

Finally, we were ordered forward. This was obeyed with rity, as the boys were anxious to be up and at them. We kept vancing some time when the Indians tried to flank us on the r Capt. Jones' battery was run up and they were forced to give.

right in front of our right, and in fact the reds were doing some fancy feats of hind some small buttes, would peep over would go before we could get a shot at time when some of the boys watched as they blazed away at him and soon a fion.

They then broke for some time Jones had recourse to some of his "some shells in the timber which made Capt. Pope was paying his respects to they began to feel as though they would and acted accordingly by falling back men were ordered to charge which the Indians fly in every direction and killed lost one man killed, the orderly sergeant wounded.

All this time our column was double-quick, under a scorching July drink. The reds kept falling back, then precipitately down a hill that was almost now 8 o'clock and nearly dark we had and the "Rally" was sounded. We since 12 o'clock and had had nothing to again and camped the most compact the brigades not occupying more space than ordinary occasions.

I will relate some of the incidents After we had dismounted and got in forward. On the boys went regardless was a pond of water which by obliquely go around, but some were in such a hurry up to the neck they went, but went on other side pretty well wet, but not discomfited.

During the fight a boy not over a battalion got separated from the command Indian. The little fellow was scared and fired off all the loads in his revolver and with which he finished Mr. Indian. The along our line. The valiant orsemanship. They got be-and fire and then away they

hem. This continued some d as soon as one showed up ed them out of that posi-er still ahead. Here Capt.

peace persuaders" and threw hem get. At the same time the gentlemen on the left till as soon be some place else,
At this juncture Brackett's did in fine style, making the ng about thirty. They only eant of Company C, and two dvancing, sometimes on the n and hardly any water fit to they suddenly left us, flying t perpendicular. As it was to give them up for the night had been on foot and going eat. We finally got together t we had ever done, both the n one regiment would on or-

at happened during the day.
o line the order was given to
of obstacles. Right in front g a little to the left we could rry that in they plunged and through and came out on the ura ed.

5 years old in Brackett's Bat-l and fell in with a powerful pretty badly, but pitched in,
then went in with his saber, en he came back and related his adventure alternately laughing and crying. I "top-knot" with him.

After we had got up to the woods where the concealed some of the boys saw an Indian hiding fired a ray at him, killed him and brought him o long to dispatch him. It was a fortunate thing discovered, he would probably have brought down.

July 29 - Was awakened pretty early and st treating foe. Went some six miles and found it go any further on account of the ground being s we could not follo them with cavalry horses. T Little Missouri bluffs which will be described he turned round and came back on to the battle gro till 4 o'clock. Part of the troops were occupie burning the deserted stuff of the Indians.

Some idea may be formed of the strength of tell you that we destroyed some 8,000 or 9,000 lo stuff in proportion, any amount of dried berries Here we found a spring of splendid tasting wat been in our canteens a short time it was utterly u o'clock the "Advance" was sounded and we com grade movement. Made a march of eight or ten m camp right on a stream. Plenty of grass and w horses out to graze.

Just before sunset we were ordered up with Indians were coming in on us. We got our horses under arms in a very short time. But the thing p Indians. They had a pony all fixed up with bu our horses, but they lost on the game as we were for them. They succeeded, however, in killing t who were stationed on an isolated post but their h ran into camp.

A melancholy circumstance occurred here wh to all concerned. We were all put on guard a Company E being on, Sergeant Winget was in cha company. He retired to the rear for some purpo seeing him raise up fired at him and shot him dead was a good man and well liked by officers and me were undisturbed although we kept our horses saddled all night.

July 30—Started this morning at 2 and made a march of twenty-five or thirty miles and arrived on Knife river at 3 where we had a good camp. It a little lower on the stream than we camped going up. Saw several signs of Indians. The General has some idea that they are trying to make a raid on our corral. We went to bed in usual style and had a good night's sleep. The First Brigade in advance. A pleasant day.

July 31—Started at 5 and came on to Heart river, a distance of thirty-five miles. We camped lower down the stream than where we camped before. We had an awful rain and wind storm about 3 o'clock. Got into camp at 5. We found the corral all right, they not having been disturbed during our absence. They were exceedingly glad to see us back again. We had another heavy rain during the night.

August 1—This morning dawned bright and clear. The day was put in drying clothing, etc. We had a congratulatory order read at dress parade in regard to our raid, etc. We fired off our guns and cleaned up, having a good place to wash up. Our train came up from the corral.

August 2—Another very warm day. Was in camp all day making preparations for starting on our westerly course again.

ACROSS TO THE YELLOWSTONE.

August 3—Started this morning at 5 in a westerly direction. Had a good road traveling over rolling prairie. Came a distance of twenty-five miles and camped on Heart river at 3 o'clock. Had a good camp, plenty of wood, water and grass. The day was cool and pleasant.

August 4—Another cool day. Started at 5. Country about same as yesterday. Made a march of nineteen miles and camped on Heart river at a little after 1. The First Brigade in the rear today. Had a good camp, plenty of wood, water and grass. There has been an Indian encampment here not long ago.

August 5—Started at 5 and came on till 4, when we bivouacked on the edge of one of the roughest pieces of country I have ever seen. We made a march of twenty-five miles. Our camp was good. Grass, but no water, although there were standing pools of rain water from one to three miles from camp. Buffalo chips plenty. First Brigade in advance.

August 6—Started at 5, marched all day and only made twelve miles. Very warm. We marched through what is called the "bad lands," or as Gen. Sully termed it, "H—l with the fires put out." The appearance indicated as though there had been a great conflagration there at some time. The bluffs or hills were in all manner of shapes, from the regular shaped mound to the perpendicular side hill and all you might say bare. The clay was of different colors, which gave it at a distance a very picturesque appearance. Scattered along once in a while you would see a clump of bushes, sometimes wild cherries. Jun. berries, etc., and other groves would be fir or cedar.

We found here petrification in every variety, from what had been a tree of six or seven feet in circumference down to the merest atom, all hard as the granite rock. L Company of the Sixth alry being on flank guard, we were well prepared to see all th to be seen. Now we would see the colors two or three miles the hills and soon we would see them right, as you might say, us. I will not be doubted, I hope, when I say that while the was marching seven miles we as flankers had not marched more than two miles from camp, so far extended was the line that the front travel say two miles before the rear would start and then not but eighty rods from them. Such was the march of the 6th of August eleven hours' hard marching.

But at length our expectations were realized by the sight of the Little Missouri. How that stream found a way down through the hills is past my comprehension. We found a pretty good cañon at the Little Missouri, with the exception of grass as we had good food and water in abundance. As flankers we roamed over a good deal of country and found plenty of cherries and June berries and the boys found strawberry plants. We found good water, but the column suffered for water till they arrived in camp.

August 7—Col Pattee was sent out with his Battalion to look up a party that had been sent out to try and get a road out through the buttes. We lay in camp till 10 when some of the men who had gone out rather far to graze were surprised by a band of Indians numbering something like thirty or forty. The boys all came into camp in a hurry. One boy from Company A came near being caught by the cold, but he succeeded in getting into camp. There were five or six of the boys. As soon as the alarm was given we struck up stakes and started up the river stopping some three miles from our old encampment to wait till our fatigued party came in.

But before they came a report came that the Indians were on the bluffs opposite. Sure enough, on looking up, there they were trying to fire into us, but their firing could do us no harm as they were not shooting half way to our camp. Just as we were going into camp Company L of the Seventh came in pell mell all in confusion, saying that the Indians had come on to them in such numbers and in such a way that instant flight was the only way to prevent complete annihilation. After they got in and we all got straightened around our heavy guard posted we all went to sleep as quietly as if nothing had transpired, although we had to get up at 12 and saddle up.

August 8—Started this morning at 5, the Second Brigade advance. The First Brigade was acting as train guard. Part of the Sixth was on the right flank dismounted, the Seventh on the left flank dismounted and Capt. Miner's Battalion of Dakota Cavalry and part of the Sixth brought up the rear. I forgot to say that we had crossed the Little Missouri.

The Indians were all around us trying to break in on every side, but the Minnesota battery was mowing them in front and scattering them in all directions. Up they would come onto the right and left flanks, but the potency of the old muskets and Minnie rifles assisted when practicable by Capt. Pope's battery, was a little too much lead for the great braves. Back they would go over the bluffs (for the bluffs were just like those we crossed on the 6th) going up and down places on their ponies where it seemed impossible for a man to travel on foot. Balked here they would make a dash at the rear guard. Once they came near cutting them off, but they found a little more than their match in Capt. Miner and his little band.

The did succeed in getting one horse, saddle, bridle, gun, revolver, saber, etc., with some forty or fifty rounds of rifle ammunition. This was from a private in Company H, of the Sixth. He had halted outside of his company for some reason and was dismounted at the time. He was just putting on his belt to return to the company when they pitched in, scared his horse and put an arrow or two into him. He broke for his company, leaving everything. He did not get much hurt, but was pretty badly scared.

The red whelps harrassed us all day, but they done us but little harm with the exception of wounding our Blackfoot guide and the only one we had that knew anything of our whereabouts. He was pretty badly wounded through the left shoulder. We found a hole of rain water where the general concluded we had better camp as we did not know how far it would be to any other water.

We camped pretty compact. Had no grass nor wood. After we got into camp and the men were out with their horses trying to find grass, the Indians made a rush to stampede our stock, but they were driven back and they got nothing. We had our cannon placed all around the camp, but we were disturbed no more till morning. The calculation was that we killed eighty or 100 Indians during the day. The number could not be ascertained as they carried off their dead in a great measure. It was a pretty warm day and a good deal on account of water.

August 9—This morning we started at 4. Our horses saddled nearly all night. The First Brigade was in advance when we got partly into line we noticed that the Indians were making a break in our right. The First Battalion of the 1st Cavalry was ordered to dismount and fight on foot. The Indians were coming in at a pretty fast pace and the boys were ordered forward double quick. Off they started with a yell that proved to be the nerves of the sensitive aborigines, who as soon as they were getting into a good shape to fight fled as they always did. The boys fired considerable at them. How many were killed I don't say, but there must have been a good many.

When the Indians saw they were baffled at this game they tried to make a dash on the rear, when the Second Battalion of the 1st Cavalry which was held as a reserve, was ordered to dismount and fight. They did in a hurry and drove the Indians back with a vengeance. When they saw they were foiled in every effort they abandoned their weapons and concern and left us for good.

All this time the trains were moving and by the time we were all mounted and ready to start we found ourselves on a new country and some good water. We watered our animals on a few miles and turned them out to graze. After grazing for a few miles we started on and had not gone far before we ran across the Indians, all deserted. It was a very large camp, there had been several hundred lodges. We got on to their trail and after it some two or three miles when it divided, part of them going to the Missouri river while others moved more in the course of the lowstone. We made a march of eighteen miles, not stopping at camp till nearly night, we found some water that was very good, some good grass, but no wood.

Along in the night we were awakened out of a sound sleep by the cry, "Awake up, the camp is full of Indians; get up for your own sake!" Well you can imagine that we were not long in getting up. After we got out and looked around we found it was a false alarm. The cause was a man in Company F had been on guard and had fallen off and lay down and fell asleep. I suppose he was d

Indians and had a fit of nightmare, hence the scare. But finally we got to sleep and had a pleasant rest after all.

August 10—Started at 9 and made a march of sixteen miles, which brought us onto the Beaver river, where we arrived at 6. It was a rough road, especially the last end of it. We had good camp with the exception of grass, having good wood and running water. There was not more than room enough to camp between the hills. Saw no redskins.

August 11—Started at 5 and marched till 12 over the most barren part of the country that we have seen, not anything growing but wild sage, when we came to a stream. When we tasted the water we found it to be alkali or salt water, worse than any we had yet had, but in the valley of the stream we found some grass. After our horses had rested and eaten all they wanted, or all they could get, we started and marched till 7 o'clock. We found some water, but it was very salty. We found some grass, but that too was dry and salty to the taste. Some of the boys said they heard a boat whistle. We made a march altogether of thirty miles.

August 12—We grazed our horses till noon and then started and made a march of eight miles over a rough country and arrived on the Yellowstone at 4. Here we had good wood and water, but no grass. We fed our horses some cottonwood. We also got a small feed of corn for them, I think four pounds to the horse. We found here two steamboats, the "Alone" and the "Chippewa Falls" awaiting us. It was a pretty warm day. Found the Yellowstone to be a splendid stream with a very strong current. The banks were lined with a heavy growth of cottonwood timber. There was an abundance of game, such as deer, elk, bear, etc.

BACK TO THE MISSOURI.

August 13—At 12 today we started down s miles and the Sixth crossed, swimming the horses other stuff on the boats. We had no feed. We a

August 14—Went out this morning and found for our horses. We kept them out till 1 o'clock Brigade and the Idaho train crossed the Yellowstone Brigade lost two men and some teams crossing and lost a couple of men and two teams. At 1 o'clock down the river towards the Missouri. We traveled a splendid bottom and camped on a stream where we wood and grass, at 5 o'clock.

August 15—This morning the Sixth was ordered to unload the boats and to load up our trains so as to en get down the river, as it was falling so rapidly that it cult to navigate with our boats. The rest of the c on down some thirteen miles.

August 16—The Sixth started this morning an eighteen miles where we found the rest of the com near to timber, but about a mile from water. The gra We had a miserable camp. It was windy and dus about 1 o'clock.

August 17—Today we laid in camp all day. It and dusty. Some of the men who were out hunting teen elks.

August 18—The Second Brigade received moved down to the Missouri river. Part of them go ing their wagons over on the boats and fording the m One man belonging to the Seventh Iowa and driving Brigade Headquarters was drowned while crossing ting entangled among the mules. The rest of the command laid in camp all day.

August 19—The First Brigade started this morning at an early hour and came down to the river, a distance of ten miles, and succeeded in getting across the Missouri river below Fort Union at 4 o'clock. We found the Missouri about as usual, only I think the timber is heavier than farther down on the same stream.

We found the valley of the Yellowstone from where we struck it down to the Missouri wide and level, averaging seven or eight miles, as fine a looking land as I have ever seen. But like a good deal of country we had passed over parched up for want of rain. But the buffalo signs gave conclusive evidence that this valley had been once, not very long ago, very fertile.

About this time the Idaho train split up, some going up the Yellowstone, some up the Missouri and others returning on the government boats. It will be as well to state here that all our sick had been transferred to the boats, but the jolting they had experienced in the ambulances set very hard on them and the treatment on the boats was not such as it ought to have been. Poor fellows! some of their bones lie bleaching far away from home and loved ones.

August 20—Laid over today, that is the First Brigade. The Second moved on down stream a distance of six or eight miles in order to procure better feed as up where we were camped there was no grass. While lying here we grazed our horses down some four miles below Fort Union and in the vicinity of old Fort Williams.

This had been built by the Catholic missionaries as early as 1827. It was built in a square and was built of unburnt brick, or adobe. Some of the relics laying around showed that those who were there before had been pretty well fixed up, as parts of cane-bottomed chairs, washboards, etc., testified. It was built on a plain about half a mile from the river and the bastions had command of the river both up and down. It was well situated for defense and conveniences both of wood and water. Right down below these old ruins was the hulk of one of our steamers that had sunk on her trip up the river, by which accident our poor animals were euchred out of quite a lot of forage, as the boat had on some 1,600 sacks of corn all of which was lost. I think our horses had some four feeds of corn while in this vicinity and this was the last they got till late in September.

Fort Union is situated close to the river about two miles above the mouth of the Yellowstone river and is considered the best defense of any post on the river, the bastions being the best parts of the fort. It is the best looking post on the river seen. Here we found Company I of the Thirtieth and they were still left here. They appeared to be doing themselves very well. They had plenty of buffalo jerky and a printing office, issuing a paper called the "Frontier."

August 21—This was a very warm day. We started at 10 o'clock when we started and went down to the mouth of the Missouri. The Brigade was camped. Here we found a good camp with plenty of wood, grass and Missouri water. We got in about 10 o'clock.

August 22—Started at 9, came eighteen miles to the mouth of the Missouri river. Had a splendid camp. Got news of the death of William Duwe, one of our best boys.

August 23—Started at 9, came a distance of 10 miles and camped on a creek called the Big Muddy. Had a good camp with plenty of grass and water, but no wood. Got in about 10 o'clock.

August 24—Started this morning at 5 and came 10 miles and made a march of twenty-five miles over a dry, barren road. The roads were good. We had a good camp on the mouth of the Missouri, water and grass.

August 25—Started at 5 and made a march of 10 miles and camped on an alkali hole about two miles from the mouth of the Missouri and grass. We traveled most of the day on the river in a while going up on to the bluffs, which we had not seen in other parts of Dakota that we had traveled in.

August 26—Started at 6, made a march of 10 miles and encamped on the Missouri again. Had a pretty good camp with plenty of grass and water in abundance, but had to go a long way to get the water. We got in at 12.

August 27—Started this morning at 4 and came 10 miles over high prairie road. Got into camp on the mouth of the Missouri. Had one of the best camps I have seen on the mouth of the Missouri, grass and Missouri water. We saw the place where we had camped after crossing the Missouri river, the same place where we had fought in July. Our artist has a picture of the constructed the best for ing of rock as well as the river that I have a Wisconsin Infantry, be enjoying them-

rk and were running ntier Scout."

We laid in camp till 3
where the Second
camp, plenty of good
out 6.

les by 3 and camped
Got the intelligence ys.

of five miles and end a very good camp,
ot in here about 10

ame on till 4, having arren country. The e Missouri, plenty of

of twenty-five miles, e river. Had wood
e river bottom, once found similar to all

eighteen miles and
good camp, wood,
a good ways to get

came about twenty n the Missouri at 3.
rch, plenty of wood,
here the Indians had me fellows that we
his camp in his possession. We found plenty of cherries and dried June b at this camp.

August 28—Started at 5, came twenty-six miles and an alkali pond about two miles from the river. Had wood at this place. We camped right in among the did not get into camp till after sundown. We were all the Second Brigade was in advance and they marched they always did when they were in advance.

August 29—We had over today among the b amount of Indians came down from Fort Berthold to se Company G of the Sixth Iowa got orders to stop at th
the winter, making Capt. Moreland commander of the fo Gaylord, A. A. Q. M. This is a wooden post close to the river, with bastions at two corners of it. The Ventres and Mandan Indians have their headquarters
Their lodges are all built of earth, or what are called
They are all denominated friendly Indians and I supp rich, having when we were there some 300 or 400 ac ripened and were harvesting it. These Indians showed endence and manliness than any Indians I have ever seemed to express a great deal of satisfaction and pl result of Gen. Sully's expedition and a great desire for up the hostiles, which they contended were at no g north of that post and even offered to act as guides to t
they were.

August 30—Started at 9 this morning and came so by 12. Had a good camp some distance from the wood and grass. Some of the boys went to the fort to with the Aborigines. Company G left us and took up t at the post.

August 31—Started this morning, came twenty-camped on or near the Missouri river. We were some and had to go through willows to get to it. We ha and grass. The Second Brigade was in advance.
warm. We were mustered for pay here.

DOWN TO FORT

September 1—Started this morning a easterly direction. Made a march of twenty on a large lake considerably impregnated the foulness of wild ducks and geese. We no wood. The country as literally covered. General ordered the men out with their stampeding our horses.

September 2—Started in pretty good weather, traveled sixteen miles and camped at what are called the Sixteen Lakes. There were several lakes here, but no other vegetation or wood although there were some little pieces of spruce. It was not very warm. Did not have any grass to eat. It was said that from here it was only forty miles to the Lake. We rather expected to meet the Indians near it, but saw no signs of any. Direction of travel was

September 3—Started this morning at easterly direction. It commenced raining 12. Very hard road, high and dry. Pa Saw a good many buffaloes, in fact everything with buffaloes. We finally brought up a bad. Had another heavy rain at night. scarce. The boys killed a good many bu

September 4—Laid over today to clear Sunday and the first Sunday we have laid only when we were building Fort Rice. The water was bad to drink, but fine to wash.

September 5—Started in a southeasterly march of twenty miles, camping on Maple warm and cloudy, roads good. Water is a

From this camp we could see what are called the
They are too far off to visit. There was a large m in sight.

September 6--This has been a hard day on us day long. Started at 4 a. m. and marched till 6 p. m., of twenty-six miles and camped right among some h was no food nearer than half a mile and no water on tled on the uneven places of the ground. This being of course good. Our horses had good grass, but t were nearly worn out with so much hard marching feed. But we got them out and then got into our t possible, and notwithstanding our being so wet we m good night's rest. The Second Brigade, which was not let as far as we did by two or three miles, encam high prairie. It quit raining a little after dark.

September 7--Did not get off this morning till 6 pretty well, considering our big march through the
It might be said right here that we have so little rain when it does come it finds us wondering how it mana And I would say further that this was the first day's s seen since I have been in the territory. Made a m miles through a broken country and camped at 12 about seven miles above Gen. Sibley's famous Can Here is here the General had a splendid chance to but failed to do so for reasons I suppose satisfactory t to the whole country. The Second Brigade did not as they were behind us in the morning. They took of Lieut. Beaver, who was killed a year ago, and bur is a fine day and we have a good camp. Good w grass.

September 8--Did not get started very early t account of having to bridge the stream, but finally w squad was sent forward to Fort Rice to get our n eighteen mile march and camped on the bluffs of the one mile from the stream. Had good water, wood a Second Brigade camped about two miles above u
About 10 p. m. the mail came and was distributed you can judge there was not much sleeping done til were read and re-read. Here we were informed tha

RICE.

at five and travelled a north-ty-ei. ht miles and camped with alkali, but more with e had some good grass but vered with buffalo. The rifles to keep them from

d season, made a march of led the Dog Town buttes. er kind of water. Had no s of cherry t e. It was o amount to anything. It y or fifty miles to Devil's e Indians at this point, or n east.

a pretty early hour in an
on us at 10 and kept on till assed a good many lakes.
ing appeared to be covered bout 4 at a lake. Water Had good grass, ood ffaloes

can up and dry up, as it is up since we left Randall,
t as arm and pleasant.
h with.

erly direction and made a creek. The weather was alkali and not fit to drink.

emigrants under Capt. Fisk, had left Fort Rice with an escort of fifty men sent out by Col. Dill of the Thirtieth Wisconsin Infantry. The detail was composed of men and horses that had been left behind, not able to go with the expedition and had been left behind to recuperate. They followed the trail of the expedition till they reached the Heart river country, where the Indians corralled them. This information was brought in by two soldiers of Brackett's Battalion Minnesota Cavalry, who had by some means managed to escape. This expedition of Col. Dill's was under command of Capt. Smith Company A, Dakota Cavalry. At this camp Lieut.-Col. S. M. Plock received his commission as Colonel, Maj. Tebroeck that Lieutenant-Colonel, and Capt. John Gallagher of Company A, ("Pa. Gallagher, we called him) that of Major.

September 9—Started this morning at 6 and came nineteen miles, which brought us six miles below Fort Rice on the Missouri river. Here we had a good camp, being close to wood, water and grass. The rumors in regard to the corraling of Capt. Fisk's train was confirmed by the detailing of 100 men from our regiment to their relief. There were also 100 men from the Seventh Iowa Cavalry, 100 from Brackett's Battalion, 200 from the Second Brigade and 200 from the Thirtieth Wisconsin Infantry. All under command of Col. Dill of the Thirtieth Wisconsin. They were ordered to take eighteen days' rations and to move as soon as possible. The Second Brigade was in camp directly across the river from Rice, so they were ready at once for the trip.

September 10—This day was spent in getting the boys across the river, drawing clothing, loading up their train, etc., getting ready to start. Was quite chilly.

September 11—Most of us in camp nearly all day. The boys who were on the Dill rescuing detail got off and were more than willing to go to rescue the women and children and soldiers, but I have my doubts as to any good feelings they entertained towards Col. Dill or Capt. Fiske, as those two men were the means of getting their train into the scrape they were in. At least this was the opinion held by the rank and file of the members of the expedition.

September 12—This has been a very pleasant day and an idle one in camp.

September 13—Another idle day in camp. Not much transpired to relieve the monotony. It was a fine pleasant day. The Second Brigade was paid off and part of them ordered to report at Fort Snelling, Minn., and part at Fort Wadsworth on James river, D. T., as soon as possible.

September 14—A fine day and an idle one. Nothing out of regular line.

September 15—The siege of lethargy was raised slightly today by the appearance of the paymaster, who paid us off, and all but the Quartermaster and Commissary Sergeants received the advanced wages only giving them the old rates; $17 per month, while the other sergeant received $20 per month. This blunder of the paymaster was rectified afterwards.

September 16—Today we had an Indian scare. The reds had run in on Company J who were in camp up the river cutting and putting up hay, and ran off some of their horses but did not kill or wound any of the men. A scout was sent after them but did not catch them.

September 17—A fine day in camp. The scout returned today that was sent out and reported no Indians.

September 18—A fine day but an idle one.

September 19—Report for today and yesterday are both the same.

September 20—Was still continuous of days before.

September 21—This morning we started out with our horses and as it had got to be our common custom we were there with no revolvers. We were engaged in picketing our horses when some of the boys looking up saw four horses outside the guard line and two Indians mounted on ponies making for them. An alarm was given and some of the boys started into camp to increase the alarm. Our horse guard was immediately on hand (they of course were armed with revolvers and muskets.) Corporal Thompson of the guard started after Ser. eant Alf. Murphy and borrowed a rifle and revolver, Private John Hill borrowed a revolver from a guard and started. All these men were from Company L of the Sixth Iowa Cavalry, Capt. Wolf and a private from Company J of the Sixth Cavalry was also in pursuit. They followed them some ten miles when Hill began to grow weary and turned to look back when he saw the Indians closing in around them from all sides. He halloed at the rest to come back or they would be killed, but they either did not hear or heed him and led on by Capt. Wolf who did not take in the danger of their situation and was confident that they would gobble the reds. We found that they were bound to go he started back as fast as would come. The Indians started after him but he finally turned and made his way back to camp and reported that Thompson and the others were surrounded by Indians and thought killed. Upon receipt of this information Company L were ordered to start in pursuit, which they did as quick as could get ready. By the time we were ready to start Captain came in and confirmed Private Hill's report. We started on an eight or ten miles travel met the Company I man dressed in drawers and stockings, with a firm grasp on his revolver. He told that three of the boys had made their way into the thick willows and the Indians were afraid to follow them. He had intended to swim the Missouri but the Indians were too close to do that. His opinion was that Murphy and Thomson were both killed. He turned and went back with us. After we had gone about a mile we found poor Murphy literally cut to pieces, being mutilated in a horrible manner, stuck full of arrows, an awful gash from the head of a hawk in his side, scalped and stripped and robbed of everything he had but his boots, which they had left. We got him in the morning and searched the willows for Thompson but could get no information of him. We saw tracks to the edge of the river and concluded he had swam the river and in this our suspicions were confirmed. He came to Fort Rice and then to camp where we found him on his return at 9 p. m. He was pretty badly used up, being sick and travelling and swimming the river having had to shed his clothes in order to cross the river, so you can see his toilet was not very good when he came to camp.

The above is as correct an account of Sergeants Murphy as it is possible to give for there was no one but his murderers to witness the bloody deed. It was the opinion of those who were in the willows that Murphy sold his life pretty dearly as they saw seven shots that he must have fired, six from his revolver and one from his rifle, and as near as we could judge he was hurrying to the willows when he either stumbled and fell or fell from the river. Murphy was a general favorite both in company and regiment. He was the kind that was as brave as a lion and yet as tender hearted as a woman. In proof of this it might be stated that a purse of $10.00 contributed by his comrades to his stricken wife as a slight

When Hill
as his horse nally eluded
at Murphy, ans and he anies D and uick as they Capt. Wolf
d and after
sed in shirt,
He told us
willow brush intended to o that. His killed but he
out ten miles utilated in a om a toma-
everything he n the ambul-
get no infor-
ad conclude correct as d him on our g still from s clothing in ct elaborate Murphy's death
ers present
no ere in they counted ver and one
n his horse
n exaustion.
ment, one of eartied as a
of $150 was ght token of their regard for him. The Indians made a good haul on that raid, a good watch, $60 in money, Murphy's clothes and horses, (none of them very good however,) three saddles and bridles, one rifle, one revolver and a good deal of ammunition.

September 22—A raw cold day. Companies C, E, I, F and M to stay at Fort Rice till relieved and send their horses below all but six or seven. Company A took C's horses, Company B took M's horses, Company D took E's horses, Company H took I's horses and Company L took F's horses. The day was spent in getting them turned over.

September 23—Another day in camp. Sergeant Murphy was buried at the cemetery at Rice with the usual military honors. No word from the scout after Fisk.

September 24—Monotonous.

September 25—Corporal R. Mickle who has been sick for some time is reported dangerously ill and no hopes are entertained for his recovery. A fine day.

September 26—Rather a cool day. Corporal Mickle died at 7 p. m. Another hero gone and one who was a man in every sense of the word. It might truthfully be said of him, "None knew him but to love him, none named him but to praise." If he had an enemy in the Company I never knew it. He was an idle Corporal, for an orderly sergeant always ready for every duty. We buried him at Fort Rice. Two of his brothers belonging to the Seventh Iowa Cavalry left him in good health while they went on the Fish expedition will find only the mound above his remains on their return.

September 27—Today we buried Corporal R. Mickle at Fort Rice cemetery. Farewell Reuben your memory will always be green in our hearts. While at Rice today we learned of another Indian murder down on the Cannon Ball river. Some men from E Company were guarding teams that were hauling hay and the reds made a dash on them, killing one man named Murphy and wounding another. They left but got no U. S. property. James Contell of L Company shot an Indian just outside of the guard lines. Mr. Lo was trying to run off some government horses and Jim drew a bead on him and I guess took him about the middle of the way as he leaned over the neck of the pony who turned and loped to the rear. There were several Indians in the party but at the warm reception made received they left.

September 28—This has been quite a busy day in getting ready to leave which we expect to do in a few days. Damp and cool.

September 29—Another busy day in camp. Gen. Sully moved his headquarters from Rice to our camp. Received orders for tomorrow. We hear that Fisk's scouts had returned as far as Union Ball and are expected in tomorrow.

September 30—Started at 6 a. m. and made a march of two miles and got into camp on Beaver creek at 4 p. m. Damp and cool. Some of the boys shot a buffalo. An Indian tried to come to camp, but he escaped leaving his blanket behind. The command now consisted of Gen. Sully and staff, the Indian Scouts, Companies A, B, D, H and L of the Sixth Iowa Cavalry, Col. Lock commanding Companies C, I. and M of the Seventh Cavalry, Col. Pattee commanding Maj. Brackett's Battalion of Cavalry, Companies A and B of the Dakota Cavalry, prairie battery; the other Minnesota troops having left for the Mississippi river.

October 1—Rather chilly but a pretty good day for the season. Made Swan Lake a distance of thirty-six miles a little before dark. Some Indians caught a Frenchman who was carrying a gun. Capt. Miner gave chase and recovered the Frenchman and his gun but the Indians escaped.

October 2—Started at 8 a. m. and marched twenty miles and camped on Blue Blanket creek at 2 p. m. A fine day for the season. The Indian scouts reported a white woman at the lake.

October 3—Started at 6 a. m. and made a march of twenty miles and camped at 2 p. m. Had a fine day for marching.

October 4—This morning we started at an early hour and made a march of thirty miles, arriving at Assinibone creek at 5 p. m. a fine day.

October 5—Started at 8 and made a twenty-four mile march camping on the Oka Bayou at 2 p. m. Capt. Ames killed a buffalo which meant a short lay-off from breaking team.

October 6—Started at an early hour and after a march of five miles pulled in to the banks of Old Muddy.

October 7—This day virtually winds up the expedition.

tion their com-

n camp. Get-days. It was

n. Sully moved orders to move far as the Can-

rch of twenty-
e. It was quite ed to break in-behind. Our Indian scouts,
Col. S. M. Pol-nth Iowa Cavo-
n of Minneso-
valry and the
for the Missis-

for marching.
le after dark.
ng dispatches.
and dispatches

ty miles camp-
for marching.

ch of eighteen
ching.
hour and made 5 p. m. Had ar mile march

killed a young
n. rch of twenty-

dition for 1864

as the different detachments received their orders for their winter quarters and set about to carry them out.

Companies B, H and K of the Sixth are to garrison Fort Sully, Company L to stay at Sully and Crow Creek till Company K gets up from Randall. The Companies B, H and L go into quarters at Sully. The rest of the troops go on down the river and those who are to stay at Randall will relieve those who are there now and they will go on down the river.

Thus reader I have taken you with us through the memorable 1864 campaign of Gen. Sully hunting Indians in Dakota and will now with a few words concerning Capt. Flsk's expedition, and the final placement of the Sixth Cavalry for winterin_g will leave you, hoping you will not get as tired reading as I have been a good many times while on the march and writing this up. At Fort Sully we met six Companies of the First United States Volunteer Refugees from Alabama who were on the march to Fort Rice where they were to relieve the Thirtieth Wisconsin who were ordered south. The Alabama fellows looked rather seedy. Their marchin_g and the different climate accounting for that.

October 11—The scout under Lieut Pagean and Beekly arrived from the famous corral of Capt. Fish and from them I got the following account: They went on a nine day's march from Fort Rice and after the fourth day they took a route south of Gen. Sully's on July 6. After leaving Rice they were surprised while eating their breakfast by some Indians running in on them and stampeding their horses, aside from this nothing of note occurred. The ninth day about noon they came in sight of the corral and at first appearance it looked as though it was surrounded by Indian lodges. The command was drawn up in line of battle and ready for fight, making a different formation to what Gen. Sully would have placed them, the Infantry being put in close to the wagons while the cavalry was pushed forward as skirmishers. This may have been all right but the Cavalry men could not see it and as soon as the Cavalry boys saw what they supposed to be Indians they gave the usual yell and were ready to pitch in, but on closer examination what they supposed to be Indian lodges turned out to be the emigrants out grazing their stock. The rescuers found the besieged all anxiously waiting their arrival, although they did not know whether their messengers had ever got through to Fort Rice or not. Some of the emigrants were still anxious to go ahead while others were more than back. They stated that the Indians when first attacked about 75 men but they came on them so sudden that they were surprised and had a severe fight in which eight soldiers were killed before they had time to get their teams ready to fight. After that they got corralled and forced them off so as not to give them any chance of doing any harm. Capt. Smith of the Dakota Cavalry had charge of the team that he took hold with a cool determined bravery as he could under the circumstances, leading himself without danger. An instance to illustrate a soldier who could get a horse to go it being balky. The Captain dismounted and another man in his place and the horse went all right and the balky animal not the horse. One of the citizens had a rifle but was trying to skulk among the wagons and the soldiers took him out and informed the Captain who made him take it himself and did some fine shooting with it. How many Indians were killed but quite a number.

The Indians kept gathering until their estimated number was about 400. They had a white woman with them that was at Platte July 12, and she corresponded with Capt. Fisk trying to negotiate for her release when an incident occurred supposed to have started them off in a hurry while they were to treat for Mrs. Kelly (the captive's name.) They wanted Fisk to start out but Mrs. Kelly warned him not to go on their promises as they did not calculate to fulfill them. They trapped Fisk and his men, but as to their departure they had hard bread saturated with strychnine to kill wolves. The Indians got hold of it and it was reported that some died from the effects.

At the beginning of the fight they had captured one loaded with whisky and the other with ammunition. The whisky lasted they fought like demons. The women were highly pleased at sight of the soldiers and rejoiced at the opportunity of getting back and I suppose the men were freed. Capt. Fisk was anxious to go on or at least to go in that way. After laying over a little while to rest for Fort Rice at which place they arrived September 1st. Being here a day or two they all started for winter an willing to come attacking had only that they were sur- and four citizens ams corralled and fortified and kept anything further. them and all agree as any old veteran where there was could not get his unted him and put ht. The man was ns had an excellent d the women drove n give up his gun, it. I did not learn ated number was that they had taken t. Fisk and he was nt occurred that is e they were trying y tried to get Capt. or put any faith in em but only to en- re Fisk had some es and some of the me thirty of them atured two wagons, munition, while the en in the train were oiced at the oppor- e fully as well satis- t expressed himself rest up they started er 30. After rest- ter quarters. The Minnesota across by Fort Wadsworth to Snelling, the Iowa Wisconsin Cavalry by Fort Randall to Sioux City. The Infantry came down the river on boats built for that purpose while the Cavalry rode their horses.

October 22—Company K arrived at Fort Sully and Company started for Randall at which place they arrived the 27th, having fine weather to make the march. Here they crossed the river and went into winter quarters.

November 12—Companies C, E, I and M came down to Companies C and M crossed the river and E and I went on down to Sioux City and I to Yankton. The Sixth are this winter as follows: A, C, D, L and M at Randall, B, H and K at Sully, Sioux City, F at Crow Creek, G at Berthold and I at Yankton. change in the officers are as follows: Capt. Cram of Company C promoted to Major, Lieut. Gates of Company A to Captain, S. McAllister A to First Lieutenant, Q. M. Sergt. Odell to Second Lieutenant, Sergeant Fisk of Company C to Second Lieutenant, Capt. Logan of Company K was dishonorably discharged, Lieut. B. Coyl of Company L was mustered out, Sergt. A. Fuller of Company L was promoted to Second Lieutenant, and Lieut. Berry missed. The officers at Randall are as follows: Col. Pollock in command, Lieut. Heath adjutant, Lieut. Dayton Quartermaster, Lieut. Morgan Surgeon, Campburn and Bardude Chaplains. So will close up for the Campaign of 1864 promising if another expedition was made I would tell you of the facts and will now say good to you.

Campaign of 18

My last page left our regiment at different river—Company G at Fort Berthold; Company I; F at Crow Creek; A, C, D, L and M at Rapid River; E at Sioux City. This gave Randall five quarters of the regiment. The winter was from the south bringing us all the real news of all kinds were afloat through the fort as to our covered the whole territory of the United States river to the Pacific ocean. Gen. Sully had been government officials for authority to cross his and start out for the Black Hills and Powder river and punish them. No doubt if the government and punish the Indians it would have been powers at Washington did not see it in that light did not have the fear of Gen. Sully before him that did not suit the General so he had him kept him there till after the expedition returned the disgust of Col. Pollock's men, who had grown confidence in the Colonel and looked upon the army with spite and jealousy, which sequel proved to be restored to his command by order of the General a hearing.

So the time wore away. In order to make it more pleasant and less lonesome, W. Shaver, an old regiment, two or three enlistments and was now a member organized a theatrical troop among the soldiers and companies. One of the most conspicuous was Co son of Company L, another, Harry Tripp of C. Other members I did not personally know. Old uncle called him, was a host himself in his line and the boys. Another thing Uncle Billy was very pronounced in wance principles. The old veteran had been nearly younger days by the use of intoxicants and it was patreme to hear him recount the scenes he had experie is generally the case, he as opposed to the traffic in ar and in this he, too, had his ardent followers. They ha of the Order of Good Templars which had a good m was the old man's darlin'.

Another source of amusement was the billiard generally well patronized by officers and men and away a great many otherwise lonely hours. Another was well patronized was the tenpin alley, kept by a J ferry boat landing. He managed to jew in quite a g boys' money, especially about pay day. There was well supplied with books, mostly fiction, but some works of history, travels, etc. This was kept in the with the billiard table and both were presided over b soldier named "Jim." I never heard his other nan truth be told, was not as strict a temperance man a The library was so conducted that by a soldier paying ly sum (50 cents I believe) he could have all the read So taking it altogether Randall had some good poi were some disadvantages.

On general principle it was healthy, but there w here, too. Owing to the salt rations and the scarcy food, a great many of the men suffered from scurvy A. R. Fuller, C. Cook, M. Boyl and others of Comya or less in all the other Companies. Durin the win Sioux City and bought potatoes, onions and other vego Company's fund. So hungry were they for such food as high as 5 cents apiece was paid for an onion or pota patient of Company A, John Falck a German, had a long time and had just able to ride a little. So he couple of men who were drawing wood from a gulch s fort, about three miles. While loading wood the I them. The teamsters returned to camp as quick as 1865.

rent places on the Missouri panies B, H and K at Sul-Randall; I at Yankton and five companies and head-
was monotonous, the mail we received. Rumors of
to our summer work high States, from the Missouri had been li uring with the his command at Fort Rice er river and find the Indians ment really wanted to find een a good move, but the t light. Col. Pollock, who him, made some statement n placed under arrest and urned in October, much to great respect for and cone arrest as a piece of petty be true as the Colonel was General without as much as

make it a little more pleas-d regular, who had served member of Company A, ordiers of the different com-
s Corporal Frank Thomp-

poor Falek was filled full of arrows and as he had to take it. As soon as word came started in pursuit. Of course they did not brought in the soldier, who had all the car agony during the night.

April 14—We received news today that Gen. Grant and we had a general jubilee 100 guns in honor of the event. Conrad was blown off while serving a gun. This was a gloom over the soldiers but aside from that the glorious feelings of the day. Those who were "sary" to help celebrate did not find it hard our soldiering days were nearly over. Before October. All kinds of reports were stayed all the same.

April 21—We received the news of the assassination. The flags were floated at manifestations of grief indulged, and as they loved by the soldiers, a great deal of the matter seriously felt.

April 27—Had a fast day. Had no and orders were read to observe the 28th. Guns are to be fired each half hour.

April 28—Had no drill today but held of President Lincoln. Had dress parade.

he was not able to escape me to the fort a squad was not get the Indians, but they were possible but died in great that Lee had surrendered to Lee and jollification. Fired of C Company had his arm

a sad affair and cast a deep his nothing occurred to mar who chose a little "commesd to get and all felt as though But we found out different were in circulation but we oday of President Lincoln's half mast and all the official the President was universally manifestations were real and no drill. Had dress parade in honor of the President.

d memorial services in honor
.

OFF FOR THE NORTH.

Along in the spring our officers received orders to consolidate companies, or rather to fill up four companies to 100 men which was done. Companies A and L were consolidated under the command of Capt. Ames of Company L and Lieut. Hunt. writing, February, 1892, what other Companies were in the battalion and who commanded them has escaped my memory. I could not get the information from any source that I applied to. The Command of the Battalion was given to Lieut.-Col. T. Lieut. Fuller of Company L was adjutant and Surgeon and medical director. This command was duly organized and to march at any moment, as we supposed to scour the Indian country of the Black Hills, Powder river, etc., but in this we were disappointed.

Finally June 13, we moved across the river and set up tents again. We all felt renewed in health at the removal from scurvy Randall. Our camp here was not very pleasant as the sandy and sandy land in a windy country makes it very uncomfortable on the eyes.

June 19—Gen. Sully arrived at Fort Randall and was received with the customary salute. The Company clerks were ordered to Fort Randall to make up the muster roll.

Started at 6 and went into camp at Pease creek. Made a march of five miles.

June 22—Made another fifteen mile march and camped. The ground has been described elsewhere in this book.

June 23—Made a march of eighteen miles and camped at Pease creek.

June 24—Started early, marched to Red Lake and camped. Made a march of twenty-eight miles.

June 25—Made a Sunday march of fifteen miles and on Crow creek where we had a fine camp, good grass, wood and water.

June 26—Started early, came in to the agency, ten miles, and then came ten miles further and camped on a bleak knoll.

June 27—Made a twenty-five mile march and camped on Chapelle creek, near an old camp made some time ago.

June 28—Started quite early, made a sixteen mile march and arrived in camp on Yellow Medicine creek at 8 a. m. Went to work making out muster roll.

June 29—Laid over in camp today to rest up. Quite a number of the men visited Fort Sully which was only a short distance away.

June 30—Another day in camp. Mustered for pay. Fixed up rolls. Visited the fort and made the time as agreeable as possible.

July 1—Still in camp and nothing to do.

July 2—Being Sunday we had an elaborate guard mount, regular clean-up and wash-out, with orders to move tomorrow.

July 3—Moved camp today about six miles where we wandered around a good deal.

July 4—Was in camp all day. Being Independence Day we were patriotic. At least we were expected to be. Received orders to move out tomorrow.

July 5—Started at 4 a. m., marched thirty miles and arrived at Oke Bosier at 2 p. m., pretty well tuckered out. Had a good camp, well supplied with water, wood and grass.

July 6—Started at an early hour and came a distance of twenty-two miles, camping on Artichoke creek. Good camp.

July 7—Started early and marched eighteen miles, camping on Cheyenne creek, near a former camp that is memorable by the big hail storm in 1863. Had a good camp.

July 8—A fine day and cool. Started and marched till 10 when we arrived at Blue Blanket creek, or Swan lake. Capt. Ames was sick.

July 9—Started at 6 and made a march of twenty miles and made a good camp with plenty of wood, water and grass on Hid Wood creek. A fine day. Company D, Capt. Bardick, on guard.

July 10—Made a march of twenty miles, camping on Bordash creek. Company L on guard. Capt. Ames had picket guards out.

July 11—Started early and came to Lone lake, a distance of twenty-five miles. Discovered where the reds had dug up a soldier that was buried last fall, for the purpose, I suppose, of mutilating the remains. Did not have a very good camp. Water alkaline.

July 12—Started early, marched twenty miles, camping on Beaver creek at 12, over a new route from what we came before. It was a hot day. We had a good camp, abundance of water, grass and fuel. Lieut. Fuller was thrown forward on his saddle, his horse having stumbled or more likely stepped into a wolf hole. Such accidents are occurring very frequently. Whether the effects are going to be permanent remains to be determined in the future. Fuller got a pretty hard bump in a very tender spot. Afterwards he had to have the pommel of his saddle covered with buffalo skin to make it more easy riding. Others were placed in the same category before and after, J. Duling, E. Tompkins, etc.

July 13—Started early and came twenty miles, camping on the Missouri river opposite Fort Rice on the ground of a former camp. Had antelope for supper. We had a good camp. Company K with Capt. Logan on guard.

July 14—Was in camp all day. There were 500 lodges of Indians camped near the fort, come to treat with Gen. Sully. They are looking for more to come.

July 15—A monotonous day in camp with a fair proportion of Dakota's zephyrs blowing.

July 16—Another day of wind and idleness in camp. The pay master arrived in the afternoon.

July 17—Still in camp. Made out muster rolls and sent them to Fort Rice.

July 18—We spent this day in camp doing nothing. The boys were so near out of money that the chuck-a-luck fiend was not doing any business.

July 19—Still quite warm and monotonous in camp. Anniversary of the day we left Rice for the Indian country in 1864.

July 20—Still in camp. Boys out in the country making hay. We got our pay to day and things took on a brighter look. The chuck-a-luck man out in full force for business. Cooler than usual, having had some rain.

July 21—A rainy day in camp and therefore a dull one for dog tents.

July 22—A shower, but otherwise a pleasant day. The camp was startled by the report that Corporal Falk of Company M himself. The Corporal was a German and became homo-despondent and to equalize things up he shot himself. As the second man of Company M that had suicided, it caused n-ordinary comment among the men. Company L on gua-received orders today to march tomorrow.

had shot
sick and this was ore than
d. We

TO DEVIL'S LAKE.

July 23—Started early and made a march of twenty-seven miles arriving at Lake Sully, a rain water lake, at 3 p. m., where we had a good camp free from alkali. Had good grass. Company K on guard. Today our route was along Long Lake creek.

July 24—Getting an early start we made a march of thirty miles camping at a small lake, to which we gave the name of Lin Broeck in honor of our Lieutenant Colonel.

July 25—A warm day. Started early and made a twenty-five mile march, camping at a lake of good water and had good grass for our animals.

July 26—Another warm day. Made a twenty-mile march and camped at a lake where buffalo were wont to come to refresh themselves. We had meat for supper. A squad was sent out to overhual some Red River traders. Capt. Ames of Company L had command.

July 27—Started at 5:30 and marched till 2 p. m., making twenty-eight miles camping on the same ground where the Red River traders had camped a short time previous. Our camp was on a stream called Cheyenne River of the North. Good camp.

July 28—Started at 6 and made a ten mile march. Had a good camp.

July 29—Started at 5 and made a march of eighteen miles, camping at the far-famed Devil's Lake, or Minne-Waukon, or bad water, at 12 m. We found the lake a nice body of water to look at, but the water!!—so impregnated with salt that we could not use it. However, by sinking shallow wells we obtained good water. The banks of the lake were rough and uneven, indicating that fearful storms were of customary occurrence on the lake. Large rocks appeared to have been washed ashore with the waves. The lake appeared to be dotted over with islands, thickly timbered with cottonwood and other wood, of rather small growth. We stopped at the lake three days sending out exploring expeditions, but discovering no Indian signs. Maj. VanMinden whom we called the "bug hunter" quite successful in his exploration but those who stayed in camp were more successful in capturing bugs, but of another variety. During our stay at the lake the weather was cool.

August 2—We started at 6 and marched till 4, making twenty-eight miles and camping at an alkali lake, where we found plenty of timber, gooseberry and raspberry bushes. We saw the haunts of the scouts that had been sent out.

August 3—Started at 5 and came twenty-five miles, camping at a small lake where we found good wood, water and raspberries. Our march today was part of the time over sand pits, consequently slow traveling.

August 4—Started at the usual time and at 8 we reached our camp a distance of ten miles. Our camp was on a branch of Mouse river a lovely spot—fine burr oak timber, lovely stream of good water clear of alkali. We found some nice fish of the salmon variety. Quite a few of them were caught and heartily enjoyed by the men. A scout was sent out from here to locate if possible some of the Indian titles but after a thorough search, even going over into British Columbia none were found. Lieut Hunt, Sergeant Perrin and Corporal Nett, with a small squad of privates from Company L were in the rear tail and some from other companies. Capt. Williams of Company C was in command. There were about fifty from each Company. A scout returned about sundown. This is the finest camp we have had since we came in to the territory.

August 5—This has been a very warm day. Started at 6 and made twenty miles. Camped on Mouse river. Had another fine camp, plenty of good water, wood and grass and fish. Our scout had a new system of guard adopted which was not very well received by the men.

August 6—Started at 6 and marched till 1 over a level plain with nothing to break the monotony. Camped on a fresh water lake. Water good, but the lake was very dirty as it was literally covered with geese and ducks. We had no wood and poor grass.

August 7—Made a long march today of thirty miles over a level country. Started at 6 and camping at 6:30. Had quite a good spring of good water. Capt. Ames was out hunting buffalo and was thrown from his horse and hurt some. The horse got away and the Indians gobbled him, I suppose. Lieut. Hunt was out trying to capture him but failed, and I had command of the Company. Was not feeling very well. It has been a very warm day and good water scarce.

August 8---After a short march made a camp on a creek some distance from Fort Berthold. Quite a warm day. Our camp is rather a fine one, good water and grass. No fuel but buffalo chips nearer than the river. No news of any importance in regard to future movements.

August 9---We laid in camp all day. Done up some washing and letter writing. A number of the boys went to the fort today. It is very warm. The talk in camp today is that the fort is to be abandoned. It is only a report however.

August 10---Another fine day but very hot. Monotonous day in camp. A report is in circulation that we were to go to the headwaters of White river after Indians. Company M on guard.

August 11---Another warm day in camp. Went down to the fort and was round through the Indian teepees. There was a dance at the fort. Lieut. Hunt and some of the other boys went down. Boat came up and brought some mail. Heard about the Indian fight at Rice and is reported that we have orders to start homeward.

August 12---Got our mail. I received letters from wife, and papers. No word of paymaster. The boat went up to Fort Union.

August 13---Some of us went out to see the burning coal mine. We saw the smoke issuing from the ground. One of the boys stuck a spade in the ground and the smoke and flame burst out of the ground. This was on a slight elevation west of the camp. It was seen by all the men in the command. Capt. Ames was detailed on court martial. Company L on picket guard today.

August 14---Not as warm as yesterday but still pretty hot. Capt. Ames on court martial, Lieut. Hunt sick and I was in command. Worked on muster roll and made out Stevens' descriptive rolls.

August 15---A fine cool day but monotonous in camp. Lieut. Hunt and I worked on rolls. Wrote letters and got a warrant and filled it out.

August 16---Hot day and windy, we moved camp today and secured a camp that was better calculated for comfort. We moved and came four or five miles. Found shade, wood, water. We are about three miles from the river. Hunt was here today.

August 17—A fine day but hot. There is a report of a boat at the fort. Another report is that we move Saturday. Hunt and I made a muster roll today. Wrote to Lieutenant Ward to warrant.

August 18—A very hot day with a big storm of wind, thunder and lightning. One Company camped on the edge of the river. They lost their whole outfit, saddles, bridles, tents, bedding, and horses got scared and stampeded, carrying all before them. Lightning struck a wagon in the train and fired it. The train was tipped over and it cost him all his brandied peaches and a good deal of tobacco to get his goods gathered up. But he got his things in shape and had a good sleep. The stampede was over by night. The stream rose in a few minutes from a rivulet to a river. Gen. Sully had been to the Indian camp and had prayed to him to send them rain as their crop of corn was up and the grass also was getting exhausted. Gen. Sully said, "Why, do they think I am the Almighty that I can bring rain whenever I want to?" But the General had hardly returned to the camp when the rain began to get there. Then the General said, "The Mandans will give me all the credit for this shower."

August 19—Our camp was in a rather dejected location this morning but the sun rose bright and clear and everything assume its normal condition and turned out to be a fine day. We received orders to get ready to leave Monday to have inspection Sunday. As we had been lying in camp the order to move was welcome news to us. Company packed a good deal of their stuff and we all had our clothes and blankets. So we went at it and dried them all out and felt better.

Ve started at ter and grass.
officer of the

t that there is rday. Lieut.
Heath in re-

ind, hail, rain,
creek bottom
, etc. The them. The e sutlers tent
es and a good
finally we got
as about mid-
et to a roaring
d the Indians
was all drying
lly exclaimed
ng rain when d to camp till
Those d——d

ooking condi-
nd soon made
o be an event-
nday and also
camp so long
M had lost a bedding wet.

THE FIGHT AT FORT RICE.

Not being present as heretofore stated at the fight at Fort July 28, 1865, and not being able to locate any of the participants this late day my account of that fight was very meager but through the kindness of Comrade Philips of Company C I have received a copy of the "Frontier Scout," a paper published at Fort Rice in which is a short account of the fight by Sergt. Hobbs of Company G, who was one of the actors in the drama. The first part of the paper is a refutation of a mistake made by the editors of the "Frontier Scout." The article is as follows:—

FORT RICE, D. T., Aug. 8, 1865.

EDITOR FRONTIER SCOUT:—

Permit me to trespass briefly on your space to correct an error in the account of the battle of July 28, 1865, published in the Scout of August 3 and which is calculated to create an erroneous impression of the result of the engagement, besides doing injustice to a part of the troops engaged. The error referred to (which was doubtless caused by a misunderstanding on your part of the language used) occurs in the concluding sentence of what you give as my narrative, which sentence reads as follows. "I should judge in all there were ten or twelve Indians killed outright and there were many wounded." In the verbal narrative of the fight which I gave in response to your solicitation I stated there were ten or twelve Indians killed outright and more wounded by Company G, Sixth Iowa Cavalry, of which you give that as the aggregate of the number killed and wounded by all the troops engaged. There were undoubtedly a large number killed and wounded by the other troops. In Company G there were four Companies of the First and three Companies of the Fourth U. S. V. Infantry engaged. The fight in all covered a field of over two miles in extent from the extreme right the extreme left of our lines. The various Companies and batteries were disposed of at the most available for repulsing an attack. The plan of battle on the whole was preconcerted and systematic and their attack was concerted and simultaneous. It was consequently engaged on one part of the field to know what was doing in other parts. Therefore I spoke only of what came under my observation, presuming that some looker-on in Vermont would make a more comprehensive sketch of the engagement.

Capt. Moreland with Company G of the Sixth and with Company D of the Fourth entertained the Rebels, if not pleasantly, on the left, while Capt. Michie, Paine, Backerman and Brown with H, C, E and D of the Fourth and Capt. Bassett with Company C of the Fourth were on the right. Capt. Swade with Company A of the Fourth was in the center. The operations on the field were directed by Col. Pattee of the Seventh Cavalry in person, assisted by Major, Lieut. Archibald and Surgeon Yeomans of the Fourth. The field to take care of all the wounded.

Individual praise being of necessity invidious I did not give it. They did their duty and all doubtless contributed more or less to the numbers that wailing crew of which it was said "the squaw that will bewail the brave killed on the 28th of September, night hideous with her howlings as in the depth of the forest, her long black hair by the side of some bluff or in the Dakotahs." Poor dear creatures! As though they possessed the attributes of humanity or the affection of the higher order of brutes! As though their fiendish nature was incapable of one spark of the anguish they so gloried in inflicting on others! They are devoid of every ennobling emotion, heart, instinctively brutal, perternaturally degraded, less, vindictive and remorseless. Their stately and noble character exists only in the ideal fancies of imaginative writers. The chivalrous knighterrant and romanized Indian race are Myths of the past.

The above extract is inserted for two reasons: first, as a partial account of the fight at Rice, and second, to

of the soldiers in regard to the treacherous reds, who so brutally and mutilated our comrades and the helpless women and children at New Ulm, Spirit Lake and other places. How much the passage of a century has softened that sentiment I am not prepared to say.

panies, detachments and other points for making the part of the Indians. It was impossible for those who were transpiring on came under my own eye. It would give you

Sixth and Lieut. Riley. The Red Skins attentive. The Chief and Lieut's Chamberlain respectfully, of the Fourth did the honors of the line where he was the presiding officer. Directed by Lieut. Col. and by the Post Adjutant the Seventh was on is uncalled for. All the more or less to increase in the "There is many a drop of blood on the 8th of July and make of her agony she pulls in some deep ravine. Though Indians possessionate instinct of the selfish hearts were suscitously inflicting upon the emotion of the human mind, essentially heartless pride and nobility of imaginative flash novel and antic Hebs of the In-ons: First, to give a opinion, to show the opinion

—114—

IN CAMP.

August 20—This has been a warm day with inspection and getting ready to move out. Received a report in camp today that we were to Hope it may prove true. It was cloudy all day but did not. Got cooler in the evening.

August 21—Took up our line of march at 6 camp, after a march of twenty miles. It was a good camp. We camped at the same place from Fort Union. The place was held as m where Pease and Powers were robbed in 1864.

August 22—This has been a cool day and ing. Started at 6 and at 1 had made a march ing near Paint creek, or Painted Wood. Had a hoping to make Fort Rice tomorrow.

August 23—Started at 5 and marched 10 miles and camping in a hollow where we had but buffalo chips. It is a month since we left F on guard today. Have not made the Missouri

August 24—Started at 5 and at 2 went into above our camp of last year. We made thirty on guard. It was very hot. Had a good camp grass.

August 25—At 5:30 took the road again. struck our old trail at Long Lake creek, where at 6 p. m. After a march of forty miles we struck the Missouri river below Fort Rice, completely very warm and windy all day. This camp was both pleasant and tragic. From this camp S and met his death from the hands of the treacher and quite monotonous at in the morning. Re-

to be mustered out soon.
day and threatened rain

t 6:30 and at 1 made our s cool today and we had last year on our march memorable as the place

64.
d a good day for march-n of twenty miles camp-d a good camp. We are till 10, making sixteen

l good water but no fuel
t Fort Rice. Company
ouri river yet.

into camp on Apple river rty miles. Company L amp, plenty of water and in, crossed Apple river, ere we received our mail struck our old camp on ly tuckered out. It was p has many associations Sergeant Murphy went acherous Indians. Corporal Thompson swam the river and escaped. From cuing party went to the Bad Lands to rescue the Fish corralled by the Indians. Sergeant J. H. Burhans, J others of Company L were in the party. From this of Reuben Mickle took its flight to meet the Great the other side. Reuben was as good a soldier as wo ready at all times to obey every order. He may have his Company but if so I was not acquainted with them eighty or ninety good boys in Company L but none b ben Mickle. We spent a good deal of time at this ca to us like home, but at this time our homes in Iowa looked forward to and so this camp or any other tha was not looked upon with any degree of favor. Bu years we often think of the good days, the sorrowfu ious days spent at the camp below Fort Rice, near mouth of the Cannon Ball. But, oh my! Didn't t here sometimes?

August 26—Was in camp all day, being a clo
Some of Company M's men got orders to report at h their discharge. I made out a list of men in Compan expired in September and October. A messenge brought up a dispatch to headquarters.

August 27—Another warm day. Was in can made out a detail to work on a government warehouse of Lieut. Hunt. A man from Bracket's Battalion wa dians near camp. D. C. Hallock was made corpora was received from Fort Berthold.

August 28—Another warm day. Rained a little Had a detail at work at the fort. Company D on
No mail from below, but looking for it all the time.

August 29—Very warm day. Clouded up in th no rain. Had our usual detail at the fort.

August 30—Hot day with wind drifting the sand corn rations for horses played out. Looking for a ste with supplies. Indians reported as seen in the vicinity tail at Rice.

August 31—Hot, windy day. Got mail, made finished rolls. I fixed up my books. The steam bo and a flat boat came down with soldiers and went below to be mustered out.

September 1—At 6:30 we started and went down the river, occupying one of our boats. Four of our men went down on the Big 1 and two sick men were put aboard. Made out the fort ware house.

September 2—Fine day, but not as warm. is progressing finely on the government warehouse of ordinance stores. Company G came down and camped on the right of us.

September 3—This is the second day at White Stone Hill. It was cooler than yesterday. The work on the warehouse has been detailed men ordered to their commands. some corn. Capt. Ames turned over some. It is the prevailing opinion that we will start soon.

September 4—A cool day. Was in the mail. Company L on guard. Have ordered for tomorrow. Made out some papers for Lieutenant.

aboard. Our man Sullivan and moved our camp six miles last year's camping places.

Horn to be mustered out le a permanent detail for the

as hot as yesterday. Work warehouse. I made invoices
e over from the fort today anniversary of our fight at esterday, in fact it was quite as been suspended and the

s. We had a detail to load some government property.
art south Tuesday.
in camp all day. Got our orders to start for home toeant. Hunt.

HOMeward BOUND.

September 5--Started at 5:30, marched till Beaver creek. We came twenty miles over a new we generally travelled. Found a nearer and better troops camped on the north bank of the river and south. It was a fine day for marching.

September 6--Started at 5 and came twenty Lone Lake. Roads good, weather warm, water fair, no wood. Company K on guard, L in front of some new orders in regard to guard details.

September 7--Started at 6 and came sixteen Cordash creek at 10. It was quite windy. Had a
I made out descriptive rolls for twenty of our men.
Quite a dry day in camp.

September 8--Started at 6 and came twenty-ing on Hid Wood at 11. Had a good camp. We the remains of some Indians Company E had killed.
hailed some in the evening and got quite cool.

September 9--Started at 5 and came twenty miles on Blue Blanket creek. It was a fine day to march in the evening. Headquarters received a dispatch. Son from the river.

September 10--A cold, windy day. Started fourteen miles, camping on Cheyenne at 10. Good lips got kicked by a horse. Turned over six men.
Made out same invoices.

September 11--Started at 5 and at 10, after a miles, camped on Assinibone creek where we had was quite warm. Made out some papers for Capt.

September 12--Started at 3 and at 10 made creek, a distance of twenty-four miles, camping on our old camp ground. Good camp. Some of our men went on to Fort Sully. I made out more papers. Getting ready for muster out.

September 13—A cool forenoon, but warmed up. Started at 5 and made camp five miles below the fort at 1, a distance of thirty miles. Not a very good camp but we are getting down to good country. We received mail today.

September 14—This has been a day in camp and warm, windy and dusty. Lieut. Hunt bought a bale of buffalo skins for himself, M. D. Watkins and me, also some tobacco for him and me. The men signed the clothing book. Made up some inspection reports.

September 15—Another hot, windy day in camp. Some of the boys turned over horses and other property. Made out some papers for Quartermaster Sergeant Watkins. The steamer "Gen. Grant" is lying above here on account of the high wind.

September 16—Hot day with strong northeast wind. In camp all day. Some of the boys went aboard the "Gen. Grant" to go south. We divided and packed our buffalo skins. Company B came down from Sully today. Company L on advance guard today.

September 17—A fine day but warm. Went to the fort and made out invoices for Quartermaster and receipts for ordnance stores.

September 18—Another day in camp and very monotonous. The only ray of sunshine of hope was orders to move in the morning for Sioux City. It was very warm. We packed up our traps and loaded them into the wagons.

September 19—Fine day but quite warm. Started at 6 and marched twenty miles camping at 11 on Chappelle creek. Had a good camp. Capt. Burdick in command.

September 20—Started at 5 and at 1 got into camp on the Missouri river above the agency, making a march of thirty miles. Our train did not get in till 5.

September 21—Started at 5 and came to Crow creek at 9, a distance of 16 miles. Had a fine camp. Company L on advance guard. Very warm day.

September 22—This has been rather a fine day for marching. Started at 5 and got into camp at Red Lake at 10. Company L in the rear today and on guard. Capt. Ames went on to Platte.

September 23—Left this morning at 4 and marched twenty-eight miles, camping on Platte creek at 2. It was cool in the morning but became very warm. Passed the Bijou Hills at 9 a. m. Met the Thirty-eighth Wisconsin Infantry going north to relieve the cavalry.

September 24—Started at 5 and made a march of twenty-five miles, arriving at camp on the Missouri river at 1, opposite Fort Randall. We passed Pease creek at 9. This is our old camp and there appears to be about as much sand and gray backs as of yore. I had a headache. This is not a camp of pleasant recollections to me. As for instance the spring of '64 had a bad attack of sore eyes that have not entirely recovered yet and maybe never will. Here also there is always a wind blowing and plenty of sand impregnated with alkali ready to be blown; here we learned that we could keep our carbine, saber and revolver at reduced prices if we cared to retain them. Well, old sand camp, this is our last sojourn on your location. When we leave you it will be for good to most of us some may come back. And just across Old Muddy lays Fort Randall. There are sad reflections and pleasant reminiscences with the Old Fort. Two winters we were sheltered in your old darracks. There we drilled, stood guard, burnt commissary hams at the guard house to keep us warm. There Old Glory floated; there we played nine-pins down at the Jew's ball ally; there we laid away our orderly sergeant, S. Harrison Woodward, "Tip." Is there a member of the original Company L who does not remember "Tip" and remember how his life went out in the hospital, how we buried him up at the cemetery? How I loved that man! He was a manly man, but passed away early, and his memory is green in the hearts of all Company L boys that survive him.—

How sleep the brave who sink to rest
With all their country honor blest.

Here also we had the library, billiard table and old Billy Shaver's theater and Frank Thompson his best man. Here Lieut. Sam Coyle done his last soldiering; here the boys had the scurry. We remember A. R. Fuller and others of Company L and how the boys bought potatoes, onions and other vegetables to fight it off; we remember poor Paul Faulk of Company A how he was so reduced with it that he could hardly walk and how he went out with the teams to ride and was cruelly murdered by the Indians because he was not able to walk away from them. Yes, we had sad scenes and joyous ones. Here we heard the joyful news of Lee's surrender and did our part in rejoicing, and didn't we do it heartily; here, alas, we heard the sad news of southern treachery in murdering that best of men of his time, President Abraham Lincoln. How solemn were the scenes at Fort Randall that day, but it is not with regret, Old Randall, that I leave you for the dear ones waiting in Iowa to welcome us back. Good by!

September 25—The command was in camp all day. A good share of the men went over to bid good-by to Old Randall, directions and got them over. The Seventh Iowa Cavalry, or a portion of them, are there. The Commissary and Quartermaster there. Duling of Company L.

September 26—A fine day. Started at 6 and at 1:30 arrived at a spring near Chateau creek where we camped, having made a march of twenty miles. At 10 we stopped at the Yankton agency to watered horses.

September 27—Started at 5 and at 2 we had reached Bon Homme, twenty-two miles, and watered at Manuel creek. A very warm day. Some of the boys from L, H and A Companies came in for detail.

September 28—Started at 5, marched till 1 and made camp on Jim river. Made twenty-five miles. Came through Yankton at 10, filled up canteens with milk. A fine day for marching, we have a good camp.

September 29—Cool morning but warmed up during the day. Started at 5, made thirty miles, camping on Green Point at 10, passed through Vermillion at 11 and over the river on the bridge. Camped close to a big potato field. The proprietor said: "There are the potatoes, help yourselves," and we did. Jerusha! wasn't they beautiful. That farmer, I hope, is living yet and hope he will live to be 150 years old. Fine camp.

September 30—Another fine day, starting out with a cool morning. Started at 5 and reached the Big Sioux river near old Camp Cook at 12, a distance of twenty-five miles. We can see Iowa will soon be there.

AT SIOUX CITY.

October 1—Was in camp all day. Turned over the Company A men who had been with us on the expedition. Our men who left us above came back to camp. Arms were turned back to the men that wanted to retain them. Received orders to go to Clinton.

October 2—Laid in camp all day. Capt. Ames requested me to go to Sioux City and help Lieut. Fuller make up the final muster-out papers, reports, etc. A warm day.

October 3—Still camp holds out but not many there. I came up to the city with Capt. Ames, got a boarding house and then an office. Did not do much. From this on till muster out the personal pronoun, "I," will come in too often for general reading but cannot help it and carry out my original intentions in writing these notes.

October 4—Camp still on the Sioux. Went to work on muster-out rolls, got one nearly done. Capt. Ames turned over his horses. Some of the men are going to buy their horses if they can. I am boarding with a family by the name of Robinson.

October 5—A fine day was at work all day on rolls. Had one made out and commenced another. Lieut. Fuller sick with his old troubles, diarrhea and rheumatism. Lieut. Hunt up from camp reports things to be quiet, and not many there. The command turned over ordnance stores.

October 6—Another warm day with a rain in the evening. Worked all day on rolls making out two. Fuller a little better. Company L turned over ordnance stores. I bought a fine buffalo robe for $15.50.

October 7—A fine day but not as warm as yesterday. Made out two rolls. Lieut. Fuller better of diarrhea but not of rhe Capt. Norton (ordnance officer) is in the city. Capt. Ames up his ordnance stores but did not get them turned in.

October 8—Fine day but cooler than yesterday. Had quiet day and was not compelled to work for the first Sunday years. Captain was up from camp and reports all quiet Sioux.

October 9—Fine day, Lieut. Fuller and I worked on This day completes my three years of army life and I can thank God that he has been so merciful and kind during years my mind travels back to the county fair at National, Oct when I met Capt. A. S. Ames and enrolled as a soldier with expectations of soldiering any place only in the south. Of course been better as far as personal safety is concerned but it was disappointment to the rank and file of the regiment. A rumor current in camp that we were to be mustered out Sunday night would look like army business to do the big work Sunday.

October 10—A fine day. We done a big day's work today, working at night and nearly completing them. Haction, voted for Benton & Co. We had a horse race out on in which Maj. Honse is one of the chief men. Lieut. Fuller plaining some.

October 11—A fine day. Worked on rolls, putting on in regard to arms. Got orders to figure out mustering out port. Was working at clothing account of the men.

October 12—A wet day, raining all day. Worked on blank discharge papers. Went down to camp with Capt. stayed all night with him and Lieutenant. Some of the boys a crib up on Prairie creek and the inmates made for the Duling came to camp from Randall.

October 13—Damp cool day. Worked hard and finishing ordnance remarks on rolls. Commenced making out papers. There is plenty of bad whisky in town and the boys find it and getting noisy.

October 14—Worked on rolls, figuring up clothing was a fine day but cooler. Will soon have writing and done.

October 15—Another fine day, worked on rolls and papers and think we have them finished, but don't know.

some ordnance invoices, worked hard all day, if it was Sunday. I think we shall start to Boonsboro Wednesday.

October 16—Fine day, but cool. Worked on rolls and discharge papers. Some of the Sons of Belial stole all my outfit of bedding, clothing, etc., except sabre, shoes, stockings, etc. I had two squaw buffalo robes, two blankets, poncho, overcoat and dog tent. Some Company — men got it all.

October 17—Was formally mustered out today by Capt. H. A. Thacher, U. S. A., and nearly froze during the operation. The wind blowing a perfect gale and cold, but joy at the idea of getting home kept up our spirits. On account of my traps being stolen I bunked in with Capt. Ames and Lieut. Hunt. Slept well and the wolves howled all night. We were mustered out east of the city.

NOW FOR HOME.

October 18—Fine day but cool. Started this morning teams for Eastern Iowa. Sixteen men, six mules and a whacker to a wagon. Came twenty miles and made a mess. Smith has a mess to cook for and I am in it. Mules and our camp is on West Fork. Got in at 3 p. m.

October 19—Started at 6 and came to camp at Corro, the Little Sioux at 11:30. Had a fine day for marching, ranged the seating of our wagons. Had a good camp. view of an eclipse of the sun which was plain to the naked eye.

October 20—Started at 6 and got into camp on Ma. 3. Everything moved quietly, the men walking a good order to report absences at roll call.

October 21—Started at 6 and at 3 made camp on river, at Sac City. A cool day, country fine and level and dry, water fine. Came along at a good gait.

October 22—Started at 6 and came to Lake City at an old road made twenty miles. Warm day, plenty mules. Rained all night. Made good time.

October 23—Awful wet day, but made twenty miles on English river, two miles east of Jeffersonville. Did not after dark. Found heavy timber and a huge pile of saw rails which we confiscated and made big bonfires to dry up. not lie down nor did any one else. Rained hard all night kept warm by the fire.

October 24—Started at 8 and came within two miles Moines river. Rained all day. Came afoot, the roads were we could not get our train through. Some of the men went on to Boonsboro. We were all nearly tuckered out.

October 25—Started at 8 and came to Boone, a distance of 10 miles, afoot. We shipped aboard some freight cars on the C. & W. for Clinton. Still raining hard and cars leaking like sieves. The road was very rough. At three we started and rail roaded all night, arriving at Clinton at 5 a. m. Thursday, Oct. 26, cold, wet and hungry. Capt. Ames and I went to the Iowa Central House and eat buttered wheat cakes. The Clinton people hustled 'round and got us up a barrel or two of hot coffee and lunch good enough for an American citizen and that is good enough for anyone. God bless the good patriotic citizens of Clinton, men and women! Got our stuff aboard "Highlander" and at 11 p. m. started for Davenport. At 3 we came to LeClaire where we had to lay over on account of the wind, raining and blowing all the time. Got lodging at private houses, some of the men going to Davenport by wagon.

October 27---Bad day for us. The wind was too high to cross the rapids, so we laid at LeClair all day and it rained and snowed and the men swore and some got "full" and impatient and rather unreasonable, laying all the blame on the officers while in fact the officers were as impatient to get out as the men. One of the Lieutenants of Company K had to keep shady during the day in order to escape their vengeance, but as all things pleasant or unpleasant come to an end at some time so did this trouble. The night was gloomy and stormy. No place on the boat to cook rations or spread a good bed and no money among the men generally caused the trouble. We all scattered and made out to get something to eat and a place to sleep and those who had taken too much "hot drops" slept it off. Taking all and all the day was not as pleasant as some other days but it came to an end all the same.

October 28---Storm all gone but the Captain of the boat concluded he had too much of a load to cross the river to Port Byron where we were loaded into freight cars and taken to Davenport. Why this was not thought of sooner and saved all the discomfort has been a mystery to me ever since. [Can any one explain it?] Left Port Byron at 12, got to Rock Island at 1 and to Davenport at 1. We went to camp McLelland. Found a good camp and a lot of the Indians from the Ulm country as prisoners, fat and hearty, well clothed and clothed in government clothing and guarded by U. S. soldiers.

would not have been very healthy for these red gentlemen just from Dakota had been placed on guard over the soldiers who had money to pay hotel bills or any thing. The city left the camp after they had got their baggage. Those who were "broke" stayed in camp. I hid myself on Brady street, owned by a very fine family named Lu. My lady was one of the most patriotic and Christian ladies I ever met. She counted every soldier as one of her boys. She was too good for her boys. For nursing and kindling through a spell of lung fever in March, 1863, and for the money received in October, 1865, I will always hold in remembrance as memory and reason hold their sway.

October 29—A fine morning but cold. Mr. Sumner over to camp this morning. We signed the pay rolls for the Infantry, a colored regiment, come in today and will be here. The Davenport people made a big to-do over them.

October 30—Rained all day. Went down town to see the boys. Learned we were to get our pay Tuesday. Went below Davenport and brought Miss Angie Lunger home. She was teaching school.

October 31—Fine sunny day, but muddy and cold. Went down town and did some writing for Capt. Ames. No pay today.

November 1—Another wet day, but went to camp. Paid at 10 and the Sixth Iowa Volunteer Cavalry pieces, never to meet till at the roll call on the other side. Companies scattered to the several localities from whence they came three years previous, some to find everything in good shape, kind and loving ones waiting and ready to give them a hearty welcome, whilst others to find home broken up, no one to give them a word of welcome. Had made some separations and other separations for different reasons, although we were, as might be supposed, as to casualties of army service, yet all the Sixth Iowa Cavalry some, yes quite a number, of our best men were the victims of the treacherous disease we had to deal. Some by accident, others by disease, some suicided, so that quite a number of one of Iowa's best ts if the soldiers

em. Any of the
at had friends in uggage secured.
me to a house on unger. The old
I ever knew to boys and nothing
ind ministrations
or kindness again
embrance as long

unger and I went
ls. The Sixtieth
be paid off here.

own and saw some
ay. Went down
home from where nder foot. Went es at the Kimball

camp at 8 and was regiment fell to side. The Com-ce they had come
good shape, their
g to receive them
ners only returned
of cheer. Death s were caused by supposed, in a safe
members of the
our braves were le fields and some
as foe with whom se and one or two best regiments are sleeping their last long sleep on Dakota's soil. As this da ceedings has scattered the regiment I will only in thi: connec a few notices of my home going and then add a few items and otherwise that may be better to record. Company L n belonged in Clayton county and all these of course directed th that way, some on boats up the Mississippi river and other via Chicago. I was among the better class and boarded the 8 p. m. for that city, it raining all day.

November 2.—This morning found us at Chicago. Boa cars and left at 9 a. m., and pulled into the Mondell House at at Prairie Du Chien, Wis. Met a Major there who made pleasant.

November 3.—Started at 7, crossed the river to McGreg Found a large number of friends, realtives and acquaintance across an old neighbor of 1850 from Garnaville, John Ta who dumped me and my bundles into his wagon and gave n ride of eight miles to my home, where I found my family all to give me a warm welcome and hearty greeting and we all fel ful to God who had watched so kindly over us in our sep
Three years of soldiering had as I supposed left me as good
I left home, but, alas when the books and papers were brough at night I found the brilliant sight with which I had been used in the days gone by sadly impaired. Whether it is perman not, time will only determine. Here my diary record ce with a few personal recollections my story ends.

PERSONAL AND OTHER

Among the men enlisted in October, 1862, of men in our regiment, and I suppose in other old or not sound or for some reason or another hardships of the army and were mustered back. Among these we might mention from Company A, a saddler. He was hardly ever able for duty while in service, that is what he says. Of course there must be the lame back. He was discharged at Fort Randall, Aug. 9, 1864.

Henry Barnhart was another man that was in service, as he was hardly ever free from pain in his legs and other disabilities. When I was in the regiment Henry was among those who needed medical attention. He was discharged at Davenport, Feb. 24, 1865.

Henry Mosely was another man that showed signs of disability. The infirmities of age disabled him and he was discharged at Fort Randall, City, Oct. 20, 1863, for disability.

Henry Ryan was discharged at Sioux Falls, S. D., from the fact that he could never adapt himself to military life. Disability.

Thomas B. Walker was another mistake. Tom meant well and appeared robust for his age. When he got home he found he left all he cared for behind him. His mind was. He had no thought for military life, family, and Aug. 9, 1864, he was discharged at Fort Randall.

William Wilder was discharged at the

2, there were a number
rs, that were either too er could not stand the fore their time expired.
ny L, Robt. Carty, our ith lame back or at least be something to cause
t Randall for disability.

was not really fit for the nd aches, blue spots on actin: First Sergeant, al treatment often. He

ould never have enlisted.
as discharged at Sioux

City, Dec. 2, 1863, more self to military than any in enlistment. Uncle age, but when he left and there was where life but longed for his for disability, at Fort

Time and place. 1

never knew really what was the matter with Uncle W. Our blacksmith and was a jolly one. Disability.

George Moore was another man out of place. Good enough at home but never well while in the charged at Sioux Falls, Aug. 3, 1865. Disability, (s

Louis Arnold, discharged July 16, 1864, at Dave had no more disability when discharged only a disa good soldier.

Reuben Baker discharged at Randall, July 14, never should have enlisted and had the examining duty he would not have been.

Chauncey Cook, good hearted, but homesick near
A little hurt would knock him out worse than the loss many other men. Discharged for disability, Davenport

Edward French discharged at Sioux City, Aug. 1901. Never knew what Ed was discharged for.

hearty looking but guess he was tired.

Ambrose Legg, an old man chuck full of pure pa old. Had he been twenty years younger would have soldier. Discharged Nov. 3, 1864, at Randall.

Thomas Haley at same time and place and saw Tom! whiskey and domestic troubles set him wild, but preach when he got full! Tom deserved a better end

Benj. Woolcraft, Jr., Bennie as we called him, delicate for a soldier, a good boy all the same, but could not stand the hardships of a soldier's life. After he left the service he was married and was living twenty-nine years after the war.

All these men had they remained at home would have done more to help put down the rebellion than where they helped till out the quota and their intentions were to their memories.

Another class of men I must refer to, that is the b
the service.

Clinton Clark a young man from Vermont visiting Clayton county, enlisted, went to Davenport, caught cold and died. What a soldier he would have lived to manhood, but he was cut down in his prime because of the world's possibilities of life.

Another fine soldier boy was S. Harrison Wood

Orderly Sergeant after we struck Dakota and every inch a soldier. How we did it big snow storm on Medicine creek.

William Duwe, a German, one of our L. He appeared to have the faculty of to all. Always ready for duty, as long as ing up when it was no longer possible to ambulance when disabled by sickness. placed on the boat, but too late to recover roll call sounded and Billy answered. I koto's soil, near Fort Union.

Reuben Mickle another good boy, call at Fort Rice, the record of whose these notes. These four were all held all the boys. I have never heard a word any of them.

One more man and I am done. I Kind, hearty, good-natured Alf, the last be entrapped by the treacherous reds, thoughts of the scene when we found him ness. But as I have written of him before as to speak of any of the comrades would soldiering even in Dakota, formed a bond the test of years to come and in the future may have existed among the boys will in so deep that they will never be resurrected separated for that length of time the many days seems like meeting one of our best friends.

Our boys were not in the habit of but as for having snakes in their dog There was in Dakota at this time large vicinity of the dog towns. One of our that, was a practical joker from away immense sight of good if he could get it. Another of our Sergeants concluded he was evening he procured a piece of rope about well saturated and soaked in Missouri Sergeants No. 1's tent under the blanket same tent and at taps No. 2 was not quiet.

Tall, well proportioned ke "Tip." A victim of the best soldiers in Company making himself agreeable health permitted, only giv-

go on in the rough riding At Yellowstone he was His work done, the last is bones are buried in Da-

who answered the last roll ath is printed elsewhere in with a kind of reverence by d of unfriendly criticism of

ean Sergeant Alt Murphy.
an we thought would ever but they got him and the fill our hearts with mad-will no say any more, and be invidious, as three years of friendship that will stand e years any differences that twenty years be all buried ed and when we have been ing a comrade of those old riends.

aving snakes in their boots,
ents that is another thing.
attlesnakes, especially in the est boys, and a Sergeant at ack and it did him an im-
e laugh on any of the boys.
ould have a little fun, so one at three feet long and had it river water and placed it in
. They both occupied the e ready to turn in so No. 1

131
piled, in and the first object that his hands came in con-snake stretched out under his blanket. Well he did very long, but jumped to the tent front and out, teatent to smithereins in a short time. The creator of course knew nothing in regard to the matter but ground calmly viewing the scene. We will charilaover the sequel. Soldier boys all knew what it was No. 1 was too generous-hearted and whole-souled laugh was against him.

During our absence at Devil's Lake in July the Indians who had been fed and clothed by C-joined with the hostiles and attempted to steal so-government at Fort Rice. Capt. Moreland with his arrived from Berthold where they had wintered and up while the command went to Devil's Lake. Cap-the Infantry at the fort give the reds to understand interfere ith Uncle Sam's property and when the soldiers pitched in and gave them a pretty severe boys of Company G had not much sympathy with Had it not been for the presence of Capt. Moorelpay the reds would have had the cattle, as the Inf-calculated to cope with the reds. As above stated at the time and could not et full particulars of this fi-ing at this late day where to get the same ill have
I know which is that the red skins got badly whipp-

The Battalion had been up to Pierre and vicin-before the rest of the regiment come up to join command. When the other two Battalions and Ge-wishing to become acquainted ith the officers of requested Maj. TenBroeck to bring them in and pre-C— of Company L as a very smart man in his when done up in his best suit as a stunner. He was in appearance and ability only a very little, if an-ion himself. Gen. Sully was not a dude, by any me-up in Dakota and was rigged out with corduroy wore without suspenders, white shirt, white sloustuffed inside of long-legged boots. In hot eather tom, when cooler an army blouse was added. V-Lieutenant's turn for presentation with a spick spa-latest regulation style, red sash; splendid sabre belt, musk and other perfumes, reminded the awe-struck beholder of the great personage then in Dakota. Upon entering the tent Maj. Tam Brook and Lieut. C—— found the General sitting on a camp stool sampling some commissary stores, the two parties saluted and the Major says:—"Gen. Sully, allow me to present Lieut. C—— of Company L, Sixth Iowa Cavalry." The General looked the Lieutenant over pretty sharp and then remarked—

"Company Hell, eh?" (the General was not choice in his language.) "Well, Lieutenant, how long have you been in the service?"

"About six months," was the reply.

"Six months," roared the General, "Why my g——d, man, I've been in the regular service twenty years and don't stink half as bad as you do." With that he waved to the Major that the interview was ended.

Gen. Sully had no superior as an Indian fighter but he had one enemy he had never conquered and that was his ungovernable temper. If he was crossed or criticised he would fairly foam with rage and because Col. Pollock made some slighting remark about the General chasing Indians with ox teams he never lost an opportunity of venting his spite on the Colonel.

In 1865 some of the boys at Fort Rice started a little paper called the "Frontier Scout." A certain Surgeon of the Seventh Cavalry, whose nom-de-pume was "S. P. Y." wrote out an article sharply criticising the General treating with some Indians, feeding them with government rations, clothing them in soldiers' uniforms and when the hostiles attacked the forces at the fort and tried to steal the cattle these same gentlemen were there and were conspicuous in the army blue.

This the Surgeon thought was a great mistake of the General and so stated in his article. When the General saw the article he fairly boiled over with rage. "S. P. Y.! yes, he is a spy! I'll spy him! What, a d——d spy talk that way about me, and in a newspaper at that?" And so on but the Doctor was right all the same and the General had to take his medicine.

A little incident occurred at Webster City, Ia., in April, 1865, in which three splendid men lost their lives. They were Sergeant Anderson of Company A, Sergeant Ostrander of Company E and Private Eben Jones of Company G. These men were part of a detail that was caring for government horses at Webster City. I have not all the particulars but the impression at the time was that a dispute arose between Anderson and Ostrander and they commenced firing. Jones went to act as peace maker but the shooting continued until all were dead or dying. The news of the shooting caused a wide spread gloom over the regiment as all three were favorites, not only in their own Company but in the regiment. The writer was sincerely attached to all three of these men and the tears will start thirty years after the scene when it comes up before him.

While in Davenport in 1762 one of the boys got disheartened, discouraged and fell sick and lost his voice. For quite a while he conversed in the sign language altogether. Finally one of the Sergeants concluded he was playing off and thought he would test him, so he told him he was detailed for guard. He motioned as much as to say that with his disability he could not stand guard. The Sergeant caught his foot and with one yank he moved him from the bunk to the floor and as he fell gave him a blow with a rod he had prepared. About the time the second blow was coming he shouted "For God's Sergeant, don't hit me again!" thus giving himself away. He never lost his voice again.

At the present time from all I could learn of the Regimental and Company officers is as follows:—

Col. D. S. Wilson, dead.
 Co. S M Pollock, Seattle, Wash.
 Lieut. Col. El P. Fenbrook, dead.
 Maj. A. E. House, dead.
 M. J. J. Galligan, dead.
 M. J. T. Shepherd, unknown.
 Maj. D. Witt C. Cram, Dubuque, Iowa.
 Surgeon Geo. Trumbull, unknown.
 Surgeon Jacob H. Camburn, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
 Assistant Surgeon Thomas Bardwell, Marion, Iowa.
 Assistant Surgeon S. C. Haynes, unknown.
 Assistant Surgeon N. B. Elliot, unknown.
 Adjutant R. L. Miller, unknown.
 Adjutant B. E. Agard, dead.
 Quartermaster A. Williams, unknown.
 Quartermaster C. Fogg, unknown.
 Commissary M. R. no, unknown.
 Chaplain D. Mitchell, unknown.

COMPANY A.
 Capt. J. Galligan, dead.
 Capt. J. M. G. t. s. died in DeWitt, Iowa, in 1893.

Lieut. H. A. McAlester, unknown.
 Lieut. S. J. Toll, unknown.
 Lieut. Henry Saedt, unknown.

COMPANY B.
 Capt. D. C. Cram, Dubuque, Iowa.
 Capt. D. E. Bronson, unknown.
 Lieut. T. P. Road, Dubuque, Iowa.
 Lieut. F. O. Udell, Dubuque, Iowa.
 Lieut. T. J. Leavitt, killed at White Stone Hill, Dakota, Sept. 3, 1863.
 Lieut. B. M. Richmond, unknown.
 Lieut. H. G. Foster, unknown.

COMPANY C.
 Capt. L. L. Ainsworth, West Union, Ia.
 Lieut. G. O. E. Dayton, Burlington, Ia.
 Lieut. F. K. Fisk, unknown.
 Lieut. H. Rickel, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Private Lewis Lane,
 " J. Lelachew
 " C. Hoffman.
 " J. M. Laughlin.
 " W. Murphy.
 " W. Maginnis
 " T. V. B. Mholson.
 " L. Phillips.
 " J. Presho.
 " Presho.
 " F. Riley, Williston, North Dakota.
 " W. Rolpe.

Private, C. K. Smith.
 " T. J. Scott, Strawberry Point, Iowa.
 " H. F. Stewart.
 " J. Stockwell.
 " F. Seunaman.
 " Milton Spencer, Concordia, Kansas.
 " Timothy Sullivan.
 " Thos. Sherman, Monona, Iowa.
 " C. Tahlstrom.
 " W. Tubbs.
 " J. Workman.
 " J. Waistencraft.
 " Thos. Wynne, dead.

The follo ing were mustered out before the balance of the regiment:—

Private, Louis Arnold.
 " Henry Barnhart.
 " R. C. Baker.
 " Robt. Chry, Beloit, Kansas.
 " Chas. Cook.
 " E. French.

Private, Thos. Haley.
 " A. Legz.
 " H. Mouly.
 " H. Ryan.
 " Thomas B. Walker.
 " B. W. Woislencraft.

The following are known by me to be dead at this writing, May, 1894:—

Sergeant S. H. Woodward, died at Fort Randall, D. T., Feb. 4, 1864.

Sergeant A. Murphy, killed by Indians near Fort Rice, D. T., Sept. 21, 1864.

Sergeant Benj. Woislencraft.

Corporal R. Mickle, died near Fort Rice, D. T., Sept. 26, 1864.

Wagoner G. L. Mow died in Chicago.

Teamster, M. Coyt, died in McGregor.

Private R. C. Baker.

Private Clinton Clark died in Davenport, Jan. 5 1863.

Private W. Duwe died near Fort Union on Ho-pital boat, Aug. 22, 1864.

Private Thomas Haley.

" Henry Barnhart died in Nebraska 1860
 " R. W. Woislencraft died in Minnesota, 1863.

" Thos. Gienelg.

" Austin Depue.

" Cal Stevens.

" J. Schonlay.

" Dan Sanger.

" Frank Thompson.

" E. Tompkins.

" C. W. Wheeler shot himself a few years ago.

Lafayette Caldwell, John Pettit and H. Clark deserted at Fort Randall. Clark came back and reported that the others had been killed by Indians and probably they were as we never heard from them again.

J. McGuire, C. Deming, W. McKenna and a few others have in some way got their names off the rolls and I cannot account for them.

Among names I have received and know the whereabouts of outside of Company L Sixth Iowa Cavalry are as follows

D. Names, Company A, Grand Mound, Iowa.
S. A. Lewis, Company I, Pierre, S. D.
Porter Bradley, Company G, Scranton, Iowa.
Frank Markel, Company H, Clinton, Iowa.
Sergeant Nicholas Overholt, Sparta, Tenn.
Sergt. Bronsow, Company M, Soldier's Home.

KANSAS.

Corporal Henry Dunleaman, Company A, Davenport, Iowa.

John McLaughlin, Company A, Wheatland, Ia.
Fred Phillips, Company A, Davenport, Iowa.

W. W. Sweet, Company A, Pipestone, Minn.

F. Mayers, Company B, Miller, S. D.

W. F. Hoyt, Company K, Andrew, Iowa.

F. S. Bean, Company D, Cadat Falls, Wis.

John D. Meadows, Company D, 1523 Franklin Street, Minneapolis, Minn.

M. O. Betts, Company D, Cresco, Iowa.

A. Baldwin, " " Verona, Wis.

J. W. Hartley, " " French Creek, Mo.

P. J. Pierce, Company F, New Albion, Iowa.

J. Elmer, Company F, Lansing, Iowa.

A. Oleon, Lansing, Iowa.

D. Rosenberger, Company F, Tama City, Iowa.

Frank Eschbaugh, Company F, Tama, Iowa.

F. H. Southern, Company F, Tama, Iowa.

H. Kinnle, Company D, Cresco, Iowa.

S. O. Wilson, Company D, Decorah, Iowa.

T. M. Hoyt, Company D, Decorah, Iowa.

E. A. Richards, Company F, Creston, Iowa.

Philip Nims, Company M, Chareton, Iowa.

F. C. Nolan, Jefferson, Iowa.

C. J. Bradley, Company G, Woodward, Iowa.

J. Thompson, Company F, Lansing, Iowa.

The following list comprises those who died in the service of Company L:—

COMPANY A.

Sergt. John Anderson shot at Webster, Iowa.

Corp. G. Ellenbessing drowned near Fort Randall.

Corp. C. Griffith, June 1863, Yellowstone, Mont.

Farrier D. Pence, Aug. 13, 1864, Fort Sully, D. T.

Private W. Baker, Dec. 25, 1863, Camanche, Ia.

P. F. Boyd, May 24, 1863, Camp Cook, D. T.

Peter Costello, April 1, 1864, Ft. Randall, D. T.

J. Falck killed by Indians March 1, 1864, Fort

Randall, D. T.

F. Benfield, Oct. 24, 1864, Ft. Randall.

T. C. Williamson by Indians at Hart River, Sept. 8, 1864.

COMPANY B.

Private J. F. M. Clark, March 20, 1863, Ft. Sully.

J. A. Hassack, Dec. 1, 1864, Sioux City, Ia.

M. S. Whitney, May 8, 1863, Davenport, Iowa.

COMPANY C.

Private C. W. Bingham, Oct. 20, 1863, Bijou

Hill, D. T.

A. Clark, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.

W. H. Stoops, Oct. 10, 1864, Fort Rice

COMPANY D.

Sergt. J. Brown, Nov. 14, 1863, Ft. Randall.

Private D. Greer, on hospital boat, Sept. 13, '64.

P. Knudson, Sept. 19, 1863, Ft. Pierce.

M. Mekkelson, Oct. 27, 1863, Davenport, Iowa.

Geo. P. Sargent, Feb. 27, 1865, Ft. Randall.

J. C. Williams, Feb. 20, 1860, Fort Rice.

COMPANY E.

Sergt. J. N. Rogers, Sept. 3, 1863, White

Hill.

W. A. Ostrander, Webster City, Ia.

1865.

Sergt. J. L. Winget, July 30, 1864, Ta

D. T.

Corp. W. W. Chew, April 25, 1863, Har

Wagner S. Murphy by Indians, Sept.

Fort Rice.

Private Burke, Feb. 12, 1863, Dubuque.

Private J. T. Bren, April 19, 1863, Sioux

Private S. C. Garow, Feb. 25, 1865, S

Iowa.

Private J. M. Harrison, Oct. 21, 1863, dull.

Private Geo. Kilisa, Sept. 3, 1863, White

Hill.

Private Eli Lee, Aug. 13, 1864, Yellowsto

Private J. H. Noland, Jan. 25, 1865, S

Iowa.

COMPANY F.

Teamster M. Charles, May 16, 1863, Ca

Wagoner C. Dundy, Feb. 28, 1865, Yank

Private W. G. Armstrong, Sept. 3, 1863

Stone Hill.

Private D. A. Blake, April 23, 1863, Cro

Private Marna D. Betts, Sept. 8, 1865.

Territory.

Private H. Cunningham, Feb. 15, 1863.

lows:—

ck, Iowa.
Iowa.

ity, Iowa.

owa.

own.

own.

own.

own.

own.

own.

own.

ice out-

White Stone

April 19,

Takachuly,

Harrison, Ia.

Sept 27 1864.

ue, Ia.

St. Louis City, Ia.

St. Louis City

1863, Ft. Bar-

White Stone

stone river.

St. Louis City,

Camp Cook.

ankton.

1863, White

Crow Creek.

1865, Dakota

1864.

Private S. Ealla, Dec. 5, 1863, Davenport, Iowa.
J. Hagerman, Dec. 3, 1863, Davenport, Iowa.
F. Segler, Oct. 5, 1864, D. T.
E. M. Allister, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.
J. Ruth, June 8, 1865, Crow Creek.
S. Strong, March 18, 1863, Camp Pollock, Ia.
O. M. B. Wagner, Sept. 3, White Stone Hill.
R. Wien, Dec. 18, 1862, Davenport, Iowa.

COMPANY G.

Private Capuel, March 24, 1864, Fort Randall.
S. M. Barnard, Oct. 10, 1863, Sioux City, Iowa.
Private A. Blackmer, Feb. 23, 1864, Fort Randall.
J. Clendennen, Sept. 8, 1864, on hospital boat.
Eben M. Jones, April 19, 1865, Webster City, Ia.
J. Myers, Oct. 10, 1863, Fort Sully.
John Beardon, March 28, 1865, Sioux City.
Private C. Stevens, Sept. 6, 1863, White Stone Hill.

Private J. J. Walter Nov. 17, 1863, Sioux City.

COMPANY H.

Sergt. W. W. Davis, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.

Private W. K. Dummelt, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.

Private J. Frazer, drowned May 23, 1863, Fort Randall.

Private H. Langensckhardt, Nov. 6, 1864, Fort Randall.

Private G. M. G'ason Dec. 7, 1863, Sioux City.
Private H. D. Ogan Jan. 2, 1865, Fort Sully.
Private C. Tuckerman, Sept. 31, 1863, White Stone Hill.

COMPANY J.

Corp. S. Randall July 22, 1863, Fort Randall.
Private M. N. Higgin, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.

Private G. H. Harris Oct. 25, 1863, Fort Sully.
Private J. Quinn August 28, 1864, bad lands.
Private I. Rice, died at Davenport, Ia.
Private I. J. Little, Dec. 12, 1864, Davenport, Ia.

COMPANY K.

W. Arnold, July 10, 1864, Fort Randall.
S. Butler, June 13, 1864, Crow Creek.
S. Came, April 1, 1863, Iowa City, Iowa.
J. Hurley, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.
D. Lane, June 17, 1865, Fort Sully.
H. H. Leonard Dec. 18, 1862, Davenport, Ia.
J. Mann, Sept. 3, 1863, White Stone Hill.
J. Nevins, March 1, 1864, Fort Sully.
F. M. Pierce, Aug. 27, 1864, Fort Randall.
F. Sothoron, Sept. 23, 1861, Crow Creek.

COMPANY L.

Corp. Paul Fall, June 12, 1865, D. T.
Private E. Clausen May 29, 1865, Ft. Randall.
P. Dun, May 19, 1864, Fort Randall.
M. Siegel, May 4, 1865, Fort Randall.

The fight at White Stone Hill, D. T., Sept. 3, 1863, was quite seriously for this regiment. The result was as follows: Company B killed; Company C, one killed and one wounded; Company E, two killed; Company F, three killed and one wounded; One killed and three wounded in Company H; one wounded in Company I and one killed in Company K; one killed and 13 wounded.

Whole number died in service—Company A, 10; Company B, 4; Company C, 3; Company D, 6; Company E, 12; Company F, 14; Company G, 9; Company H, 7; Company I, 6; Company K, 10; Company L, 15; Company M, 4. Total, 94.

To Comrades of the Seventh Iowa Cavalry, Bracketts' Battalion, Dakota Cavalry, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and any other troops that were with Sully:—

As I am only writing up the history of the Sixth Iowa Cavalry from an enlisted man's stand point my narative has been fi own, Company L; second, my own Battalion, Companies B and L; and third. my own regiment, the Sixth Iowa Cavalry other organizations did their full share of the work done, bu not with them and their history will be recorded by others I competent while I would not be. While I write only what ou ment done I do not claim we did it all, by any means. Theref other organizations will understand that I calculated that ea did their full share while I only record that part performed Sixth Iowa Cavalry.

I have no apology to make for my little book but a few w explanation. When the printer made the estimate it was from a pamphlet that was made in larger type and leaded so as to r rather unhandsome. So the book was set in smaller and clear and the leading taken out, leaving it a good deal handson plainer to read but not so many pages quite as we anticipated the matter is all there and in addition the portraits of Lieut Fuller and the writer. Again, the writing was nearly all done thirty years ago and printed just as it was written. Some that were put down at that time would probably have been had it been written at the present time. For illustration, in ing some of the men as deserting, who later came back and faithfully to the end of their term and no blot at all is reco their discharges and their names stand without blot or ble defenders of their government.

I had fondly hoped to have had an official report of the Fort Rice, July 28, 1865, but Capt. Moorland being dead and not find any one that was well enough posted in the fight to un to write it out for publication. My thanks are hereby tender Comrade of Company G for a copy of the "Frontier Scout which a parted account is taken; to Capt. Bardick for his paper and to E. A. Richards for his preface to White S fight.

With these explanations I submit my work to you, feel have faithfully carried out my promise made in my prospect hope that Comrades while reading it will remember spent together chasing and fighting Indians in Dakota

J. H. DRIP
Malone, I

October 1, 1894.